TELL OF HITLER TERMS TO GAIN BALKAN PEACE

Nazis Report Offer Made to Greece.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, March 7 (AP).—[The following was approved by the Bulgarian press office under a new censorship.]—The Germans, directing more energy than ever before toward effecting a Greek-Italian peace, are offering Greece a settlement whereby she would lose no territory held by her at the beginning of the war, it was intimated tonight.

Locomotives, machinery, and other economic rewards are being held out to Turkey. The price is a farewell [by Turkey] to Great Britain.

It is quite apparent here that the Germans are counting heavily upon the success of their diplomatic plans despite repeated Greek assertions that Greece will continue to fight and despite the links with Britain that Turkey has maintained.

Charge Eden's Mission Failed.

Axis informants here declared that Foreign Minister Anthony Eden of Britain failed to obtain from the Greeks a definite pledge to fight on. As proof of their contentions they pointed to the lack of specific declarations to that effect in Greek communiques.

The German effort in Turkey, even stronger than before the entrance of Nazi troops in Bulgaria, is aimed at nullifying all British influence there. [Fifty words were cut out here.] This large force may not have to fight if the German diplomatic program is attained.

An informant close to axis diplomatic quarters intimated that this diplomatic strategy, backed by German armies in Bulgaria, is to convince Greece of the futility of further fighting and to impress upon Turkey that Nazidom is supreme in southeastern Europe and that the influence of Britain has dwindled to nothing.

Predict Early Attack.

Earlier, some neutral military observers in Sofia had predicted a German attack on Greece's Macedonia and Thrace within 48 hours—one of those week-end lunges by spearheads of steel now familiar to German battle tactics.

German troops in Bulgaria, the base for the expected assault, stood more than 150,000 strong along the Greek and Turkish frontiers. German officers seized Bulgaria's available transport to move up their ever-lengthening columns of men and machines.

Assert Greeks Will Fight.

The Greek army, said Grecian diplomatic informants here, "absolutely will fight any German invasion."

They added that if Germany loosed her offensive, they had hopes that the Turks would smash at the German flank thru the Rhodope mountains, which extend east and west along the Greek-Bulgarian frontier.

The Greeks were reported removing civilians from the menaced sections of Thrace, apparently preparing to let Thrace go as untenable. But they sent new troops and artillery to support their naturally strong positions along the Struma river—which runs north and south from the Bulgarian border to the Aegean sea. There, in a section some 25 miles wide, it appeared that they would take their stand. Thrace itself adjoins European Turkey.

Jugo-Slavia Under Pressure.

For reasons of strategy, much depended immediately on the attitude of Jugo-Slavia and to a lesser, but still vital extent, on Turkey.

Jugo-Slavia, the last remaining Balkan power not flatly committed to either Britain or Germany, was under enormous pressure—by the British to keep neutral, by the Germans to join the axis.

The general expectation was that she would shortly proclaim friendship with Germany and Italy.

This belief was supported by disclosure that Prince Paul, Jugo-Slav regent, had had his Berchtesgaden conference with Adolf Hitler last Monday.

In Istanbul it was announced that the Turkish foreign policy would be outlined by Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu Monday morning before a closed session of the People's party.

BRITISH FACING DIFFICULT TASK IN KEREN DRIVE

Reporter Explains Italian Defenses.

Capt. M. M. Corpening, Tribune correspondent, is the first American to reach the Eritrean war front in Africa and describe the British siege of Keren. The following dispatch, with its description of the difficult terrain, unravels the mystery of why the British advanced swiftly on all other fronts in Africa but have been stalled before Keren for a month. Capt. Corpening traveled for eight days and a distance of 1,600 miles by plane, truck, and afoot from Cairo, Egypt, to reach the front.

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY ON THE KEREN-ERITREAN AFRICAN FRONT, March 7.—In this rugged mountain sector of the African battlefront, British troops attacking deep in the Italian colony of Eritrea are faced with a difficult military problem. The Italian forces defending the railroad base of Keren have held off the British for a month now with concealed artillery and machine guns hidden in three narrow gorges, flanked by extremely rough mountains 6,000 feet high.

The Italians also have blocked the road leading to Keren and Asmara, the colonial capital, by blasting out the rocky mountainside. The British, however, also benefit from the natural protection of the rocky defiles and carry on a sporadic fire from the small hills to the west, where their guns are located.

Few British Casualties.

The morale and health of the British troops are excellent and there have been very few casualties. British airplanes fly back and forth over Italian territory at will. No Fascist aircraft are seen. The British communication lines are functioning smoothly and there is a great abundance of food and other supplies.

The British equipment is far superior to the Italian material captured at Agordat, which is about 40 miles southwest of Keren. The Italian tanks were easily pierced by antitank fire, and their field pieces were without recoil springs, similar to the guns used in the civil war in the United States. Shell fragments seen on the ground clearly revealed that the Italian ammunition is faulty.

From a vantage point high up on the rough mountain held by the British an excellent panorama of both sides is obtainable. Keren, resting on a plateau, is observed thru a gorge bisecting the considerably higher mountain held by the Italians. The town is some five miles away to the east. Every hour or so shell explosions may be seen dotting the Italian territory, the location depending on the targets of the British guns.

Italians Return Fire.

The shots usually are returned by the Italian artillery, according to informants, but the answering volleys have not been so consistent the last few days. The Italian shells do little

BRITAIN BANS GRAIN SHIPMENT TO FRANCE; BLOCKADE STANDS

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—The British government, blocking a shipment of cereal, has decided against any further relaxation of the blockade on American food supplies for unoccupied France, it was learned today.

An effort by the American Red Cross to include 300 tons of oatmeal in a cargo of evaporated milk, children's clothing, and medicines met with a refusal of British authorities to expand the scope of the existing agreement on French food supplies.

The decision apparently doomed efforts of the French government to have its frozen assets in the United States released for the purchase of wheat here to relieve the shortage.

Gaston Henry-Haye, the French ambassador, described the British attitude as "a dreadful policy" and asked Secretary of State Cordell Hull to intervene.

Soldiers Go on Traffic Duty in New York City

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 7.—The principal question asked of the Irish cop in this war minded city of New York today is whether Hitler has started his invasion of America. It is being asked because khaki-clad soldiers have suddenly put in an appearance at street corners.

They are members of the 518th military police battalion from Fort Jay, Governors Island, with a total strength of 1,100 troops. In batches of 100 the "M. P.'s" are being shot thru a two weeks' course at the police academy in Brooklyn, then stationed at intersections for post graduate work with the regular city policemen.

"Preparing for the emergency" is the police explanation of the project.

Schooled in Traffic Control.

The battalion, made up of both enlisted men and draftees, is being schooled in traffic control, handling of crowds, convoy duties designed to keep the flow of army trucks and equipment moving, the isolation of evidence at the scene of a crime, and other nontechnical phases of wartime police work.

Most of the men have been recruited from the second corps area along the eastern seaboard and will go along with the first army whenever it moves.

Training of the military police is considered only one step in the mental mobilization of the New York citizenry for war. Mayor Fiorello La Guardia is laying out a pretentious "city defense program."

Blackout Plans Reported.

It was learned from a reliable source that La Guardia is preparing for New York City's first blackout in April. As tentatively drawn, the plan contemplates inking out the Hell Gate section on the upper east side, where two large power stations are located.

Two months ago the Brooklyn navy yard tried a blackout, but the performance was something of a flop. Nearby brightly lighted power stations of the Edison company and bridges over the East river only served to make the blacked out area a better target.

Under La Guardia's orders, the fire department is piecing together another plan for protection from the air raids which some people are expecting. The fire department's scheme is elaborate. Its estimated cost is 18 million dollars.

Fire Force to Expand.

The fire department program contemplates a huge expansion, with the regular force increased from 11,000 to 19,000 men and a civilian auxiliary of 200,000 to be formed. Each of the city's 400 fire houses would be augmented by six new substations, manned by the civilians.

Twenty-five hundred mobile pumping units would be purchased and hose footage vastly increased. Meanwhile the firemen are attending classes at the incendiary explosive and war gas school. Manufacturers have been asked to submit bids on 25,000 gas masks.

Another plan under way is the installation of special air conditioning apparatus to blow out poison gas which might collect in the vehicular tunnels under the Hudson river.

JURORS IN SKIDMORE CASE ARE PUT TO BED; DEBATE 11 HOURS

A jury deliberating the fate of William R. Skidmore, accused of evading $505,767 in income taxes for the years 1933 thru 1938, was ordered locked up for the rest of the night by Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan at 12:20 a. m. today. The jury had deliberated almost 11 hours without reporting a verdict. The jurors were taken to a loop hotel to sleep. They are to resume their deliberations at 9 o'clock this morning.

The jury of eight women and four men was given the case at 1:38 p. m. There was no indication as to how its deliberations were proceeding.

Skidmore, facing a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine on each of six counts in the indictment in case of conviction, showed increasing nervousness. Waiting in court before the jurors went to the hotel, he nodded once toward the jury room and said, "All I want to hear is a knock on that door."

In final arguments United States Attorney J. Albert Woll and his assistants, Earle C. Hurley and Paul Plunkett, reiterated the government's contention that Skidmore failed to report more than $500,000 income, most of it received in graft payments from gamblers for police protection. Skidmore's attorney, William Scott Stewart, represented his client as an "honest gambler" who paid his taxes.

Tell How Bioff Got $100,000 from Schenck

New York, March 7 [Special].—Joseph M. Schenck, chairman of the board of the 20th Century-Fox Film corporation, was revealed in federal court testimony today as the source of the $100,000 paid to Willie Bioff, west coast labor leader, after the settlement of a nation-wide strike in 1937 of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employés and Moving Picture Operators.

This was brought out before Judge Grover M. Moscowitz and a jury on an indictment charging Schenck and Joseph H. Moskowitz, Schenck's "$52,000 a year bookkeeper," with conspiring to defraud the government of $412,000 in taxes on Schenck's $2,000,000 income for 1935, 1936, and 1937.

Notes and Checks Identified.

John B. Codd, controler of 20th Century-Fox and Schenck's personal bookkeeper, identified notes, checks, and vouchers covering a purported loan to Bioff in June, 1937, of $100,000 by Arthur Stebbins, Schenck's nephew.

Bioff, a convicted pander, who last year was called back to Chicago to complete a 20 year old unfinished sentence of six months for this crime, is himself under indictment for failing to report the receipt of this $100,000 and stock worth $50,000 in 1937. The affair also is the basis of a perjury indictment against Schenck.

Transaction Described.

Under examination by Assistant United States District Attorney Mattias Correa, Codd testified Schenck borrowed $100,000 from the Bank of America on June 17, 1937, and that this sum was transferred the next day to Schenck's account in the National City bank, New York. The loan, said Codd, was paid on June 24, 1937.

Codd testified the loan was repaid in cash but said there was no record of where the $100,000 came from.

Asked about instructions he received from Schenck in Los Angeles on June 23, 1937, Codd said:

"He told me I was to draw a check for $5,000, payable to Arthur Stebbins; that I was to draw up a note for $95,000 to the Bank of America to be signed by Stebbins; that I was to draw a note for $100,000 to Arthur Stebbins which was to be signed by William Bioff, and that I was to draw a check for $100,000 to William Bioff, to be signed by Stebbins." Codd said he carried out the instructions.

WOMEN VISITORS TO THE SENATE—SOME CONTRASTS

BY MARCIA WINN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—In the midst of Washington's worst blizzard since 1923 women struggled toward Capitol hill tonight to sit in a packed senate gallery and watch the senate kill one by one the amendments to the Roosevelt dictatorship bill.

It was a strange array. Along one side of the gallery sat the front row reserved for the White House or its guests. Here the women were arrayed in mink, and every woman punctuated the voting with the click of her knitting needles. Behind them sat the wives of senators and in a nearby sector, reserved for diplomats, sat a sprinkling of gay young girls.

Some Other Women.

The remaining sections were jammed, with rows of spectators standing in the rear. Here, together with a few men, sat women of manifestly little means. Their clothes were not of the best. Their faces bore the lines of middle age. Their feet were wet from plowing thru the deep snow. Most of them were strangers to Washington.

On the floor of the senate sat a round, smiling little woman dressed all in black, America's only woman senator, Hattie W. Caraway [D., Ark], mother of two sons, both graduates of West Point, both captains in the United States army.

As the amendments died—amendments to prevent another American expeditionary force—there were no feminine voices from the gallery. The only feminine voice heard at any time in the mellow old senate chamber was that of the only woman senator, and she raised it early in each roll call to voice a determinedly Democratic "no" on each amendment.

Makes One Speech.

Once she rose and spoke. She caused what is usually described as a sensation. She spoke before any of the amendments was introduced. When she was thru, there was no sound from the antiwar women in the gallery, but Democratic senators crowded around her in congratulation.

These were her words:

"I want to speak for the mothers who are not afraid. I have two sons in the army, and I think they are much safer if we do not amend the bill than if we do, and so I am standing on the bill as it is."

The senate did not recess for dinner, but half of the mothers in the gallery disappeared for an hour. They walked across three blocks of deep snow to a cheap boarding house where nightly they eat a 40 or 50 cent dinner, their heaviest meal in a day of eating on a maximum of $1 a day. Then they walked back thru the snow.

From Many Areas.

The mothers were from Chicago, from Cleveland, from New York, from Philadelphia, from Detroit, from the plains of Kansas, and the prairie of Iowa. All were mothers of sons, and they came to Washington because they opposed the dictator bill.

"Afraid?" repeated one, in a voice somewhat stunned. "Afraid? I went to see Senator Caraway," she continued slowly. "Another mother and I. She didn't want to see us. That was last week. But she did. I said, 'Mrs. Caraway, you have two sons, I know, and you are going to vote for this bill?" She snapped out six words, 'I have made up my mind,' and showed us to the door."

Senator Caraway's son Paul is an instructor in law at West Point. Her son Forrest is a captain in Alaska.

NORWEGIAN VESSEL UNDER BRITISH FLAG ASHORE IN BLIZZARD

Ocean City, Md., March 7 (AP).—One lone tug heaved in vain on swelling seas and a blinding blizzard today to free an armed Norwegian freighter—flying the British flag—fast aground near here.

The ship, the Olaf Bergh out of Hull, England, to pick up a cargo in Philadelphia, was reported in no immediate danger, but winds forecast to reach gale force smashed menacing surf against her. Coast guardsmen stood by to remove the 28 crewmen if necessary by a breeches buoy from the shore a scant 100 feet away.

They said new efforts to float the 411 foot 5,811 ton vessel probably would await high tide early tomorrow morning. There was danger, they added, that sand might fill around her before then. The ship grounded about 4:30 a. m. today.

Antiwar Bloc Makes Last Ditch Fight.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hiram Johnson.

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Passage of President Roosevelt's war dictatorship bill tomorrow afternoon, without substantial change, was the prospect when the senate adjourned at 8:53 o'clock [Chicago time] tonight after smashing all opposition amendments.

By five overwhelming votes the senate refused to ban the use of American armed forces in the wars of Europe and Asia under powers vested in the President by the dictator bill. The votes were 63 to 28, 56 to 35, 51 to 38, 52 to 39, and 60 to 30.

Rejection of all declarations against a second American expeditionary force deprived opposition leaders of their last hope that the dictator bill could be substantially modified. Administration leaders expressed confidence that it will be passed by the senate tomorrow afternoon, with not more than 30 votes against it. The rout of the opposition was so complete that earlier plans of the antiwar senators to prevent action on the bill until next week were abandoned.

May Forego Conference.

The administration forces, it was indicated, may not even request a conference with the house of representatives for the purpose of eliminating senate amendments if no important change is made in the bill tomorrow. If the house should concur in senate amendments without a conference the bill would go to President Roosevelt early next week.

Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky announced at the close of tonight's session that he will seek an agreement, when the senate meets at 11 a. m. tomorrow, to vote on the bill at a certain hour tomorrow afternoon. The pending business when the senate recessed tonight was an amendment by Senator David I. Walsh [D., Mass.], chairman of the naval affairs committee, to prohibit President Roosevelt from giving away or otherwise disposing of any naval vessel, aircraft, or other equipment, on hand or on order, unless it can be replaced within three months.

Hiram Johnson Amendment.

The most direct test on the issue of forbidding, or by implication authorizing, President Roosevelt to send the armed forces of the United States to fight in foreign wars came on an amendment by Senator Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.], veteran of many historic battles against American involvement in the interminable blood feuds of Europe.

Senator Johnson's amendment, which was rejected by a vote of 56 to 35, provided that except in time of war no funds appropriated by congress could be used to compensate, maintain, supply, or equip any officer or enlisted man of the land forces of the United States employed or used in any place beyond the limits of the western hemisphere, except in the territories and possessions of the United States, or any officer or enlisted man of the naval forces of the United States employed or used in or over any combat area defined by President Roosevelt's proclamations under the neutrality act of 1939.

Makes Stirring Speech.

In a dramatic speech urging senators to keep faith with the American people, Senator Johnson said "the whole question is whether you want to send American boys to fight in Europe's wars."

After reading President Roosevelt's reiterated pledges in the 1940 campaign that American boys would not be sent abroad to fight in foreign wars, Senator Johnson said he was at a disadvantage in attempting to characterize such promises. With supreme contempt, he continued:

"I would be able to characterize thoroly language such as this used by the ordinary man or the ordinary woman. I would be able to excoriate them and subject them to the denunciation which they deserved if they broke their word. But I cannot do that with the President of the United States and I shall not do it. It is

SURVEY REVEALS 45,764 PERSONS WORK FOR STATE

Estimate 14,000 Added by Democrats.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 7 [Special].—An end to years of speculation as to the number of employés on the Illinois state pay roll was reached today, when the auditor's office completed some pioneer work on a mass of records and revealed that the total is almost 46,000.

In February, 23,510 full time and 22,254 part time workers were issued checks for state work. It is impossible to compare this total of 45,764 with an earlier one, because no similar compilation has been made, but old timers say it means that the Democrats, in their eight year occupancy of the statehouse, must have added about 14,000 pay rollers.

Estimates for Previous Years.

Senator Earl B. Searcy [R., Springfield], who has been a member of the legislature for 20 years, said that during the high point of the Len Small administration, there were never more than 20,000 pay rollers, and used the figure of 32,000 as the high for Gov. Louis L. Emmerson's time, including both part time and full time employés.

Determining just how much salary the 45,764 pay rollers draw is the next job before the auditor's office, but an annual total of at least $40,000,000 is likely to emerge from the compilations.

It is not possible to compare the February pay roll figure with, say, one for February, 1940—an election year. The search would end in front of a gigantic ledger more than a foot thick and containing thousands of pages of names, home counties and departments, classified by counties but untotaled. Totaling it would be a week's work.

Consider Monthly Statements.

The overstuffed ledger complies with the law, but agitation has been started for a new law to require monthly statements from elective officers, department and division heads on the number of their pay rollers, and the salary each draws. This would make it possible to watch the periodic increase or decline of state employment.

However, the information revealed today was interesting since it was for the first time on public display.

Of the 23,510 full time employés, all but about 1,500 are employed in the 10 code departments and commissions directly under the governor.

Totals in Code Departments.

The code department employés are distributed as follows:

Registration and education, 1,249; mines and minerals, 64; public works and buildings, 2,758; finance, 1,125; insurance, 172; labor, 2,674; conservation, 102; public welfare, 8,747; agriculture, 591; health, 597.

The 22,254 part time employés are all in the division of highways, department of public works and buildings, and are road workers—clearing snow in the winter, and cutting grass, landscaping and performing other maintenance work in the summer.

G. O. P. SLASHES $6,000,000 OFF INDIANA BUDGET

Indianapolis, Ind., March 7 [Special].—Republican members of the Indiana house today lopped about $6,000,000 off two budget bills before passing one and moving the other toward an expected approval.

By a vote of 84 to 1 the house passed a bill appropriating funds for state departments, boards and commissions for the next two years after reducing it from $26,186,516 to $24,238,550.

The other bill would appropriate $15,657,000 to match federal funds for various departments maintained jointly by state and federal money. This proposed expense was reduced from an original demand of $19,713,000.

CAMPAIGN QUIZ A DUD, ASSERTS SENATOR TOBEY

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] protested today that the special senate committee appointed to police the national election "squeezed a few wrists when we should have delivered some jarring socks to the jaw."

The senator commented on the five man committee's report today criticizing expenditure of "enormous sums of money" in the last Presidential campaign and recommending a 10 point program of political reform to congress.

"We had a chance to make a thorogoing investigation and recommended some specific legislation," Tobey said. "I'm afraid we muffed it."

The committee majority reported that more than $22,000,000 admittedly was spent in the 1940 federal elections and concluded that "provisions of the Hatch act have been largely ineffective and that legislative changes are necessary."

Senator Tobey in minority reports asked for a congressional investigation of Frank Hague, Jersey City, N. J., mayor and Democratic leader, and criticized $300,000 in loans to state Democratic committees by R. J. Reynolds, wealthy North Carolinian, who since the election has been made treasurer of the Democratic National committee.

UNION PRESIDENT ADMITS REDS IN SHIP RADIO FIELD

But Opposes Bill Giving Masters More Power.

Washington, D. C., March 7 [Special].—The presence of many communists and fellow travelers in the maritime radio field was admitted by Harry Lundeberg, president of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, A. F. of L., today before the house merchant marine committee.

Lundeberg appeared in opposition to a bill sponsored by Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] to outlaw union hiring halls and give ship masters authority to hire and discharge seamen. The bill also would give ship masters authority to prohibit dissemination on shipboard of any literature they considered subversive.

As a substitute for the proposed law, Lundeberg recommended that seamen's certificates be automatically revoked by any adherence to a doctrine hostile to the United States or its form of government.

He told the committee that seamen's licenses can be revoked for fighting or drunkenness on board ship, "so why shouldn't these people who peddle Joe Stalin and Hitler" be ejected from the industry.

Sees Union Responsibility.

He said he had no fear that the grant of such power to the bureau of marine inspection, in charge of certification of seamen, would be used by the bureau to fight unions. He added, however, that maritime labor unions have a responsibility to remove subversion within its own ranks and that "the seamen don't want the government to do the job."

"We firmly believe," Lundeberg asserted, "that under provisions of this bill the subversive elements will still be sailing ships and that bona fide and competent union seamen will be blacklisted. In the long run our unions will lose their effectiveness and decay into government controled company unions.

"The unions and seamen I represent are bitterly opposed to anyone following or peddling any of Joe Stalin's and Adolf Hitler's phony doctrines here in the United States or elsewhere. We are probably more in favor of getting rid of these disrupters than anyone else in the country.

Assails Dictator Régimes.

"We say this—that any one advocating and adhering to Stalin's or Hitler's rotten systems should get out of here and stay out. We know thru bitter experience that they have nothing but misery to sell us."

The bill was also opposed by a C. I. O. representative, William L. Stanard, general counsel of the National Maritime union. He termed the measure "strictly an anticollective bargaining bill aimed at destroying seamen's unions."

TELLS ATTEMPT TO SHOW LINCOLN AS RED PROPHET

Ex-Communist Names Fellow Teachers.

New York, March 7 [Special].—Purported plans of communists to revamp American history were told to the joint legislative committee investigation of subversive activities in New York schools, as a score more of the faculty of the College of the City of New York were named as reds. This lifted to 50 the number named as communist party members who have taught or are teaching at the city's largest tax supported college. The appropriation for the fiscal year is $3,850,529.

The committee also heard testimony charging that Maxwell Weisman, a biology teacher, tried to inoculate children with communist doctrines while acting as a counselor at a boys' camp. This charge came from Sam I. Goldberg, who said his son was at the camp.

William M. Canning, a history instructor at the college who resigned from the communist party late in 1938, was the principal witness, however. Continuing his story begun yesterday, he added more names to the list of communists on the faculty.

Drag Lincoln into Communism.

He swore that a group of history teachers gathered in the office of Alexander Trachtenberg, president of International Publisher, to "reconsider the pattern of American history" with the object of reshaping it to prove that communism is 20th century Americanism.

Abraham Lincoln, they were to try to prove, forecast communism in this country, he added, and all the participants in the conference received assignments. Only one book, however, was published. It dealt with revolts by slaves before the civil war.

Canning said that he was a participant in the conference, which included Philip and Jack Foner of City college; Henry Klein and Prof. Herbert M. Morris of Brooklyn college, and Mrs. Anna Rochester and Henry Aptheker, whose academic affiliations were not made clear.

Put Red Tinge on Franklin.

Prof. Morris already had written one book, "Jack Hardy, First American Revolutionist," brought out under the pen name of Richard Enmale. Canning noted that the pseudonym was obtained by taking the two first letters from the names of Engle, Marx, and Lenin. Canning said this was to put a red tinge on Benjamin Franklin.

Canning also testified that the communist factions in the teachers union met before the meeting to plan their strategy. He said that they were under instruction in meetings to follow the leadership of John Kenneth Ackley, city college registrar; Morris U. Schappes, Arthur Shukatoff and Arthur R. Braunlich Jr., who had been named as communists in yesterday's testimony by Canning.

New Names Listed.

The new names were headed by Prof. Alexander Lehrman of the chemistry department and associate Prof. Eugene Stein of the registrar's office. Others included Sylvia Elfenbein, secretary to the dean of women; Samuel Stewart, former Olympic swordsman, and Lloyd Motz, physics instructor, who was in charge of the astronomical observatory during the summer.

With one exception, Canning said, all party members had to belong either to local 5 or 537 of the Teachers union, the exception being David S. Nathan, mathematics instructor and formerly of the institute of advanced study at Princeton. Nathan was excused, he testified, because of "his excessive fear of being exposed as a communist."

The American federation of teachers executive committee has recommended expulsion of the locals, their red taint being one of the reasons advanced for this action.

DELAWARE REPEALS SUNDAY BLUE LAWS, BUT KEEPS DANCE BAN

Dover, Del., March 7 (AP).—A bill repealing Delaware's ancient blue laws, under which nearly 500 persons were arrested last Sunday, was adopted by the legislature tonight. The measure was sent immediately to Gov. Walter W. Bacon.

The 188 year old regulations prohibited all "wordly employment" on Sundays and permitted only work of necessity.

The repealer gives local municipalities the privilege of regulating Sunday activities as they desire, but expressly forbids horse racing, public auctions, dances, theatricals, and motion pictures outside the limits of any incorporated city or town.

ASKS SEARCH FOR GIRL, 16.

Mrs. Anna Wilson of 3136 West 16th street appealed to police last night to search for her daughter, Gladys, 16, who disappeared Monday while on the way to work. Mrs. Wilson told police she feared the girl may have been kidnaped.

BLAME VOTERS IN 94% OF VOIDED BALLOT CASES

The board of election commissioners released a report yesterday showing that in 24,460 cases where applications for ballots in last November's Presidential election were marked "void" or "spoiled," 94.49 per cent of the time it was the voter's fault.

Figures, based on a survey in progress since November, showed that 13,150 voters went to the wrong polling place and that 98 per cent of these later voted from their proper places. Other reasons why ballots were denied, and the number found were:

No record of registration	2,955
Failure to answer suspect notice	4,187
Voter's error in registration	62
Voter's error in address change	363
Defects in naturalization records	274
Office errors	1,169

The report said that many persons who were refused the right to vote failed to register.

LOESCH ASSAILS REPORT AGAINST PAROLE REFORM

Favors Ward-Rennick Bill Before Legislature.

BY GEORGE WRIGHT.

Attorney Frank J. Loesch, veteran crime fighter and president emeritus of the Chicago Crime commission, yesterday announced his unqualified support of the Ward-Rennick parole reform bill now before the legislature. He was one of the original group which sponsored parole reform measures because of the recurring parole scandals.

Loesch's comments were occasioned by an unsigned bulletin circulated yesterday on crime commission stationery attacking the bill and its backers.

Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the commission, who is under treatment at the Augustana hospital, said last night that he was the author of the anti-Ward-Rennick report and that it had been "unanimously approved" by about 20 members of the body at a meeting late in January.

How Many at Meeting?

Of 15 crime commission members reached last night, only four said they attended the meeting that approved the bulletin. Of these, three were against the bill and one noncommittal. Of the other 11, six were opposed to the bill, one for it and four noncommittal.

Loesch was a member of the committee made up of such outstanding crime fighters as State's Attorney Thomas J. Courtney, Circuit Judge John Prystalski, Chief of Detectives John L. Sullivan, who drew the bill which provides for curtailing the parole board powers by allowing judges to fix a minimum and maximum sentence within the present indeterminate sentence law.

"I certainly am in favor of the Ward-Rennick bill," said Loesch when he heard of the anonymous bulletin. "The bill provides for reform where it is needed, in the parole board. That is the place to start.

Calls Present Law a Failure.

"The group fighting the bill are sentimentalists. The present parole law has proved a failure, and has not fulfilled the promises that it would reform criminals and turn them back into civil life as honest men. The federal system of definite sentences has been working well for 150 years and there is no reason why Illinois should not have the same system."

Loesch explained that under the proposed reform measure the responsibility for proper sentencing of criminals will belong to the judges of the criminal courts. Their actions, he said, will be under constant scrutiny of the press, crime commission observers, and the public. Under the present system the parole board in secret meeting decides when a convict has served enough time.

The Ward-Rennick bill, Loesch said, is sponsored by men who have had actual experience in the courts in dealing with criminals. Such outstanding judges as Cornelius A. Harrington, Daniel A. Trude, Joseph Sabath, James F. Fardy, Michael L. McKinley, and the entire group of judges now serving in the Criminal court have indorsed the bill.

JUDGE OFFERS TO PULL SWITCH AT EXECUTION

New York, March 7 (AP).—George Joseph Cvek, 23 year old wanderer whom Mayor Fiorello La Guardia called a "hitch-hiking ripper," sullenly heard Magistrate Michael Ford offer today to "pull the switch" if Cvek was convicted of murder and sentenced to die for the strangulation of a Bronx housewife.

The magistrate gave vent to his wrath when Cvek appeared for arraignment on a charge of suspicion of homicide in the death a month ago of Mrs. Catherine G. Pappas. Ford dismissed the charge so that Cvek could be rearrested on a first degree murder indictment. Then he turned upon the prisoner whom District Attorney Samuel J. Foley said had acknowledged a career of rape and robbery upon a score of women.

"Well, Cvek," the magistrate said, "you've started on your way, and after District Attorney Foley gets thru with you and you are transferred to Sing Sing . . . tell the warden that if he is short handed and needs somebody to pull the switch, send for me and I'll gladly do it."

The mayor's attack upon Cvek came when three detectives who captured Cvek were promoted.

VOTE TRUE BILLS AGAINST SEVEN 'STRIP' BANDITS

Six robbery true bills were reported voted yesterday by the grand jury against the gang of young bandits who stripped their victims after holding them up. Total bonds of $460,000 were set. The gang was led by Ray Conklin, 19 years old, who boasted that he served three terms at the St. Charles School for Boys. Others in the gang were Philip Crylen, 18, whom Conklin met at St. Charles; John Scialabba, 20; Robert Perryman, 19; Ray Bills, 21; Angelo Capinegro, 19, and Nick Cantavespi, 18.

TALLULAH BANKHEAD.

Winston Salem, N. C., March 7 (AP).—Tullulah Bankhead, the actress, announced tonight that after "long and conscientious thought" she and her actor husband, John Emery, "have agreed to separate with mutual understanding on both our parts."

The daughter of the late speaker of the house of representatives, William B. Bankhead, said in a statement:

"There is no third party involved on either side. We choose rather to put the blame on that 'old debbil' career which thru force of circumstances has separated us for the better part of our marriage. This will in no way affect our mutual esteem and great friendship for each other."

Miss Bankhead and Emery were married Aug. 31, 1937, in Jasper, Ala., the first marriage for each. She now is touring in "The Little Foxes," a play of her native south. Emery is in New York.

CLEAR JEWELER ON CONFIDENCE GAME CHARGE

Chief Justice James F. Fardy of the Criminal court dismissed a confidence game charge yesterday against Max Levy, 55 years old, a jeweler at 5 North Wabash avenue, when the state announced that Levy had been mistakenly identified.

His photograph at the detective bureau had been identified by Jack Strull, 1001 North Western avenue, a delicatessen store owner, as one of three men who persuaded him on Dec. 17 to put up $2,300 in a deal to purchase "gold smuggled out of Europe." The "gold" turned out to be brass plates.

On the basis of the photograph identification Levy, who was in Miami Beach, Fla., was indicted. Levy immediately posted bond, protested his innocence, and yesterday flew to Chicago. Then it was arranged for Levy to walk into the delicatessen store unannounced. Strull then said Levy was not one of the confidence men.

Levy was convicted in 1931 of receiving stolen property and served 15 months in prison.

2 BURGLARS GET 2D TERMS AFTER 5 HOUR PAROLE

Henry Fricke, 20 years old, and Norman Krabenhoeft, 22, both of Gary, were freed on parole yesterday from Pontiac reformatory. Five hours later Judge Charles D. Page in Geneva sentenced them to one year to life for burglary.

The two, with Fred Meuser of Fresno, Cal., looted homes in northern Illinois while the owners were on vacation. Meuser was killed in a Rockford burglary in August, 1939, and Fricke and Krabenhoeft were sentenced to 1 to 10 years in prison.

When they were sentenced Chief Joseph Huber of Elgin sent warrants to Rockford police in an effort to have the two held for Kane county officials on their release. Huber said Rockford police ignored the warrants, however. He learned the two were to be paroled yesterday, and when they were released from prison they were taken to Geneva.

Continue Cases of 9 Seized in Night Club Gaming Raids

Judge Joseph J. Drucker of South State Street court yesterday continued until March 21 charges against nine men arrested early Thursday when detectives from Police Commissioner Allman's office raided the gambling casinos in the Colony club, 744 Rush street, and its neighbor, the Club Alabam at No. 747.

PUT GOVERNMENT IN SAFER HANDS, GREEN DEMANDS

Public's Faith Is Waning, Club Is Warned.

Indianapolis, Ind., March 7 [Special].—A demand that government be returned to the people so that it "shall be in safer and freer hands" was expressed by Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois in a speech here tonight.

The G. O. P. executive addressed 700 members of the Columbia club, independent Republican organization, who attended the club's 52d annual beefsteak dinner.

Gov. Green said that the application of sound business principles is needed to bolster public faith in government. The government is on trial here, as it is in other countries, with the people watching closely to see whether the government will meet their needs, he said.

Warns of Expenditures.

Altho the people are ready to accept any sacrifices for the nation's military preparedness, Green observed, it is the obligation of state and federal governments to keep expenditures within their incomes.

"It is the history of our nation that citizenship has given all to government," he told his audience. "Now is the time that government must settle the moral debt upon which its very existence is built and start paying off that obligation. Now is the time that government must return government to citizenship, so that it shall be in safer and freer hands.

"The real battlefront of freedom is not in the nation's capital, but in the states, the counties, the cities and the villages in which our people meet their problems and desire to govern themselves.

Honesty Called Imperative.

"The processes of government must be kept close to the people so that they may feel their personal responsibility in its problems. It is imperative that state and local administrations be placed and kept upon the highest plane of efficiency, economy, and honesty lest their duties and rights be absorbed by the power of a central government.

"There is a definite way to meet and solve government problems—whether it be national or state—and that is to conduct and administer government for the common welfare. That is by applying the sound business principle of keeping expenditures within assured revenue—in other words, by balancing the budget.

"In that way only can we make sure that we do not overburden our people, consume their earnings, and destroy their courage by excessive taxation."

GETS 199 YEARS FOR MURDER OF HIS BENEFACTOR

Walter Meyer, 37 years old, who killed the woman who befriended him, was sentenced yesterday to 199 years in prison after he was found guilty of murder in a bench trial before Judge Julius Miner in Criminal court.

Meyer, a neighborhood handyman, had been given food and shelter by Mrs. Gladys McKinney, 54, of 312 East 29th street. On Jan. 31 she asked him to fix the living room fireplace. Meyer did a poor job and Mrs. McKinney criticized him. As she knelt on the hearth, Meyer drew a pistol, and shot and killed her.

After ransacking the house, and taking clothing and jewelry, Meyer fled in his benefactor's automobile. He was arrested several hours later while trying to sell the pistol to a tavern keeper.

MANAGER SEIZED IN RAID ON NORTH SIDE HANDBOOK

Sergt. Frank O'Sullivan of Police Commissioner Allman's office yesterday led a raid on a handbook at 751 Rush street and arrested Charles Rosenberg, charged with being the manager of the handbook. The place, on the second floor, is owned by Lawrence [Dago] Mangano, former Capone lieutenant long ago proclaimed a public enemy.

Wins Son Back

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Mrs. Grace Druggan as she appeared in court yesterday.

Terry Druggan, prohibition era beer baron, yesterday returned his son, Terrence Jr., 3 years old, to the custody of his wife, Grace, 28, after Judge Cornelius J. Harrington threatened to hold Druggan in contempt of court and said he would send sheriff's deputies to Druggan's home in Prairie View, Lake county, to seize the boy.

Mrs. Druggan's attorney, Raymond Stern, said Druggan violated a custody agreement in effect since she filed suit for divorce on the ground of cruelty last Oct. 28. Druggan was to have the boy on week-ends, but refused to give him up last week-end, Stern charged. The occasion was a hearing on Druggan's petition challenging the Circuit court's jurisdiction in the divorce case. He asserted both he and his wife live in Lake county, and that the alleged acts of cruelty occurred there.

Hearing on Druggan's petition was continued until today, when Judge Harrington will decide when Druggan may visit his son. Druggan was not in court yesterday. His attorney, S. D. Tannembaum, said he was ill.

Peek at Walkathon Costs 2 Policemen a Day's Pay

Policeman John P. Daley and John D. Bosquette of the 1st district were suspended for one day without pay yesterday by Commissioner Allman. They were charged with lounging on duty—or, more specifically, leaving their beats Feb. 25 and Feb. 21, respectively, to watch the girls dancing in a walkathon.

BOARD APPROVES 182 PAROLE PLEAS AND REFUSES 216

The state parole board granted 182 parole applications and rejected 216 during February, it was announced yesterday. The average time served by those granted freedom was five years, nine months and 15 days.

Among those paroled was Theodore Lauchis, now 48 years old, who served 20 years and four months of a life sentence imposed in Cook county in 19[illegible] for the murder of Joseph Demanus in a love triangle. Two other lifers, Frank Cooney of Cook county, who served 22 years and nine months, and William Wrolen of Perry county, who served 21 years, also were freed.

Parole board subcommittees this month are considering the appeals of several hundred other convicts. Among them is Ralph Trimble, who was sentenced to one year to life for robbery in 1932 after he had first been placed on probation by Judge James J. Kelly, along with two other bandits. The probation action caused such a storm of protest, that the probation orders were rescinded.

Also seeking parole are George [Red] Walsh and Louis McHugh, south side youths, who were sentenced to 1 to 10 years in March, 1939, for setting fire to the old Brownell school; Joseph F. Kula, a lawyer, who was sentenced in 1937 to 1 to 10 years for embezzlement, and George L. Trier, who was sentenced in 1938 to 1 to 10 years for swingling three women.

BEG YOUR PARDON

A news item printed Thursday, relating to a meeting of the Political Science club at the University of Chicago, stated that Prof. Quincy Wright, one of the speakers, specified that his remarks be not reported in the press. Robert Lockner, secretary of the club, said yesterday that the no reporting rule was the club's and not Prof. Wright's.

PEACE PARLEYS END; HARVESTER STRIKES GO ON

A. F. of L. Union Asks for Plant Election.

Washington, D. C., March 7 [Special].—Negotiations for a settlement of strikes that the Farm Equipment Workers Organizing committee [C. I. O.] has called in four plants of the International Harvester company were definitely broken off here tonight.

John R. Steelman, chief of the federal labor conciliation service, said that altho some points had been agreed on the conferees were still so far apart that further meetings would be fruitless at this time. He brought the company and union representatives together on Monday. One 27 hour conference, beginning on Wednesday and carrying thru to Thursday afternoon, failed to bring any weakening by either side.

The plants involved are the McCormick and tractor workers in Chicago and the factories at Richmond, Ind., and Rock Falls, Ill. Some of the strikes have gone on for weeks and have deprived workers of wages running well above a million and a half dollars.

ASKS PLANT ELECTION

Representatives of the newly formed American Federation of Labor union at the McCormick works of International Harvester company filed a petition yesterday in Chicago with the National Labor Relations board asking certification as sole bargaining agent for the plant.

The petition was handed to Isaiah S. Dorfman, acting regional director of NLRB. Harry O'Reilly, regional federation organizer, said the presentation automatically would prevent the department of labor from ruling that the Farm Equipment Workers Organizing committee [C. I. O.] represents the whole body of workers at McCormick, where a strike is now in progress.

Wants Election at Once.

Under normal procedure the NLRB would within a few days call a conference of FEWOC and A. F. of L. representatives to determine whether both are willing to have a plant election. In the event of agreement on the point, O'Reilly said, the election could be held in the next 10 days.

"We want that election at once," he asserted. "Our object is to get the workers back on the job, earning wages and aiding national defense. We know we have a majority. The C. I. O. claims one. There's only one way to decide officially."

Should the conferees disagree the matter would be the subject of a hearing before an NLRB examiner and a decision on the holding of an election might not be reached for months. Recently the FEWOC announced it opposed the delays that an election would require and claimed the right to bargain for all McCormick workers.

Willing to Go Back to Work.

The A. F. of L. union. at a meeting Thursday, announced that its members were willing to go back to work, despite C. I. O. opposition, if the company would reopen the McCormick plant.

Hundreds of the strikers at McCormick and tractor works plants yesterday received "extra compensation" checks from the company. The distribution was made in line with a policy of the corporation to pay as a bonus to workers 25 per cent of all earnings over $3 a share. The extra compensation, representing 1940 earnings, totaled $1,384,047, and all employés with the firm three years or more were to receive from it 2.1 per cent of their 1940 earnings.

Bodies of 2 Missing Boys Taken from Calumet River

The bodies of two pupils at the Coolidge school, in Phoenix, adjoining Harvey in southern Cook county, were recovered yesterday from the Little Calumet river nearby. The victims, both 13 years old, were Fred Yearwood, 15127 5th avenue, and Reginald Brazier, colored, of 15114 6th avenue, both of Phoenix. They had been missing since Feb. 12, when they were seen playing on the frozen river.

INJURED BY HORSE; DIES.

Charles Davis, 32 years old, died yesterday in Sherman hospital, Elgin, of injuries suffered Monday when a horse he was leading bolted on his farm near Hampshire, Kane county.

PRESIDENT TELLS PLAN FOR STRIKE MEDIATION BOARD

Also Seeks Production Problem Handling.

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—President Roosevelt disclosed today that he is considering establishment of a special board not only to mediate strikes but to consider production problems as well.

The President told his press conference that while he could only generalize about the board at this time, it would not be like the Taft-Walsh board of the world war, which handled labor problems thru worker-employer coöperation effort. It might have, he said, a broader field.

At the same time Mr. Roosevelt expressed disapproval of jurisdictional strikes, which in some instances, including the C. I. O.-A. F. of L. dispute at the army's project at Wright field, Dayton, O., have tied up the nation's preparedness program.

Other Labor Developments.

Other developments on the nation's labor front today follow:

EDGEWATER, N. J.—C. I. O. employés at the Edgewater plant of the Aluminum Company of America voted to walk out unless the firm meets wage demands. The union said the vote was 1,641 to 65. There are 3,000 employed there exclusively on armaments production, chiefly on aluminum needed in aircraft manufacture. The workers seek a wage increase of 10 cents an hour.

DETROIT, Mich.—The C. I. O. called a strike at the Detroit plant of the Federal Motor Truck company, which has 5 million dollars' worth of military orders. The plant closed when the day shift among the 600 workers walked out. Wage increases, vacation allowances, and pay for drafted men, were at issue.

Steel Proposal Rejected.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—Leaders of C. I. O. locals in the United States Steel corporation voted today to reject a proposal by the management to increase the minimum base wage 2½ cents an hour and adopted a program calling for a 10 cents an hour increase. C. I. O. President Philip Murray said the steel corporation was being informed of the decision and that the 150 delegates convened by his call likely would decide tomorrow whether a formal notification of desire to change their contract would be served on the company.

MOLINE, Ill.—The A. F. of L. won a victory today when striking employés of the Moline Iron Works voted to abandon their inactive C. I. O. unit and affiliate with the A. F. of L. The three plants of the company, employing a total of about 600 men, were closed today after a strike which started yesterday. Company officials said the strike halted production on several armaments orders. Members of the C. I. O. unit agreed to abide by the results of the vote. The strikers ask a 10 cents an hour wage boost.

NEW YORK—Employés of the Fifth Avenue Coach company and the New York City Omnibus corporation, which reportedly carry 875,000 passengers daily, voted tonight to strike on Monday. The lines operate chiefly in Manhattan. More than 3,000 employés are involved.

DEFICIENCY MEASURE OF 188 MILLION WINS APPROVAL IN HOUSE

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—The house passed and sent to the senate today a $188,863,963 deficiency appropriation which proponents said represented preparedness "insurance" items.

Antisubversive provisions, offered by representatives Clifton A. Woodrum [D., Va.] and Hamilton Fish [R., N. Y.], were written into the bill prior to passage.

In addition to funds for housing and apprentice training programs the bill carried $10,510,000 to expedite installation of protective devices for the Panama canal, $10,096,701 for construction of six coast guard cutters and to provide antimagnetic mine equipment and minesweeping gear, and $975,000 for 700 additional FBI agents.

A total of $75,000,000 was included to liquidate contracts for housing and $22,500,000 to continue the National Youth administration.

The antisubversive provisions barred use of any part of a $600,000 RFC item to pay communists, bund members or any others "seeking to undermine the nation's defense and to overthrow our republican form of government."

C. I. O. TO CEASE PICKETING DRIVE IN PACKINGTOWN

Frank McCarty, district director of the Packinghouse Workers' Organizing committee [C. I. O.], which has been picketing the entrances to the stockyards for three days in an effort to force workers to join the union and pay dues, said yesterday that the campaign had been a success and the pickets would not be on the job today.

The union had announced that no one without a paid up card would be allowed to work in the packing house production and maintenance departments.

STRIKER HUNTED IN SLUGGING OF WINDOW TRIMMER

Police were searching last night for a striking union picket as the result of the slugging yesterday morning of Wayne Munson, 6239 Evans avenue, a window trimmer employed at the Wieboldt department store at 63d and Green streets.

This store and four other Wieboldt stores are being picketed by 33 members of local 41 of the Window Decorators, Trimmers, and Display Men's union [A. F. of L.], who were on strike Jan. 31 for higher wages.

Munson told police his assailant was Joseph Slovick, also known as Sloviks, a striker, and got a warrant charging Slovick with disorderly conduct. Police said Slovick was on picket duty yesterday when Munson reported for work. Slovick called Munson a scab, and struck him, Munson told police later. Munson fought back. Four other pickets ran up, but did not join the fight.

Company officials declined to discuss the attack or the strike. Richard Rochester, secretary-treasurer of the union, and John Mahoney, business agent, denied the strike figured in the slugging.

SENATE REJECTS PROPOSAL FOR BRIDGES OUSTER

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—The senate rejected today a proposal by Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] calling for the deportation of Harry Bridges, west coast labor leader. Reynolds had offered the proposal as an amendment to H. R. 1776 [the dictator bill].

He said he had been "promised" last year, when he withdrew an amendment to another bill, that Bridges would be out of the country in 30 days, "but he is still here."

STORM IN HOUSE OVER SCHEME TO MOBILIZE WOMEN

'Deadly Parallel' with Nazi System Is Seen.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 7.—The reported plan for a nation-wide volunteer mobilization of women for home defense elicited a fiery debate today in the house of representatives.

Representative Everett M. Dirksen [R., Ill.] touched off the spark by citing published reports that the plan was under consideration by the administration and terming it a deadly parallel with Nazi Germany, where 30 million women are mobilized for "social defense."

Dirksen contended that American women do not need to be dragooned into service, at which Mrs. Mary T. Norton [D., N. J.] jumped up to say women are "just as willing and ready to do their part as men are." She said women have requested that they be mobilized.

"I'll concede that women are willing to do their part," Dirksen replied, "but no woman of my district has asked to be mobilized in a program of this kind."

Mrs. Kerr Gives Hint of It.

Several weeks ago, Dirksen told the house, Mrs. Florence Kerr, deputy WPA commissioner, hinted of a national social defense program. This was shortly after a secret White House meeting of 50 or 75 official women of Washington at which the plan first was discussed. Later President Roosevelt divulged tidbits from it.

"I had no idea there would emanate from the White House such a program and that it would be given official sanction," he said.

"What is happening in Germany today? They have a social dictator of womanhood. How deadly is the parallel? The Nazi social dictator has life and death power over the comings and goings of women in that country today.

"They have a battalion of spies, 50,000 strong, and they call them social wardens. With this program of social defense, are we to have a battalion of social wardens, 50 or 100 thousand strong, to enter the homes of America to tell the wives and mothers and sisters how to cook and what to cook, how many children shall be born into a family, and what measures should be taken for stimulation or curtailment of the birth rate?

A Draft for Women?

"This is a very disturbing thing, and after it is launched a while, will it then be that we will have a selective service for the women of America?

"Who is prepared to say how far this is going? After lend-lease, what?"

In detailing the context of the volunteer home defense plan prepared at the President's request by Mrs. Kerr, Dirksen commented that he could make "a cynical and amusing" speech at certain of the "defense duties" suggested for women.

Representative John W. MacCormack [D., Mass.] then leaped to the floor with a shout:

"Every one knows that there is no basis for such statements! It's a wild rumor."

Mrs. Norton, often an administration spokesman, was on her feet by this time, demanding to "tell this gentleman [Dirksen] how wrong he is." She confirmed the secret White House meeting of official women with Mrs. Roosevelt with "That is true."

"There never was any thought to mobilize or demand service," she said. "It was purely a voluntary contribution and one which Mrs. Roosevelt and the rest of us were most anxious to offer.

"There are many functions women can do better than men, and we want to be prepared to do our part in the same spirit as the men of America."

Finland and Germany Sign $74,000,000 Trade Agreement

BY DONALD DAY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, March 7.—Finland's economic position promises to be greatly improved, according to the foreign office, thru a supplementary trade agreement with Germany signed today by Foreign Minister Rolf Johan Witting and the German negotiators. The trade turnover for the next 12 months is expected to exceed the stipulated amount of 3 billion 700 million finnmarks, or $74,000,000.

Eighty per cent of Finland's exports to Germany will consist of wood products, paper, cellulose, and lumber. Germany will supply 1,200,000 tons of coal, 120,000 tons of coke, and 55,000 tons of nitrogen and other fertilizers, which are urgently needed.

Nazis Don't Ask Food.

Finnish delegates said the Germans had not suggested that Finland export dairy products or foodstuffs. Instead they agreed to supply Finland with 5,000 tons of sugar immediately. This will cover one month's ration for the entire population. They said it is possible that next summer Finland may supply a small quantity of fresh fish and game birds, but no other foodstuffs will be exported.

Coming at a time when Finland is finding it difficult to realize on its trade agreement with Russia, and cut off from normal markets, the new agreement covers 50 per cent of Finland's exports in normal years and is 25 per cent larger than total exports last year.

Finland recently concluded negotiations with France for a trade treaty which is now being prepared. France wishes to buy large quantities of cellulose and paper and Finland hopes to obtain French colonial goods. The turnover will amount to 500,000,000 francs [about $10,000,000], provided the French and Finnish governments can obtain British permission to ship their goods by sea. Similar treaties are being negotiated with Belgium and Holland, but in these cases clearing will be made thru Berlin.

These trade agreements do not solve Finland's chief problem, which is how to obtain fats and grain from abroad. The British blockade and the refusal of the British authorities at New York to issue navicerts to enable Finland to transport foodstuffs already purchased in the United States to Petsamo have held up such products.

MINISTER GROUP URGES BILL FOR WAR ENTRY VOTE

The Rev. Charles F. Boss Jr., secretary of the Ministers' No War committee, which has been active in enlisting the clergy in the fight against the dictator bill, sent a telegram last night to Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] asking legislation for a referendum before a declaration of war could be issued. He took this action after reports from Washington, D. C., told of the defeat of attempts to amend the bill and of its imminent passage. The telegram said:

"Recommend immediate introduction in senate of bill making mandatory an advisory referendum vote of United States citizens before nation could enter war in Europe or Asia. If Gallup poll is accurate and dependable, 88 per cent of the people will vote against America's entry in foreign wars. Let antiwar senators carry the issue into every state in the Union."

The Rev. Mr. Boss said letters from clergymen opposed to the bill still are being received at the rate of 100 a day at the committee's offices at 740 Rush street.

ST. LOUIS MAYOR IS NOMINATED FOR THIRD TERM

St. Louis, Mo., March 7 (AP).—Democratic Mayor Bernard F. Dickmann was renominated today to his third four-year term over Lee Meriwether, retired attorney. Returns from 475 precincts of 785 gave Dickmann 40,000 and Meriwether 6,342. A third candidate received 1,921 votes.

William E. Buder, attorney, and William Dee Becker, former judge of the St. Louis Court of Appeals, were running neck and neck for the Republican nomination. Returns from 475 precincts of 785 gave Becker 24,156 and Buder 22,294. Two other candidates polled fewer than 8,000 votes between them.

The winner will meet Dickmann in the April 1 election.

BRITISH LEADERS ASSAIL RAILROAD AND SHIP MUDDLE

Charge Red Tape Retards Nation's War Effort.

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—Leaders of Great Britain's railroads and shipping united today in criticizing government red tape and muddling as responsible for delaying the country's war effort.

Lord Stamp. [Acme Photo:]

Lord Stamp, chairman of the London, Midland, and Scottish railroad, who only recently gave up his post as chief economic adviser to the government, denounced the "nonsensical" demands made on the railroads by government departments.

Presiding at the annual meeting of his road, Stamp cited cases in which he said "several government departments, unbeknown to each other, had made simultaneous demands on a particular track to the extent of three times its capacity."

Fear of Inflation.

This kind of muddling, he declared, "ought to be impossible."

Sir Ronald Matthews, chairman of the London Northeastern railroad, attacked the government from a new angle, demanding immediate pegging of both wages and prices to prevent inflation. Matthews, also addressing the annual meeting of his road, referred to the "growing anxiety thruout the country regarding the drift toward inflation."

Men of Ability "Side Tracked."

Sir W. Reardon Smith, who controls one of the biggest fleets of cargo ships in Great Britain, charged that government red tape and neglect had tightened a stranglehold on the shipping industry at one of the most critical periods in British history.

Smith told the Bristol Channel Ship Owners' association that "the practical shipping men of ability and experience have been side tracked by civil servants."

Seattle Greets Its First Blackout Like a Holiday

Seattle, Wash., March 7 (AP).—Seattle got its first taste of a blackout tonight and the city's 400,000 residents greeted the occasion like a holiday. To aerial observers the darkness of the city appeared almost total but people in the downtown area spotted a few hotel windows where lights still gleamed. It was a moonlight night and in the streets with the city's lights blotted out, lamp posts stood out like lonely wartime sentinels.

NAZI PAPER SAYS U. S. BADE SERBS TO SHUN THE AXIS

Claims Envoy Received Roosevelt Message.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, March 7 (AP).—Under the headline "Jugo-Slavia refuses help from Roosevelt," the Nazi newspaper Magyarsag today printed a dispatch under a Washington, D. C., date line purporting to disclose that President Rooesvelt had attempted to keep Jugo-Slavia out of the axis.

The dispatch was credited to "special service," and was the first such "special dispatch" that the paper—long in severe financial difficulties—ever had carried under a Washington date.

"Mr. Roosevelt promised United States assistance to Jugo-Slavia the same day that Dragisha Tsvetkovitch and Aleksander Cincar-Markovitch [the Jugo-Slavian premier and foreign minister] were received at the Berghof [Adolf Hitler's chalet] by Hitler," the "special dispatch" said.

Claims Envoy Was Summoned.

"Mr. [Constantin] Fotitch, the Jugo-Slavian minister to Washington, was summoned Feb. 14 by urgent telephone call to go to the home of Mr. Sumner Welles [American undersecretary of state], where he was given a personal message from Mr. Roosevelt.

"Mr. Fotitch went to the rendezvous and was informed that it was time to tell the prince regent and the Jugo-Slav government that in President Roosevelt's opinion it was time to put an end to the successes of the axis powers even if they were only diplomatic successes.

"Mr. Roosevelt also was said to have made known that the lease-lend bill would certainly be accepted by congress and the American government then would have the means to curb efforts designed to create a new order.

Claims U. S. Offered Aid.

"The United States would then be able to furnish efficient aid to all European states which had not already submitted to this new order.

"Mr. Sumner Welles is said to have called the tripartite [axis] pact 'very clever work, but a most dangerous diplomatic instrument for England.'

"Before bidding Mr. Fotitch goodbye Mr. Sumner Welles is said to have extracted a promise that Fotitch would immediately transmit Mr. Roosevelt's message to Belgrade.

"On Feb. 10, that is several days before this proposition, the American minister to Belgrade, acting 'under the urgent orders of Mr. Roosevelt, is said to have gone to the Jugo-Slav premier's office to announce that Mr. Roosevelt was convinced of Britain's ultimate victory, and that he would do everything to contribute to it."

[In Berlin Dienst aus Deutschland, which reflects German foreign office opinion, predicted that the German press today would busy itself with Roosevelt diplomacy as a result of the Hungarian newspaper's story.]

MOTHERS ASSAIL 'FUEHRER PLAN' OF MRS. ROOSEVELT

A parents and sons' massmeeting sponsored by We, the Mothers, Mobilize for America, will be held at 8 o'clock this evening in the American room of the La Salle hotel. This group is one of those opposing the war dictatorship bill.

"The amazing proposal for the mobilization of American women announced by our 'first lady fuehrer,' Mrs. Roosevelt, is the very antithesis of the aims of We, the Mothers, Mobilize for America," the organization said in a statement yesterday. "Intelligent American women will be outraged by this hateful Fascist plan of regimentation, whose ultimate effect will be the destruction of the essential virtues of the American home, upon which this nation was founded."

Mrs. Barbara Winthrop, president, said the organization would send a delegation of 100 mothers to Washington, D. C., tomorrow to fight the war bill.

DICTATOR BILL DUE TO WIN IN SENATE TODAY

sufficient merely to read his utterances and then you must determine whether you are going to keep his faith for him or whether you are going to break it for him."

The Galleries Cheer.

Spectators in the galleries applauded as Senator Johnson concluded with this impassioned plea:

"Keep your pledges, keep your pledges! Never mind whether any one else keeps his or not, keep yours! It is not difficult to keep pledges. All you have to do is to stand up, to have the guts that God gave you, to have the nerve which should be in you, to have the decency which should actuate you. Every man of you should have all of these characteristics in order that you may save from bloody graves the boys of America!"

By a vote of 51 to 38 the senate rejected an amendment by Senator Robert A. Taft [R., O.], declaring that nothing in the bill shall be construed to confer any "additional" power upon the President respecting the use of the armed forces outside the western hemisphere, except in the territories and possessions of the United States.

Same as Ellender's.

This was the original amendment offered by Senator Allen J. Ellender [D., La.], who was induced yesterday in the so-called "Third Louisiana purchase" to offer a meaningless substitute. The administration substitute for the original Ellender amendment provides in effect that nothing contained in the bill shall be construed to change existing law relating to the use of the land and naval forces except insofar as the bill does change existing law.

After all substitutes with teeth in them had been rejected, the revised Ellender amendment finally was adopted by a vote of 65 to 24.

Clark Amendment Wins.

Only one other amendment was adopted thruout the long day and night session, and it also was accepted by the administration leaders. This was an amendment by Senator Bennett C. Clark [D., Mo.] specifying that authority vested in the President to "transfer" so-called defense articles to foreign countries shall refer only to the transfer of title, or change of ownership.

Senator Clark had contended that the term "transfer," if left unqualified, would authorize the President to deliver war munitions to Britain. Senator Taft and others contended that authority to deliver munitions, by the use of convoys or otherwise, is authorized by the general terms of the bill.

By a vote of 63 to 28, the senate rejected an amendment by Senators Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], and Homer T. Bone [D., Wash] which provided that, without the consent of congress, war munitions could not be delivered or convoyed by the land, naval, or air forces of the United States except to points in or adjacent to the Americas or to points subject to the jurisdiction of the United States.

Parliamentary Problem Arises.

Altho conceded to be an effective prohibition against the use of American naval vessels for the purpose of convoying shipments of war munitions to Great Britain, the O'Mahoney amendment was not supported by all of the antiwar senators. This was due to the parliamentary situation.

Since the O'Mahoney amendment was offered as a substitute for the meaningless Ellender compromise, no other substitute would have been in order had it been adopted. Some foes of the dictator bill therefore voted against the O'Mahoney amendment because they wanted to be certain of preserving an opportunity to vote for the stronger and more comprehensive Johnson amendment.

Among those who voted against the O'Mahoney amendment but voted later for the Johnson amendment were Senator Johnson, Senator Wayland Brooks [R., Ill.], Senator Henrik Shipstead [R., Minn.], and Senator Guy M. Gillette [D., Ia.].

How Lucas Voted.

Senator Scott W. Lucas [D., Ill.], a supporter of the dictator bill, also voted against the O'Mahoney amendment to ban convoys but later voted for the Johnson amendment against sending the armed forces into the war zones for any purpose. Lucas also voted for the Taft amendment and one by Senator George W. Norris [Ind., Neb.].

The Norris amendment, rejected by a vote of 52 to 39, provided that nothing in the bill could be construed to authorize the President, without the consent of congress, to send the armed forces of the United States to fight on foreign soil outside of the western hemisphere.

Senator Norris, who voted against American entry into the world war but now supports the dictator bill on the ground that "this war is different," voted against all amendments to ban a second American expeditionary force except his own. This was true also of most of the others who offered amendments intended to accomplish the same purpose. The opposition would have made a considerably stronger showing had there not been so much pride of authorship.

5th Amendment Beaten.

Senator Francis T. Maloney [D., Conn.] offered the fifth amendment intended to keep the armed forces out of the war zones. Rejected by a vote of 60 to 30, it provided that except in time of war no member of the land or naval forces of the United States and no naval vessel or military or naval aircraft should be permitted to enter or travel thru the combat areas defined by President Roosevelt under the neutrality act of 1939.

The senate refused to require certification by the chief of staff of the army or the chief of naval operations that army and navy equipment which President Roosevelt might give away or otherwise dispose of is not essential to the defense of the United States. An amendment by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, [R., Mich.] requiring such certification was rejected by a vote of 45 to 36.

By a vote of 48 to 33, the Senate rejected an amendment by Senator John A. Danaher [R., Conn.] which provided that nothing in the bill should be construed to confer any power to establish control or censorship over the press, radio, or other instrumentality engaged in the dissemination of news, information or opinion, or to fix rules and regulations abridging freedom of speech or of the press.

Senator Danaher contended that the authorization for the president "to promulgate such rules and regulations as may be necessary and proper to carry out any of the provisions of this act" would permit censorship at the source of information relating to the program contemplated by the bill. He contended also that the definition of "defense article" as including "any facility" might permit the mobilization and control of the press and radio for propaganda purposes.

Majority Leader Barkley spoke against the Danaher "no censorship" amendment. His argument was that nothing in the bill conceivably could be construed to authorize censorship and that the amendment, therefore, was extraneous. Senator Carl Hayden [D., Ariz.] said the amendment was "about as germane to this bill as the twelve tables of Roman law."

Anti-Red Proposals Beaten.

Three amendments by Senator Robert R. Reynolds [D., N. C.] all rejected by the senate, were intended to: [1] bar Nazis, communists, and Fascists from the federal payroll; [2] exclude communist Russia from the aid which President Roosevelt could extend under the bill; and [3] provide for the immediate deportation of Harry Bridges, alien communist C. I. O. leader on the west coast.

To all amendments intended to ban the use of American armed forces in foreign wars, administration leaders objected on the ground that they would tie the hands of President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull in dealing with Germany, Italy, and Japan and would encourage further aggressions by those nations.

Irony for Pepper.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] ironically commended Senator Claude Pepper [D., Fla.], the senate's foremost war shouter, as the real father of the dictator bill, or at least the first to advocate such a program publicly. Wheeler recalled that as long ago as June 4, 1940, Pepper introduced a resolution conferring dictatorial power upon President Roosevelt to mobilize the material resources of the United States for aid to the allies. At that time, Wheeler said, Pepper's proposal was ridiculed even by some New Dealers, and it received only two favorable votes in the foreign relations committee.

"I want to commend the senator from Florida for his brilliance and insight," Wheeler said.

"He had almost the vision of a clairvoyant. I do not know what clairvoyant it was, whether it was Mrs. Vehling, or who it was, but it was some clairvoyant either from Chicago or New York."

Wheeler's allusion to the mysterious "Mrs. Vehling" provoked great curiosity in the senate. According to gossip in the cloakrooms, he referred to a clairvoyant said to be consulted regularly by high government officials.

DICTATOR BILL A SMOKE SCREEN, SAYS CLERGYMAN

More than 2,000 persons packed the grand ballroom in the La Salle hotel last night and applauded an attack against the war dictatorship bill. The meeting was sponsored by the Citizens' Keep America Out of War committee.

The Rev. Charles W. Kegley of St. Paul's English Lutheran church of Evanston was the speaker. He charged that the Roosevelt administration is using the war to draw attention from America's domestic problems.

The dictatorship bill, he asserted, is not an act to promote national defense, but an act to grant extraordinary powers in foreign and domestic affairs to the President.

"No man has the emotional stability to assume such powers," the clergyman said.

After the meeting 847 persons sent personal telegrams to Senators Scott W. Lucas and Wayland Brooks urging them to filibuster against the dictator bill. Hundreds also signed a mass telegram in the name of the committee to President Roosevelt urging him to keep America out of war.

ADMITS VESSELS NAVY ASKS MAY BE GIVEN BRITISH

Denies, However, That Is Part of Plans.

Rear Admiral Ingersoll

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—A congressional committee heard testimony from a member of the navy's high command today that some proposed new naval auxiliary vessels, such as cargo ships and tankers, might be transferred to Britain under the lend-lease program.

Rear Admiral, Royal E. Ingersoll, assistant chief of naval operations, conceded the possibility in reply to questions during testimony before the house naval affairs committee on legislation to authorize the construction or acquisition of 200,000 additional tons of auxiliaries. The admiral asserted, however, there had been no definite allocation of the proposed ships.

Not So Planned Says Admiral.

He was followed by Rear Admiral Samuel M. Robinson, chief of the bureau of ships, who declared the requested authorization had nothing to do with the British aid bill and had been prepared before that program was submitted to congress.

At the same time, Robinson predicted that before the end of this year the navy would be pinched again for auxiliary vessels. He said at another point, that the additional 200,000 tons of such ships would not begin to meet the navy's requirements should this country get into war.

Chairman Carl Vinson [D., Ga.] precipitated discussion of the possible transfer when he said to Ingersoll:

Might Use Part of It.

"Let's put the cards on the table, admiral. Is this 200,000 tons needed for the maintenance of our fleet, or is part of it for the lend-lease program?"

After reiterating there had been no definite allocation of the vessels, Ingersoll replied:

"We might use part of it that way."

Asserting "we cannot foresee what we may be required to do in the course of the next year," Ingersoll reminded the committee that the navy already has exhausted both its funds and authority for either construction or purchase of auxiliaries.

"If by any possible chance we were directed to turn over all our tankers to some foreign nation," he said, "we would have to get more tankers from the maritime commission and we have neither the money nor authority to do so."

Short of Mine Layers.

As another illustration of the need for the legislation, Ingersoll testified the navy had three ocean going mine layers and four fleet mine sweepers now under construction. They won't be ready for use, however, until 1943 or 1944.

"If we should suddenly need such vessels we would have to take over merchant ships and convert them," he asserted, adding that the navy doesn't have a mine layer on the Atlantic coast.

TWO OVERCOME BY GAS.

Two building engineers at 135 South La Salle street were overcome yesterday by coal gas in the second sub basement of the building. The men, Edwin Duennes and Robert Starrett were revived by Rescue Squad No. 1.

SEEK MAGAZINES FOR CANADIANS IN REMOTE POSTS

An appeal for books and magazines for 250,000 Canadian soldiers in remote, snowswept regions of the dominion, on convoys, mine sweepers, and on guard at internment camps, where reading is one of the soldier's few recreations, was made in Chicago yesterday by Mrs. E. L. Frankel of Toronto, Ont., a member of the Canadian War Services Library council.

Mrs. Frankel said five downtown stores have agreed to provide boxes in which shoppers may leave reading material. These are Brentano's and Kroch's bookstores, and in book sections of Carson Pirie Scott & Co., Marshall Field & Co., and Mandel Brothers. Used games and cards also are needed, Mrs. Frankel said.

M. B. Palmer, Canadian government trade commissioner, has agreed to guarantee the packing and shipping of the books. Canadian residents of Chicago will meet at the Towers club next week to make arrangements for carrying on the work.

METAMORA'S EX-MAYOR DIES.

Metamora, Ill., March 7 [Special].—Funeral services for Frank Giehl, 90 years old, former mayor of Metamora and holder of many other public offices, will be held tomorrow. He died yesterday. He had been a member of the choir at St. Mary's church here for 70 years.

BRITAIN SMASHES AXIS SHIP NESTS ON INDIAN OCEAN

Proclaims Final Conquest of Italian Somaliland.

CAIRO, Egypt, March 7 (AP). — The final conquest of Italian Somaliland was proclaimed by British forces today, along with the capture, destruction, or grounding of 12 axis merchantmen in naval operations which knocked out the colony's two chief bases for Indian ocean raiders—Chisimaio and Mogadiscio.

All Fascist troops who have not surrendered or fallen in combat have been run out of Somaliland and are fleeing into Ethiopia, a military spokesman declared here at British general headquarters.

He listed Italian casualties in the three week Somaliland campaign at 21,000—including killed and prisoners.

The bulk of the Fascist force able to get away, he said, is withdrawing along the Mogadiscio road toward Jijiga in east central Ethiopia, and another retreat is proceeding from Lugh, in the northern Juba river valley area of Somaliland, toward the southern Ethiopian lakes.

British Strike Into Ethiopia.

The pursuing British were declared themselves to have struck well into Ethiopia proper.

Five Italian ships totaling 28,153 tons were captured, and four others were scuttled when the British battle units stormed up to Chisimaio on Feb. 15 in a coördinated attack with land forces, the admiralty said in London.

A German ship, the Uckermark, 7,021 tons, also was scuttled, and a second German ship, the 590 ton Askari, was driven ashore.

Then the fleet hastened on up the coast, flinging shells into Brava and Mogadiscio, Somaliland capital, and helping in the swift capture of the latter Feb. 26.

Sink Italian Tanker.

There the 9,830 ton British cruiser Shropshire sent her 8 inch shells into the 6,861 ton Italian tanker Pennsylvania and sank her, it was added.

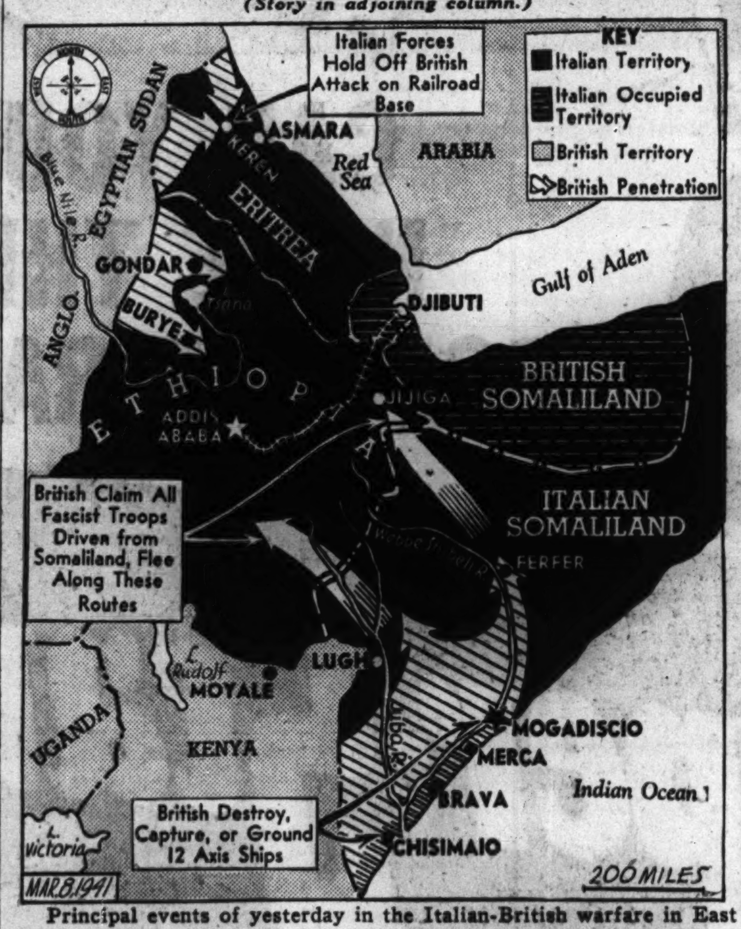
British suspicions that Chisimaio and Mogadiscio were used as refueling stations by German surface raiders were confirmed, the admiralty said, by the discovery and release of 200 British and allied seamen held prisoner near Mogadiscio after their ships had been sunk.

As to the Mediterranean theater, the British acknowledged that a mass raid by 100 or more German dive bombers, bombers, and fighters was carried out against Malta on Wednesday. The British said they bagged 16 of the raiders.

[Italian and German versions, told on Thursday, said three British planes were shot down, great destruction done to hangars, artillery positions, shelters and grounded planes, but mentioned no losses of their own.]

Somaliland Taken, British Assert

(Story in adjoining column.)



Principal events of yesterday in the Italian-British warfare in East Africa are told on the map. The British said their naval operations had knocked out the Italians' two principal bases for Indian ocean raiders, Chisimaio and Mogadiscio.

DESTROYER SUNK, BRITISH REVEAL; RAID DUTCH BASE

Claim Mines Close Up Kiel Canal.

LONDON, March 7 (AP).—The British destroyer Dainty has been sunk, the admiralty announced tonight.

The admiralty said the ship was commanded by Commander M. S. Thomas and that next of kin of the casualties had been informed of the loss. No further details were forthcoming. The 1,375 ton destroyer carried a normal complement of 145 men.

Sink Supply Ship.

British airmen today sank a 2,500 ton German supply ship at the Dutch naval harbor of Den Helder, the air ministry said, in a renewal of North sea thrusts which already have virtually crippled Germany's Kiel canal.

Planes also raided the German occupied airdrome at Ockenburg, where a dense cloud of oil smoke was said to have enveloped the main hangar after it was hit directly by a salvo of bombs.

Choking of the Kiel canal, Germany's famous short cut from the Baltic to the North sea, to all but the smallest ships, was credited by the air ministry's news service to minelaying by the Royal air force and fleet air arm.

Ship Blocks Channel.

Among the more than 100 axis ships said to have been lost in less than 10 per cent of the aerial-mined areas, one was an ore-laden freighter which went down in the Kiel channel last December.

Subsequent reconnaissance flights, the news service continued, established that the wreckage had blocked traffic.

Sink Two British Ships.

BERLIN, March 7 (AP).—The 9,939 ton British steamer Politician, en route to America, has been sunk in the "German blockade zone around England," the German news agency DNB announced today. The 3,388 ton British vessel Maplecourt, it was added, was torpedoed and sunk west of Ireland.

New Zealand Liner Torpedoed.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, March 7.—It was announced here today that the New Zealand liner Rotorua, 12,112 tons, had been torpedoed near Great Britain.

Rumanian Cabinet Meets; Discusses Vienna Parley

BUCHAREST, Rumania, March 7 (AP).—The Rumanian cabinet met all day today, for the second successive day, to discuss the recent consultations between Premier General Ion Antonescu and Reichsmarshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering in Vienna. Official circles denied that the discussions in any way involved a supposed Russian demand for naval and air bases in Rumania and Bulgaria.

[Russian official sources denied in Moscow that demands had been made for Black sea bases.]

WOMAN'S DEATH HELD SUICIDE.

A coroner's jury returned a verdict of suicide while temporarily insane in the death of Mrs. Helen Weil, 30 years old, 2900 North Melvina avenue, who shot herself Thursday.

CITRINE REFUSES TO BE CENSORED ON RADIO SPEECH

LONDON, March 7 (AP).—Sir Walter Citrine, privy councilor and leader of British trades unions, said today he had refused recently to broadcast to North America because of British censorship restrictions. Sir Walter said the censors had forbidden him to say something which "was in no sense a secret or unknown to the enemy and which was known thruout the United States."

The union leader said that when he returned from America recently the British Broadcasting corporation offered him facilities for the broadcast. He prepared a script telling "how I found things when I came home and how our people were standing up to a great task."

Among the things he wanted to tell listeners, he said, was that he had seen convincing evidence of indiscriminate bombing of Britain.

[Presumably the other matters of which Citrine wished to speak still are forbidden from communication.]

Confirm British Columbia to Get Defense Airport

OTTAWA, Ont., March 7 (AP).—Government sources today confirmed reports at Prince George, British Columbia, that a new airport is planned there as one of a chain recommended by the joint Canadian-American defense board. The stations will be equipped for heavy traffic and will link the United States and Alaska.

TRIBUNE WRITER WATCHES SIEGE OF ITALIAN BASE

British Face Difficult Job in Taking Keren.

damage, but do serve somewhat to upset the rest being enjoyed by British forces bivouacked in the valleys extending westward from the mountain ranges. The Italians can be seen casually walking on the safe side of their mountain.

Long trails of dust extend westward as the truck trains pour food and supplies into the British advance positions. The roads, trails, troop comforts, and accommodations are constantly being improved.

A visit to the front line is not at all bad, despite a tough climb from an automobile to a position overlooking the Italian lines, after a hot breakfast of tea, oatmeal, milk, bacon, eggs, French toast, and jam.

The soldiers are given a weekly allowance of two ounces of tobacco and 50 cigarets, and a howl goes up when the smokers' favorite brand is not forthcoming. Rum is available. An unusual rain recently caught a group on top of the mountain at night without blankets. A message to the nearest supply base soon brought couriers climbing up the hill carrying rum.

Hot Days, Cool Nights.

The weather here makes four blankets comfortable at night, altho the temperature reaches 110 degrees in the daytime. The flies are very bad, but there are few mosquitoes. The dust is severe.

During rest periods the British forces pass their time making life more comfortable. One proud unit holds a daily inspection and works out miniature field problems. Musical instruments, singing, and card games help in the recreation.

The nightly howls of wild animals provide soldiers from the city with an unusual experience. Lion roars are reported common. A great furor was occasioned in one unit this week when hyenas stampeded a pack of mules.

Engineers Kept Busy.

The engineers of the ordnance corps are getting little rest, since the captured equipment requires much overhauling. The equipment seized in this section included a railroad minus the locomotive. A captured Italian caterpillar tractor was mounted on a flat car, however, and its pulling force transmitted to the wheels of the flat car thru a series of gears. Thus the British had a substitute for the missing locomotive. Another section of the rail line has an ordinary truck running up and down the rails towing the freight cars.

Norwegian Trade Mission in Russia to Obtain Pact

MOSCOW, March 7 (AP).—A Norwegian trade commission arrived today to negotiate an exchange of goods between Russia and Norway. Norway previously sent a mission to Moscow for a preliminary inquiry into the possibility of obtaining soviet supplies.

REPORTS BRITAIN SENDS CAPTURED ARMS TO GREEKS

Speeds Supplies Taken from Italians.

LONDON, March 7 (AP).—Britain is speeding enough captured Italian military supplies to Greece to equip an entire army corps and some of this equipment already is in use against its former owners in Albania, a neutral military source said today.

Besides the materials going to Albania, considerable quantities are destined for use by Greek forces now forming lines to guard the Ægean port of Salonika against a German thrust.

Ready for British Use.

"The supplies also will be ready if Britain tries to invade the Italian mainland from Albania," the neutral informant said.

"Just as the Germans used abandoned British and French dumps to supply their panzer [armored] divisions in the continental campaign last year, so the British are using windfalls of Italian conquests in Africa to support much of the middle east operations."

British military and diplomatic strategists are working hand-in-hand in the middle east to block Adolf Hitler and prepare the way for a try at a quick Italian knockout, possibly by a crack at the mainland following up trial parachute troop sorties in mid-February.

Observers here view as striking evidence of a new British technique in combining operations of the war and foreign offices in the visit of Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and Gen. Sir John Dill, chief of the imperial army staff, to the middle east.

Report New Italian Shakeup.

ATHENS, Greece, March 7 (AP). — Foreign sources tonight said Gen. Ugo Cavallero, successor of Marshal Pietro Badoglio as Italian chief of staff, has been superseded as commander by Gen Carolo Gelloso, 11th army commander.

[Whether Gelloso was named to command the Italians in Albania or made chief of staff of the entire Italian army was not made clear in the Athens dispatch.]

Greek troops have driven the Italians back from "strong positions" on the central Albanian front, capturing 150 prisoners including many officers, the high command announced.

ADVOCATES BELGIUM ASK TO BE ADMITTED TO BRITISH EMPIRE

LONDON, March 7 (AP).—Camille Huysmans, former speaker of the Belgian chamber of deputies, today recommended that Belgium ask to be admitted to the British commonwealth of nations.

Huysmans, who is chairman of the Labor and Socialist international, said "in unity and only in unity will be found the strength to keep the aggressor permanently at bay."

"Belgium should ask to be admitted to the British commonwealth, and I know that there are statesmen of other smaller European nations who are thinking similarly."

REPORT NORWAY'S KING JOINED IN RAIDS BY BRITISH

BERLIN, March 7.—The surprise attacks by British naval units on Norwegian coastal points are not stressed in the German press, but there is a report current here that King Haakon, who fled to England, has been a spectator on several of the naval sorties.

Under an old Norwegian statute, the king automatically loses his throne and all royal prerogatives if he is absent from the country more than six months. He need only set foot on native soil for one hour to insure his tenure of office. It was reported here that on at least two occasions King Haakon accompanied the British in attacks on German positions in Norway and then put in an incognito appearance on some isolated island in the presence of witnesses to demonstrate that he had not forfeited the throne.

It is believed that he was on board one of the British units which shelled the whale oil refinery at Lafoten Island three days ago, and when the action was over, went ashore to renew his claim as Norwegian sovereign.

Portuguese Ship Wrecked Off Iceland During Gale

Strike Among Apprentices in Scottish Plants Grows

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—The strike for higher pay of engineering apprentices in West Scotland armament firms spread rapidly today. More than 2,000 boys are involved and a further extension of the strike is feared, despite a warning from union leaders that if the youths lose their jobs, the majority will become liable to military conscription.

GREEN REVIEWS 33D DIVISION IN PARADE TODAY

8,000 Men to March Down Michigan Avenue.

Weigh Time Extension

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP). —A request to congress for authority to keep the National Guard in service for an additional six months or a year appeared in prospect today.

The war department said the request might be made, depending on international developments and the state of national preparedness, but stressed that no decision had been reached. President Roosevelt commented that it was all new to him, in response to a press conference question. Gen. George C. Marshall, war department chief of staff, has expressed doubts that the armed forces will be strong enough to warrant demobilization of 300,000 or more trained and seasoned guardsmen beginning next summer.

Maj. Gen. S. T. Lawton.

Shortly after 10 o'clock this morning, 8,000 soldiers of the 33d division, formerly of the Illinois National Guard and now of the United States army, will march down Michigan avenue in parade formation — the division's last public appearance before it entrains for camp.

The troops, in service dress uniforms, will form ranks at Superior street and then march south to Balbo avenue. At Congress street they will be reviewed by Gov. Green, Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, 6th corps area commander, and other army and civic officials.

Gen. Lawton to Lead March.

Maj. Gen. Samuel T. Lawton, division commander, will lead the parade. After him will come headquarters troops of the division and of the 66th brigade, 132d and 131st infantries, 108th combat engineers, division special troops, 108th medical regiment, headquarters troops of the 58th field artillery brigade, 122d and 124th field artillery units, and the 108th quartermaster regiment.

These units are all Chicago troops in the division which was changed to federal status by Presidential proclamation last Wednesday. By March 23, the 12,000 members of the division will be stationed at Camp Forrest, Tenn.

The parade will take 40 minutes to pass a given point, and Capt. Edward M. Redd of the Park District police said traffic details will be strengthened along the route to handle traffic and spectators.

Drilling Under Way.

Members of the division have been "working the cramps out of their legs" in drills for three days, Gen. Lawton said. The men are stationed at the armories, and the drills will continue until the troops are sent to camp.

After reaching Balbo avenue, the troops will disband for a week-end furlough, Gen. Lawton said. He and his staff will leave for Camp Forrest tomorrow night.

TENTATIVE DRAFT QUOTA FOR APRIL TO EQUAL MARCH

April draft induction will take approximately the same number of men from Illinois as were drafted in March, according to tentative plans announced yesterday at Chicago draft headquarters. Paul G. Armstrong, state director of selective service, has not announced the April quota, but it is expected, on the basis of March figures, that 10,419 men will be inducted at the Chicago station, 955 at Peoria, and 921 at East St. Louis. There will be 22 induction days during April, compared with 21 in March, but the daily maximum number to be inducted in Chicago—474—will remain the same. Yesterday 458 men reported at the induction center from 13 Chicago boards.

COMMERCE BODY BACKS PLAN FOR GLIDER TRAINING

Directors of the Chicago Association of Commerce recommended yesterday that the government institute a national program for civilian glider training.

"Several bills have been introduced in congress to provide funds for such training," said Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the association. "The proposed appropriations run from $500,000 to $5,000,000. The association is not advocating any particular bill, but does favor a definite program."

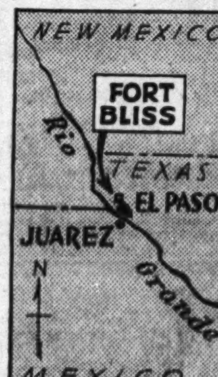
ILLINOIS TROOPS AT FT. BLISS NOW IN FRAME TENTS

New Quarters Are on Higher Ground.

BY CLAY GOWRAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]



Where Illinois Troops Are in Permanent Quarters.

Fort Bliss, Tex., March 7.—The 1,700 men and officers of the 202d Coast Artillery, anti-aircraft, Illinois National Guard, now are housed in permanent tents, having been moved from their previously unsatisfactory quarters.

When the regiment came here last September it was assigned to an area in the lowlands north of the fort's cavalry post. Life admittedly was difficult for the soldiers there. Wooden tent stakes splintered on iron-hard ground when they strove to erect shelters, and gritty desert dust blew into everything.

Heat Tents with Gas.

The new quarters are on higher ground in the extreme northwest corner of Fort Bliss. The regiment's 300 permanent tents have wooden frames, boarded and screened sides, doors, and solid wood floors. Each tent has electric lights and are equipped with heaters that burn the natural gas recently piped thruout the fort.

There are 13 mess halls and 14 bath houses, fitted with modern plumbing and automatic water heaters. Recreation buildings and a post exchange have been constructed. There also is a tent assembly hall seating 400 men.

The site of the quarters, in a district half a mile long and a quarter of a mile wide, lies on Logan Heights near the base of Sugar Loaf mountain, which overlooks the fort.

El Paso 6 Miles Distant.

Six miles from the post is the city of El Paso on the banks of the Rio Grande river. Directly across the river from El Paso is the Mexican town of Juarez.

The 202d Coast Artillery had 1,390 enlisted men and officers, National Guardsmen who had been inducted into office shortly before, when the regiment arrived here. On Jan. 10 the regiment was reinforced with 310 Illinois draftees sent here from the Fort Sheridan reception center.

Fort Bliss now has more than 18,000 troops in its cavalry station, anti-aircraft training department, and draftee reception center. More are arriving almost daily.

First Eskimo Joins Alaska National Guard at Nome

JUNEAU, Alaska, March 7 (AP).—Listed as the first of his race to be inducted into the nation's armed forces, an Eskimo will be included in an Alaskan national guard company to be organized at Nome tonight. A radiogram said 200 men have applied for service, with more, including Eskimos, coming from isolated wilderness posts.

DRAFT MEDICAL EXAM SYSTEM STIRS PROTEST

Causes Loss of Jobs and Much Confusion.

One provision of the national selective service act that has caused confusion and embarrassment to draftees, employers, and draft boards is the physical examination setup, members of all three groups agreed yesterday. This setup, they said, has caused needless loss of jobs, unnecessary changes in home life, and general inconvenience for hundreds of young men called up, but not finally accepted, for army duty.

This is how the physical examinations are conducted:

After a draftee has filled out his questionnaire, his local board orders him to report to a board physician for an examination. If the draftee passes the test, he is certified for service.

Puts Affairs in Order.

About five days before he is to report for induction, the draftee is notified. That period of grace, according to draft officials, is to permit him to get his affairs in order—quit his job, sublease his apartment, or transfer his business to his agent.

Then, on the appointed day, he reports for induction. He arrives with his clothes packed, ready for one year's service in the army. And it is at the induction center that confusion often appears.

It's the army physical examination which causes the trouble. In Chicago about one out of every six men who report for induction is rejected after a physical examination by the army doctors. Similar conditions exist in all large cities.

The first examination was made by a private physician, usually a general practitioner, who volunteered his services to the draft board. The second was made by army specialists who take an hour to check over each man.

Consider Change in Procedure.

At draft headquarters in Washington, D. C., it was learned that "exploratory conversations" have been held regarding a change in the medical procedure, but that there is no immediate prospect of a change.

It has been suggested to officials that the army establish central examining centers where the main examination of draftees could be held 10 days before induction. This would eliminate the private physicians from the system.

Draft officials insist that if draftees wait until induction day to quit their jobs and arrange other affairs the present confusion would disappear.

"Such nonsense!" said one complainant at Chicago draft headquarters. "I can't wait until the day I know I'm leaving to tell my boss I'm quitting. And what about all the rest—my business and my apartment?"

Some Go Back to Jobs.

Employers in many cases are able to take back men who were rejected at the last minute, but others have already hired new workers. Draft officials say they are powerless to force employers to take back workers.

"We can only advise the draftee to hang onto his job until he is sure he's in the army—and we know that is pretty weak advice," said Maj. Victor Kleber at draft headquarters.

★ THE RULES ★

WHO CAN ENTER? This offer is open free to men, women, boys and girls everywhere—except employes of the Chicago Tribune and members of their families. No person may submit more than one entry.

WHAT TO DO? Each week day a puzzle picture representing the name of a popular radio star will be printed in the Daily Tribune until 42 have appeared. Solve the puzzle pictures and write the names in the space provided, or on a facsimile. Hold all answers until you have the complete set of 42. Do not send them in separately. It is not necessary to solve ALL puzzles correctly to win. Prizes will be paid for entries ranking highest.

WHERE TO SEND? Mail your entry by First Class Mail to "Super-Stars," Chicago Tribune, Post Office Box 1539, Chicago, Illinois. A ballot will be printed with Puzzle Picture No. 42. Each contestant must vote for the "Super-Star" he or she likes best and state the reason for such choice in 25 words or less. Contestants may use the printed ballot or a facsimile. Ballots will be considered only if two or more persons submit equally correct solutions to the puzzle pictures; in which event, judgment will be based on sincerity and originality. Entries must be in by midnight, one week after Puzzle No. 42 has been printed.

JUDGMENT: Entries will be judged by a committee appointed by the Chicago Tribune. Entrants agree that the judges' decisions will be final. 430 cash awards totaling $5,000 will be paid to the persons who send in the nearest correctly solved, complete sets of puzzle pictures. Elaborate entries will receive no more consideration than simple ones. In fairness to all the Tribune cannot engage in any correspondence. In case of ties duplicate awards will be paid.

MEN OF ILLINOIS.

The flags are flying today to do honor to the 33d division. Eight thousand strong, the Chicago units in the division are to march this morning on Michigan avenue in a farewell parade. The divisional staff leaves for Camp Forrest in Tennessee tomorrow and one by one over the next few weeks the regiments will depart.

Chicago bids them all Godspeed and a safe return. To the last man they are volunteers who are giving a year of their lives to their country. The sacrifice is a large one but it is being made gladly. Some of the younger soldiers are looking forward to a lark but for much the most part the men of the division know that they are facing a year of hard work, a year of subjection to rigid discipline, a year of small pay. Only a strong sense of patriotism and of duty could command this sacrifice.

As the regiments march by, Chicago will pray that the officers in control of our government will not take advantage of these men to impose a further and needless sacrifice upon them, their families, and their community. If the 33d is called upon to fight in Europe or in Asia the men will go as the men of Illinois went with Jackson to New Orleans, with Grant to Shiloh and Vicksburg, with Shafter to Cuba, and with Pershing to France. They will go and they will acquit themselves with honor even tho they will know that the war was not of their making or of their choosing.

Chicago looks forward to welcoming its citizen soldiers a year from now, strong in body and strong in the consciousness of a duty faithfully performed. Our hopes and our prayers go with them.

A BAD SPOT ON A GOOD RECORD.

From time to time THE TRIBUNE has voiced its conviction that Chicago has an excellent police department, a conviction to which we still hold. Both its exploits in individual cases and the general crime statistics indicate that the department is performing well its primary task of protecting the people of the city from criminals.

Because of this record in dealing with crime we dislike to criticize the police, yet it is a fact that in one phase of their activities, that of protecting citizens against reckless motorists, their record is almost as bad as it is good in most other respects. The people of Chicago are being killed and maimed in its streets because the Chicago police have not gone after this type of lawbreaker.

This reluctance to go after traffic violators in a vigorous fashion is not new and is not peculiar to Chicago. In large part, in Chicago as in other cities, the reluctance arises from a mistaken attitude toward such drivers. The fact that a reckless driver may be in all other respects a law-abiding citizen, a loyal husband, a kind father, and a pillar of the church does not keep him from being a menace to life when he is behind the wheel of a car, and the police should be just as diligent in searching him out.

Also, if the police will consult their own statistics and those of the insurance companies, they will discover that they are never going to get anywhere if they give all their attention, or even the major part of it, to the traffic violators who have already killed or hurt some one as a result of their lawbreaking.

The average motorist is involved in only one accident causing death or injury for every 7,000 to 9,000 hours that he spends behind the wheel of a car. That, of course, includes both the accidents for which he is responsible and those due to the recklessness of others, and his 7,000 to 9,000 hours will be spread over 10 to 12 years of driving.

Thus even the reckless driver, taking several times the chances that the average motorist does, may go several years before his lawbreaking kills or hurts some one. The time to get him is before the law of averages catches up with him, and the way to do it is to arrest and prosecute every traffic violator.

BRITAIN'S DOLLAR RESOURCES.

Many Americans support the 1776 bill because they are convinced that the British have run out of money. The foundation for this belief no doubt was the hastily prepared report on the subject presented before the senate foreign relations committee in January by Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau. Other information which has subsequently come to light shows that the secretary had not fully considered all of the facts when he concluded that the British would soon be at the end of their pile.

Mr. John Flynn, the New York economist, is one who has gone exhaustively into Britain's financial position. Mr. Arthur Sears Henning, in yesterday's TRIBUNE, summarized the report which Mr. Flynn made to the senate foreign relations committee. Those citizens who would like to make a decision about the pending measure on the basis of the facts will do well to consider Mr. Flynn's findings.

Secretary Morgenthau had told the senate committee that the British would need 1 billion 464 million dollars to meet obligations on war orders this year. Mr. Flynn has found that only 597 million dollars of this amount would be used to meet bills accruing in the United States. The balance would be used to pay for goods purchased or manufactured in various parts of the empire.

Mr. Flynn is certainly on solid ground when he insists that the British government shouldn't expect to use its American funds to pay itself for any part of its own orders, nor should it, while following such methods, expect the American government to replenish its stock of American dollars, thus artificially drained off. The New Yorker also asserted that Britain already had spent 775 million dollars of its huge exchange balance in this way. Taking the Flynn findings as fact, the conclusion is inescapable that the British can safeguard themselves against any shortage of funds here by restricting American balances to payment for American goods, and arranging for payments within the empire by intraempire credits.

The administration owes it to the American people to take up Mr. Flynn's analysis, and if there are any errors, to point them out. It should tell the American people also why the funds amounting to several billion dollars belonging to governments in exile which are fighting with the British are not included among the assets available to pay for the implements of war which are being manufactured here for their joint endeavor. Unless the treasury takes the country completely into its confidence and replies fully to the charges of Mr. Flynn, the people will have reason to believe they are being led to take a dangerous step by misrepresentation on the part of our government.

CENSORSHIP IN THE DICTATOR BILL.

Senator Taft and Dean Ackerman of the Columbia university school of journalism have warned the country that provisions of the war dictator bill will enable the President to establish a censorship of the press and radio and to convert those facilities, and with them the public forum and the classroom, into propaganda agencies.

These powers, Dean Ackerman explains, rest in the bill's definitions of the terms "defense article" and "defense information," and in the broad powers delegated by the bill to the President to procure and dispose of such facilities and articles. Dean Ackerman might have called attention, also, to the limited dependence which can now be placed on the courts if they are called upon to check the executive will.

It may be argued by the proponents of the bill that merely because it does not give the President a specific authorization to impose a censorship there is no danger that he will attempt to do so. That is false assurance. Where broad general powers are granted Mr. Roosevelt the assumption should always be that he will stretch them to their greatest possible limit. That has been his practice in the past, and it is plainly his intention in the present instance. Otherwise his leaders in congress would not be opposing so strenuously the amendments forbidding him to do what they assert he has no intention of doing, such as giving away the American fleet or sending a new A. E. F. to Europe or Singapore.

The dictator bill has been denounced, and properly so, as an abdication of congressional power. It may be the final step in that direction, but it most certainly is not the first. For eight years Mr. Roosevelt has been conditioning congress to such abdications by his continuing requests for more power with which to meet pretended emergencies.

Almost never has the President made a straightforward request for specific powers and detailed appropriations of money. Whatever his excuse, his requests have repeatedly been for power in the most general terms and for blank check appropriations. Not infrequently the President has done or has sought to do by subterfuge what congress had already forbidden him to do upon his direct request for power, as in the Passamaquoddy and Florida ship canal brainstorms.

The men who have drafted his must legislation have exhibited a malignant genius for slippery language, capable of being stretched to cover almost any whimsy. The nation should not be misled by statements of what the dictator bill does not do. It should proceed on the assumption, fully justified by both the language of the bill and Mr. Roosevelt's record, that the only things he cannot and may not do under the bill are those that it specifically forbids him to do.

WHY NOT TRY HOOVER'S PLAN?

[New York News.]

Herbert Hoover has a scheme for feeding Belgium that ought to be given a trial. This calls for the use of rolling soup kitchens [to make sure Germans won't be fed]; and bans the requisitioning of existing Belgian food supplies by the Nazis.

A direct quotation from Hoover's speech tells the rest of the story most graphically:

"We are asked to give aid to Britain, and of stupendous dimensions. I believe we should give to them generously, and including food. But if that aid is to be given to preserve free nations, have we not a right to suggest that these other free peoples—friends of America over the whole of our national life—shall be allowed also to live?

"I sometimes think the world is to be saved from everything except starvation.

"There are questions of contagious disease. When the food supply falls to famine levels, people do not lie down and die of starvation. Long before that their physical resistance is so lowered by malnutrition that they die of disease. The children weaken first, the women and the old men next. And the infections from these cesspools of contagion are spread over the world irrespective of boundaries or ideologies. We are interested in that."

All famines follow a single pattern. First the people in the cities starve, sicken, and die; then the people in the villages; last, a long time after, the peasants, who manage to hold onto what little they have. Famine is not a pretty thing, and what accompanies it is not pretty. Are we to be parties to the greatest famine in history?

The English seem to be pretty well set in the idea that they need to starve all the peoples of Europe, including those in occupied France, and even in unoccupied France. The British reaction to Hoover's plan is, for the moment, unfavorable.

That reaction might change suddenly if the American reaction to Hoover's plan were favorable—as it ought to be.

There are 40 million or more people in the democracies overrun by Germany. Of these, several millions, at least, are doomed unless they can be fed. The rest will suffer and sicken; they may pull thru if the war ends quickly enough. If they do pull thru, what will their sentiments about democracy be?

We think the Hoover plan deserves a trial. We think this government and Britain ought to agree to let it go forward.

MR. PEPYS TRIES TO ESCAPE.

8th March—Did go last night to hear Burton Holmes lecture on his travels in South America, to take my mind off work and international affairs, and found him a relief, altho he has developed a habit, whenever he shows a picture of a cave, of saying it would make a good bomb shelter. Did wonder which one of the South American countries I would select for a home if I had to emigrate, and did decide on Patagonia, for it is the farthest from so-called civilization.

Did stay away from my club the other night to dine at another club with the famous Scotch poet, M'Tavish, and discovered he is not a Caledonian, except by ancestry, but a Haligonian, which is what they call natives of the city of Halifax in Canada. Did go back to my own club the next night and was greeted with indignant cries of "Where have you been?", which proves I am running in too much of a rut. There I did find, as usual, fellows talking about what will happen when the spring blitzkrieg starts, and being weary of this subject I said, "When ignorance is blitz," and departed hurriedly before they could throw things at me.

Did finish my income tax calculations and beheld the result with deep gloom, and then took down the encyclopedia and read the article on anarchism. Will not send in my income tax, however, until late next week, for I must go over the figures again and try to avoid the schoolboy errors in arithmetic I often make. Now I will end my week by making a joke I found in the writings of my colleague, Mr. Davidson, a while ago:

"And so to bedlam."

MARCH MEDITATION.

(To be read only when sober.)

Does the waning winter weather
  Have you in a dither, rather?
Do you, weary, wonder whether
  Further snows will hither gather?
Here's a reason, then, to sing:
  Brooks will break their winter tether,
And it won't be long till spring
  Bans the winter altogether!
So, when feeling rather nether,*
  Know that winter weather'll end;
Gather faith that bluebird's feather
  Flashes gay around the bend!
Soon will winter weather wither,
  Soon the swallows, coming back,
Will be winging hither, thither—
  Spring's a-whistling down the track!

The Prince Called Loulou.

Apropos of your "L'Aiglon II." as a sobriquet for the only son of Napoleon III. and Eugenie [March 5], perhaps you can supply the reason why this Prince Imperial was familiarly and mockingly known to his contemporaries as Loulou. He won his spurs by firing a single mitrailleuse at Saarbruecken, whence he fled by way of Metz and Belgium to Chiselhurst, England.

Loulou's untimely end was the direct result of his effort to free himself of his mother's political and pecuniary authority by gathering independent military laurels in the African campaign.

Vaudeville's Start in Life.

Strange that you should never have heard that "vaudeville" [Feb. 18], literally translated, is "outside the city." It goes back to medieval times, the days of the mystery and miracle plays. In those days as later, actors were considered outside the pale, tramps; so the city authorities kept them outside the city precincts. They set up their stages just outside the city gates, the city wall serving as a backdrop. P. E. L.

Origin of "Gaudeamus Igitur."

The text of the student song, "Gaudeamus Igitur," as it is known and sung today, is generally credited to C. W. Kindleben, an itinerant German scholar in whose collection of songs it was printed for the first time in 1781. The original on which it was based, a song for penitents [!], dates back to about 1267. One of the seven verses, of which you printed the first, is reminiscent of the song's early church history:

Vita nostra brevis est,
Brevi finietur.
Venit mors velociter,
Rapit nos atrociter,
Nemini parcetur.

KIDNEY INJURY WILL TAG ALONG.

CHILDREN are unusually susceptible to infection and we all know how quickly they may fall ill. Fortunately, they recover with equal facility. In other words, the tendency to get well is far stronger than is the disposition to remain sick.

Medical science has pointed the way to the conquest of numerous childhood maladies. We rejoice in the fact that scarlet fever, diphtheria, whooping cough, and many other devastating disorders may be conquered by various means. But when a vicious sore throat involves the tonsils and other tissues we have no specific. It would not be so bad if the causative bacteria confined themselves entirely to this area, but they refuse to "stay put." They find their way into the circulation, wandering about at will. They and their toxins may damage the kidneys and the resulting inflammation is called "nephritis."

In certain cases of scarlet fever, urinary symptoms may come on two or three weeks after the onset of the disease. In like manner injury to the filters [the kidneys] may follow a sore throat, or infection within the sinuses or the middle ear spaces. The little patient may be convalescing satisfactorily—even playing around the house—when, without previous warning, food may be refused or actual vomiting occur. In addition, headache and exhaustion may be complained of. Within a short while the face, feet, and legs may become swollen. In the meantime, the urine takes on a dark [smoky] or reddish shade, indicating the presence of blood.

Fortunately, the outlook is good. But every attack of this character must be handled promptly and with great skill, otherwise a chronic state may develop—with injury later to the heart and the blood vessels.

Fully aware that the origin of the trouble is in some remote region, every effort must be made to clear up this starting focus. Altho no surgical procedure is advised in the acute stage, there are two cardinal principles that must be observed. The first is to provide an adequate quota of beverages—regardless of the extent of puffing of the tissues. The second is to start a mild laxative action, keeping the bowels open and free. By giving huge volumes of water, fruit juices, etc., we will reduce the concentration of toxins. Furthermore, the poison is eliminated far more readily when it is diluted.

If vomiting is persistent, glucose may be injected directly into a vein. Salt solution [sodium chloride] is never advised, as sodium holds liquids within the body. A modest proportion of this condiment, however, may be employed with the food. The diet should be easily digested and it should contain meat, eggs, vitamins, and minerals.

The most useful laxative is Epsom salts. It prevents fluid from accumulating in the brain and—in this condition—generous quantities may be taken without causing loose stools. Sometimes one of these tots will become stuporous or develop convulsions because of too much water within the nervous system. In such a situation the blood pressure will rise, and all such symptoms demand vigorous elimination. Control of this manifestation is entirely within our reach and the youngster should soon be out of danger.

It is important to allow the patient to remain in bed until the red blood cells have vanished from the urine. If they diminish to only an occasional corpuscle now and then, as shown on microscopic examination, he may be allowed up and about, with gradual resumption of normal activity.

The thing we wish to avoid is a chronic ailment. This means that the diet must be ample, with plenty of meat protein. Starving victims of nephritis has long since been shown to be a bad policy.

MEDICAL TERM.

REPLY.

An estimate of the nonprotein nitrogen in the blood. In other words, all of the nitrogenous elements other than protein. It is a useful bit of information in studying the function of the organs of elimination, chiefly the kidneys.

DR. WIRT.

Chicago, March 4.—How many people recall that a gentle, unassuming professor from Gary, Ind., went to a dinner party in 1933 at a little red house near Washington, where some very brilliant but radical people told him of their plan for the American people and their government—even mentioning that they considered President Roosevelt the Kerensky of the American revolution.

The professor was very much perturbed and thought he ought to warn the American people what was being planned for them, but he was soon forgotten. Later he died.

Along came house resolution 1776, and the majority of the people didn't see in it the fulfilment of what the professor from Gary had tried to warn them against eight years before. So the legislation passed, the republic died, and a dictatorship was born—because they planned it that way. L. G. W.

A MEMORIAL TO DR. BANTING.

Birmingham, Mich., March 5.—As one of the many diabetics—I don't know how many—who are living comfortably and working effectively by grace of insulin, I beg to indorse the splendid suggestion made by M. M. W. in your column of March 2. That's a capital idea for the memorial tribute I am sure Dr. Banting, co-discoverer of insulin, would most appreciate—no silly statuary, something even better than a scholarship in his beloved university: A fund to assure insulin to the neediest.

The thought of being destitute and dependent on haphazard provisions, either governmental or hospital charity, for this all-essential in diabetes is a constant horror, I know, in the back of many minds. If some arrangement can be made to put M. M. W.'s suggestion into effect, I'll certainly be happy to contribute from a too slender purse. There must be any number of fine internists who would take on the executive management of such a trust. Let's do it! FRANK G. KANE.

SYMBOLIC WASHINGTON.

Washington, D. C., March 4.—A potent form of chump bait, on the part of international do-gooders and universal heart-bleeders, has been depiction of the shambles that were once Warsaw, Rotterdam, and parts of London. Even that minuscule portion of the mob that clings to the belief that the interests of the United States should come first, will admit its efficacy.

The great tragedy of the world—of all time—is typified not in the destruction of European cities but in the construction of Washington. To an American who still subscribes to the corny doctrine of free enterprise, the miles on miles of monumental edifices, erected with taxpayers' blood and populated by thousands of New Deal pay rollers, is living evidence that the old United States is dead. We are now living under a socialized form of share-the-wealth government. Will any business man deny it? NED ALVORD.

ART CRITICISM.

Chicago, March 5.—I think the beauty experts at the Midwest Beauty Trade show in the Hotel Sherman could have done much better for Mrs. Sophia Soprych had they given her a permanent and then a soft finger wave, plus the new dress rather than let those loose ends dance on the top of her head. CRITIC.

THUNDERBOLTS BY JOVE.

Chicago, March 3.—In your front page editorial of Feb. 21, "Eight to One Against," you refer to a recent bulletin of the Chicago Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies as the source for the ratio. May I call your attention to the fact that in the bulletin in question the phrase was: "Mail to congressmen and senators from the middle west is running up to 8 to 1 against the bill."

"Up" is a short word, but like other short words it sometimes means much. "Up to 8 to 1" is not at all the same as a flat "8 to 1:" I must assume that there was carelessness in the editorial office, for one is unwilling to believe that a newspaper which "cannot be bought with money or political office" would be guilty of misrepresenting facts.

The use of the term "up to 8 to 1" in the committee's newsletter was in accordance with the facts we were able to ascertain. It was the ratio reported by one congressman. All others reported lower ratios, with some from this area reporting a preponderance in favor of H. R. 1776.

In view of your claim that "THE TRIBUNE in its news columns has printed both sides," one wonders why no mention of Wendell Willkie's first statement in support of the bill was made in your columns for 36 hours and then only in the form of an editorial attacking him.

I agree with you that "the welfare of 130 million people should not be subordinated to the ambitions and passions of Park avenue, the Lake Shore drive, Wall street, or La Salle street"; neither do I think that the safety and security of those 130 million should be prescribed for by the voice of Michigan avenue. The Gallup poll of Feb. 12 shows that even in the land of one morning newspaper the majority favor the defense bill—39 per cent as against 35 per cent. I suggest that these figures be called to Mr. Parrish's attention, since in his cartoon of today he represents 85 per cent of the people of the middle west as opposed to the bill. JOHN A. MORRISON,
Director Chicago Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies.

WATER METERS.

Chicago, March 5.—I note that the city expects to spend about $40,000 on water experts. I believe that much more would be accomplished if the city would install the balance of the water meters. At the present time only 30 per cent of residences are metered for water in Chicago. Would the commissioner of public works advise just when they expect to complete their metering program? Water meters were installed in Chicago 70 years ago and today only 30 per cent are in. These meters have saved their costs many times over and there should be no delay in finishing this program. JIM STRONG,
Secretary Chicago Water and Tax association.

LAWN WIRES.

Chicago, March 5.—Wires across lawns have caused so many serious falls they should be eliminated. These wires are not visible to most people and do not protect the lawns. I should like to have the matter referred to some one authorized to remedy the evil. I. C.

NO CYCLONE CELLARS.

Chicago, March 5.—The president of a large corporation advised me that he was intending to sink a couple of hundred thousand dollars loose money in farm property, as he figured it would be the only commodity of stable value when inflation came. I asked him whether he thought he would be able to retain title to large plots of ground when this country had reached this condition?

A private secretary, in her middle 30s, advised me she was going to invest every penny she and her husband could get hold of in a farm so that she could grow her food when the dollar was devalued. I asked her how she could prevent hungry people from removing her produce before she got to it and what she would use to buy high barbed wire fencing with when this condition arrived?

A laborer advised that he was going to spend every cent he could possibly spare on laying in canned goods and other staple foodstuffs so that he would have plenty to eat when the dollar did what the mark did and food couldn't be had. I asked him whether his conscience would permit him to go about well fed while his neighbors were starving, and if so, how he could prevent these people from finding out about his cache and stealing from it? N. E. S.

THE BANDANA QUESTION.

Chicago, March 5.—Things have gone too far when young girls with bandanas around their heads are suspected of communistic ideals. They wear them because they are fashionable, warm, inexpensive, and protect their hair for their evening date with a good Republican draftee whose ancestors came over on the Mayflower. Using the contents of one's head is not in the height of fashion with emotionalism and irrationalism flying in all directions, but let us not give up that ancient and lovable art completely! Please restrain your hysteria!

NOISE DISTURBANCE.

Chicago, March 4.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A neighbor has three dogs, two of which disturb the peace of the neighbors and very annoyingly late at night. In the early hours of the morning they are let loose in the owner's yard. This condition has been reported to the police once before but nothing has been done about it. Your kind information as to whether or not the neighbors have a right to feel that these dogs should be kept quiet by being kept inside at night will be greatly appreciated. A. V.

Section 98-42 of the municipal code provides: "If it shall appear that any dog has in any manner disturbed the quiet of any person or caused an abrasion of the skin, or attempted to bite or snap at any person within the city, the owner or keeper shall be fined not less than five dollars nor more than two hundred dollars."

We suggest that you try complaining to the police.

DEADLINE IN TAX SEIZURES TODAY, TOMAN WARNS

Letters Ordering Payment Sent to 20 More Firms.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

The county's drive to collect 260 million dollars in unpaid personal property taxes moved forward yesterday. There were three developments:

1. County Treasurer John Toman announced that 20 business concerns which were warned 15 days ago must pay their back taxes today or face seizure and sale of sufficient property to satisfy the bills. He also said letters to 20 additional delinquents, threatening seizures in 15 days, were mailed yesterday and that batches of such letters will be sent daily hereafter.

2. The Cook county board of commissioners adopted a resolution to protect Sheriff Thomas J. O'Brien in his plan to seize and auction property of delinquents where Circuit court judgments have been obtained on tax bills.

3. The county board, which is considering a plan to withhold remittances to county creditors who owe personalty taxes, received a report from Lee J. Howard, county auditor, showing that 270 of the 620 creditors billed for personal property taxes in 1939 have made no payment on their bills.

Deputy Action Threatened.

Toman said payments by the first 20 companies which were warned must be made either in person or by mail. He said mail payments will be studied Monday and if any of the 20 have failed to pay part or all of their bills deputies will be sent to seize the property and to post auction notices. Law prevents tax auctions from being held until five days after a notice of sale.

In permitting delinquents to make part payments, Toman has modified his original plan. He said firms which apparently are unable to pay in full will be given opportunity to pay in instalments up to six months. Letters originally sent to the delinquents said the property would be auctioned unless taxes and penalties were paid in full in 15 days. Arthur Sullivan, attorney for Toman, reported yesterday only two of the first 20 have paid in full.

Makes Report on Payments.

Howard reported the 270 county creditors who have paid nothing on their 1939 personalty bills owe $239,989 for the year. An additional 87 creditors, whose 1939 tax bills totaled $2,379,406, have made partial payments amounting to $1,864,934, the report said. The remaining 263 creditors paid their 1939 personal property bills, totaling $1,303,093, in full.

Some of the creditors that have made no payments on their 1939 bills, according to Howard's tabulation, are:

	Unpaid tax for 1939.
Banner Wholesale Grocer, Inc.	$ 7,445
Columbia Envelope Company	4,809
Efengee Electr. Supply Co.	5,124
Empire Cooler Service, Inc.	11,668
Galler Drug Co.	5,211
Lincoln Printing Co.	4,871
Ostberg Seed Co.	7,036
Sterne & Maley Co.	11,130
Sugar Supply Corp.	12,835
Transo Envelope Co.	6,023
Union Contr. and Eng. Co.	4,597

Howard also reported that 168 individuals and firms that are creditors of the county received no personal property tax bills in 1939. Among those listed as paying "on account" was the Commonwealth Edison company, which has paid $1,499,684 on its total 1939 personal property bill of $1,733,326, according to Howard. The company is contesting the unpaid balance in a court suit, officials said.

JUDGE REFUSES TO ACQUIT A. M. A. AT TRUST TRIAL

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—Justice James M. Proctor of federal district court refused today to direct the acquittal of the American Medical association, on trial for violation of the Sherman antitrust act. He made the ruling in directing the acquittal of four of the A. M. A.'s codefendants.

Dr. Leon A. Martel and Dr. J. Rogers Young, Washington physicians, named in the original indictment, and the Washington Academy of Surgery and the Harris county, Texas, Medical society, were thus exonerated.

The other defendants include the American Medical association, the District of Columbia Medical society, and 18 physicians. They are accused of a conspiracy to hamper activities of the Group Health association, a coöperative whose members receive medical treatment for a fixed monthly fee.

Lund was injured fatally Jan. 23 when his parked car on which he was repairing a tire was struck by Doubledam's car at Harlem and Berkshire avenues in River Forest.

La Jolla, Cal., March 7 [Special].—Horace Rhodes has developed a giant grapefruit that he predicts will sell by the pound. An amateur horticulturist, Rhodes has developed many cross strains in citrus fruit. Miss Eleanore Brawley posed with one of the giants, which weighed 5 pounds 9 ounces. It measured 26¾ inches in circumference and 8⅛ inches in diameter.

MOTORIST SEIZED FOR HIT AND RUN INJURY OF YOUTH

Protests He Stopped at Accident Scene.

Bruno Bransberger, 6221 Drexel avenue, an elevator operator, was arrested last night by police as the hit and run driver whose automobile struck and seriously injured Ernest Katelhut Jr., 12 years old, near his home at 2250 Garfield boulevard on Thursday. The boy is the son of a policeman.

Bransberger said he stopped at the time of the accident, but this was denied by witnesses. Police charged Bransberger with leaving the scene of an accident, driving on the wrong side of the street, reckless driving, and failure to have a city license tag and safety sticker.

Truck Kills Boy Cyclist.

William McCarthy Jr., 11, of 1911 South Ridgeway avenue, riding home from St. Finbarr's parochial school on his bicycle yesterday, turned around at 16th street and Harding avenue to avoid a collision with an automobile. The boy failed to see an approaching coal truck and was crushed to death under its rear wheels. The truck driver was Robert Curtis, 3849 Oconto avenue.

L. G. Haggart, 31, of 301 North Washington street, Naperville, a filling station operator, was killed when his automobile crashed into a telephone pole on route 65 three miles west of Naperville, in Du Page county.

Two Glenview Residents Hurt.

Harold B. Kennicott and his sister, Miss Alice Kennicott, both of Glenview, were injured seriously when their automobile collided head-on with another near Cordele, Ga. Kennicott's wife escaped serious injury. They were en route to Clearwater, Fla.

Up to 4 p. m. yesterday 151 persons had been killed by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1. Of these, 119 were killed in Chicago, where 3,836 were injured in the same period.

KILLED AT PAPER MILL.

Harlow Oram, 23 years old, 633 Chase avenue, Joliet, a brakeman in the Prairie State Paper Mill there, was killed Thursday night when his hand caught in the rolls.

TAX RATES RISE IN 21 DISTRICTS OF LAKE COUNTY

Waukegan Highest; Levy for 1940 Is $7.77.

The 1940 tax rates for Lake county, showing an increase over the 1939 rates in 21 of the county's 41 school districts, were announced yesterday by Walter Smith, head of the tax division in the office of Jay B. Morse, Lake county clerk.

Property owners in 13 districts will get lower bills this year than last, and the rates in two districts remain the same as for 1939. Rates in the five other districts have not been tabulated.

Assessed Valuation Rises.

Smith reported the total estimated assessed valuation of all property in Lake county for 1940 is $81,883,117, an increase of $2,055,297 over 1939. He said the rise resulted from an increase of $1,200,181 in personal and real estate assessment and an increase of $855,116 in railroad and capital stock valuation by the state tax commission.

Waukegan property owners will pay the highest tax—$7.77 for each $100 assessed valuation—an increase of 16 cents over the 1939 rate. The largest rate increase is in Zion, district 6, with a 1940 tax rate of $7.02 compared with the 1939 rate of $6.54. Lake Bluff showed a reduction of 25 cents under last year in the 1940 rate of $5.45.

Rates Are Compared.

STRANGE AFFAIR OF A ROTHSCHILD COMES TO LIGHT

Romance with an English Girl Told in Court.

BY LARRY RUE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 7.—A strange romance of Baron Lionel Walter Rothschild, who was the second head of the Rothschild family in Great Britain and who died in 1937, came to light today in Chancery court. Miss Marie Barbara Fredenson filed a plea for a rectification of documents providing her and her daughter with an annuity of 550 pounds [currently $2,200] for life.

The story was told by her attorney, Wynn Parry, who said that Miss Fredenson, at the age of 16 years, first met Rothschild in 1903 at the home of a mutual friend. Later that year her father died and her mother went to South Africa. Miss Fredenson was left in the care of friends. While she was training for a stage career, she met Mrs. Lizzie Ritchie, considerably older than herself, with whom she roomed.

In 1905, finding it difficult to obtain first class theatrical engagements, Miss Fredenson wrote to Baron Rothschild. He suggested a meeting at the Marlyebone station, where they discussed her stage career. He said he would be better able to help her if they set up a house together.

Relief from Financial Worry.

After the meeting, but on the same day, Rothschild, in order to relieve her of financial worries, wrote her, "I promise that should any unfortunate accident arise to separate us in the future, I will arrange it so that you will get such an allowance weekly that you will never want."

He also took steps toward furthering her stage career, thinking he might get in touch with George Edwardes, famous theatrical producer, thru his uncle. Miss Fredenson was persuaded to take a room in the name of Mrs. Walters, with a view to their having an establishment together.

"At the last moment her courage failed her," said Parry. "She told the baron when he called that she had changed her mind. He was distressed, but said that he must fall in with her wishes, but told her to let him know if she should change her mind again. She went into the country after confiding in Mrs. Ritchie. The story then becomes even more unusual. Mrs. Ritchie communicated with the baron, informing him that if he made the same proposal to her he would have met with a different answer. Soon the baron started to live with Mrs. Ritchie."

Persuaded to Change Mind.

"Then Miss Fredenson again got in touch with the baron regarding her stage career and was finally persuaded to change her mind," Parry continued. "She and the baron set up a house together in February, 1906, and in December of that year a daughter was born. When the child was registered the father's name was given as Lionel Walters. It had become esential not to give the baron's name in view of the persistent campaign of persecution started by Mrs. Ritchie because she no longer was living with the baron."

Parry then said that because of Mrs. Ritchie's objections Miss Fredenson left the baron, altho they were on the very best of terms. A deed was drawn up providing for the payment of a "clear yearly sum" of 550 pounds, but since Rothschild's death the executors of the baron's will have been deducting the tax. Her argument is that the annuity is tax free and should be paid by the baron's estate.

They Give Master a Puzzle

[TRIBUNE Photos.]

As testimony in the Joslyn case was concluded yesterday Master in Chancery John J. Kelly remarked that there had been so much lying on both sides that he was going to find it difficult to decide whom to believe. Left to right: George Joslyn, Mrs. Charlotte Joslyn, and Attorney Thomas Hart Fisher as they appeared in court yesterday.

MRS. JOSLYN HAS WORD FOR THOSE TALES—IT'S 'LIES'

Charges an Attempt to Smear Her Lawyer.

Testimony in the turbulent Joslyn case ended yesterday after a hearing before Master in Chancery John J. Kelly in which:

1. Mrs. Charlotte Joslyn pounded on the master's glass topped walnut table and asserted that the harsh words uttered against her by other witnesses were "deliberate lies and utter fabrications."

2. Thomas Hart Fisher, her attorney, whose fee of $24,000 is being fought by her husband, George, because of a claim that he was much more than a lawyer to her, described much of Joslyn's earlier testimony as "unqualifiedly false," "absolutely untrue," "wholly inaccurate," "inconsistent," and "incorrect."

3. Master Kelly lamented that every one on one side or the other seemed to be lying and hinted he was in for quite a time trying to determine whose testimony to believe.

Charge Labeled "Fantastic."

Mrs. Joslyn struck the keynote of the session by testifying that when she heard her husband accuse her of misconduct with Fisher, she labeled the charge "fantastic" and told him there was no truth to it.

"He said he didn't care about the truth," she testified. "All he cared about, he said, was to smear Mr. Fisher's name all over the country. And"—with a glare at Joslyn and his attorney, Alvin Hubbard—"he's certainly done so!"

She also asserted—with frequent rappings on the table—that Joslyn lied when he testified at a previous hearing that she had admitted engaging in an experimental love affair with a young Florida physician; that M. L. Joslyn, George's father, was "mistaken" when he made a deposition that she told him Fisher was a "dear friend" and would not charge her for services, and that her butler had lied when he said she had cocktail parties in her home.

Admits Having Egg Nog.

"We had egg nog. That's not a cocktail, master," she explained.

"This is a strange case indeed," interjected Kelly.

"Do you want me to believe that every witness on the other side has been lying?"

"Yes, sir!" Mrs. Joslyn cried.

After Mrs. Joslyn concluded, Joslyn testified briefly. Master Kelly sighed and continued hearings till Monday.

4 SLAYERS HANG AS BROADCASTS ARE CALLED OFF

Columbia, La., March 7 (AP).—Louisiana executed four Arkansas convict killers today shortly after their requested "death row" radio broadcast warning against crime was banned in a last minute move by authorities.

The final statements, in which they told others to profit by their mistakes, were read, nevertheless, over the air from the jail by an announcer for station KMLB of Monroe, La., as the four men awaited their turns on the gallows. Two of the condemned men professed religion and sought repentance in their last words. All bade relatives farewell or warned that "crime doesn't pay."

The four were William Meharg, 25 years old; Floyd Boyce, 29; William Heard, 43, and William Landers, 39. They were members of a band of escaped convicts during whose capture a posseman was slain.

Shortly before going to the gallows Landers turned over to Sheriff Erskine a dummy pistol fashioned from cardboard and tin foil, and said: "I'm giving this to you because I never got to use it."

Chicagoans at Belleair, Fla., Turn to Golf

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE dozens of Chicagoans who have arrived in Belleair, Fla., on a late winter holiday have two important golf tournaments to follow. The Belleair open, formerly the West Coast open, for the Plant trophy will be held tomorrow and Monday at the Belleair Country club. The annual women's championship will follow on Tuesday thru next Saturday at the same club.

The Silas Strawns, the Marvin Pools, Mrs. Charles H. White and her daughter, Miss Jane White, all are expected at the Belleview Biltmore in Belleair this week-end. Mrs. Jay N. Whipple will arrive there soon to join her husband. Mr. Whipple, the George F. McLaughlins, the Philip R. Clarkes, Mrs. John McKinlay and her daughter, Mrs. John H. Middleton Jr., Mrs. John H. Rodger of Winnetka, and Mrs. Harry M. Sloan already have started the acquisition of sun-tans at the same resort.

Many other Chicagoans are at Key West, Fla. Most of them were guests of Mrs. Calvin Fentress Jr. of Lake Forest at a cocktail party this week in the patio of the Casa Marina. Mr. and Mrs. William P. Martin Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ralph I. Farwell, Russell P. Kelley, and Mr. and Mrs. Daggett Harvey were in the group.

Lieut. and Mrs. Waller Are Parents of Son.

The William Waller Jr. home in Palm Beach is filled with excitement over the arrival of the Wallers' first grandchild, a son, William IV., who was born to Lieut. and Mrs. Waller III. last Friday in Orlando, where Lieut. Waller is stationed with the air corps. Young Mrs. Waller is the former Mary Ellen Venturini of San Antonio, Tex. Lieut. Waller's mother and sister, Miss Virginia Waller, are in Palm Beach, where Mr. Waller will join them soon. Miss Lucia Waller will go south from the Garrison Forest school near Baltimore on March 21. Thatcher Waller has just joined the army and is at Camp Grant awaiting orders.

The Jeffrey R. Shorts, who arrived in Winnetka yesterday morning, learned of the birth of their second grandson while they were en route home from Miami. John Trumbull Harris is the first child of Stanley Gale Harris Jr. and the former Marian Short. Born Wednesday night in Seattle, where his parents have been living since their marriage, he was named for a revolutionary ancestor. The senior Harrises reside in Winnetka.

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hollins Christen Baby Tomorrow.

Only the family and the godparents will be present for the christening tomorrow afternoon of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald V. Hollins Jr.s' baby son, Peter. The ceremony will be held in the apartment of Mrs. Hollins' grandmother, Mrs. Patrick A. Valentine. The Rev. Edward G. Mullaly of St. Mary's church will officiate. Mrs. Sewall Gardner, the former Miss Betty Keith, and Garfield King will be the godparents.

A wartime romance and a marriage in Bermuda will make this month a memorable one for a former Chicago family. In Bermuda Mr. and Mrs. Walter Willard Taylor of New York, formerly of Geneva, are preparing for the marriage this month of their daughter, Joanne, to Lieut. D. K. Deryck Pinchbeck of the British royal air force.

Miss Taylor was graduated from Miss Porter's school in Farmington, Conn., and from the University of Chicago. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Taylor of New Orleans, formerly of Chicago, and of Mrs. Willis J. Wells of Chicago. Her maternal grandfather, the late Col. Wells, was a pioneer printer and engraver.

Lieut. Frederick McNally Being Married Today.

The entire Andrew McNally family is in Montgomery, Ala., today for the marriage of Lieut. Frederick George McNally and Miss Kate Fariss Fraser. The Andrew McNallys, who gave the bridal dinner last night for their son and his bride; Ward McNally and Miss Eleanor McNally; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew McNally III., who drove south from Greenwich, Conn., and Mrs. McNally Sr.'s sister-in-law, Mrs. Lawrence H. Vilas, and Miss Betty Vilas, all will attend the ceremony at 4 o'clock in St. John's Episcopal church. A reception will follow in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Clisby Fraser.

Miss Fariss Fraser will be her sister's maid of honor, and Mrs. Richard Quisenberry matron of honor. Both of the bridegroom's brothers will be in the party, Andrew III. as best man and Ward as usher. Marion Claybaugh of Los Angeles, Elwood Lippincott of Asbury Park, N. J., John Meyer of Forest Hills, N. Y., and Van Shapard Jr. of Nashville, Tenn., complete the ushers' corps.

Bokum-Barker Wedding Takes Place This Afternoon.

Standing before an old Spanish mantel in the two story living room of the Walter R. Barkers' Beverly Hills home, their daughter, Miss Margaret Barker, and Richard D. Bokum will repeat their wedding vows at 5:30 o'clock this afternoon. The Rev. G. Carleton Storey will read the service in the presence of the families and a few intimate friends. A small reception will follow.

The pretty, blonde bride will be attended by her sisters, Natalie, a student at the Ethel Walker school, and Consuelo, who attends the Sandia school in Alberquerque, N. M. Hugh Peterson will be the best man. Three of the bridegroom's former Princeton classmates, James T. Aubrey Jr., David Allerdice of Indianapolis, and Stephen Fox of New Jersey, are here for the wedding, and will be honorary ushers along with the bride's brother, Gregson Barker. Also here for the ceremony are the bride's former roommate at Miss Walker's, Mrs. Richard F. Corroon, and her husband of New Modest Answer.

Bishop Conkling, the new Episcopal bishop of Chicago, has two young daughters. They were cautioned by their mother, when the bishop's election was announced, not to say much at school in Germantown, Pa., where they then were living, about their father's new position. One day the elder came home from school and asked: "Mother, is it all right, when some one asks me how I like being a bishop's daughter, to say 'so far, so good'?"

Dear Miss Provines:

You have given us colorful descriptions of Sunrise Mountain farm and we have heard from Joe, the trucker. Here's another phase of American life, fast drawing to a close, that is worthy of light. He is the telegraph operator. His sunshine is the electric light, day and night; his summer breeze, the burr of an electric fan. For the soft music of birds he has the continuous shout and shriek of rush messages, airways, fruit orders, and market bids. He gets his vacation in the winter; he cannot be spared during the business rush of summer. Holidays, Sundays, and even Christmas are all alike to him. He works. The only difference, he usually works harder on these days.

The telegraph operator, like democracy and freedom, is on his last legs. The radio, telephone, and air mail services are spelling finis to his talents, and in time his memory will be recorded only in print.

Once, not too long ago to remember, the Morse telegraph operator was considered a person of skill and distinction. Then, the page printer moved in, followed by the automatic and teletype machines. New and younger help was hired and taught the new system of transmitting and receiving telegrams; a system as simple as typewriting your name. The new help was not as capable or as reliable as the oldtimers but they got by. They were hired at a low scale of wage. The old Morse men, stiffened and hardened to the nerve racking staccato click of the telegraph key and sounder, were slowly but deliberately pushed out. They were retired or placed on the extra list. The day of the Morse man was over.

Now, thousands of these baffled men wander aimlessly about the country. Hundreds of them loiter about Van Buren and La Salle streets begging for dimes, or any work in bond houses.

You, Joe, the trucker, and you, Marge on Sunrise farm, have something joyful to write about. In your evening prayers give thanks that you are not one of the telegraph family.

Dean Louis D. Moorhead Leaves Loyola U. Faculty

The Rev. Samuel Knox Wilson, S. J., president of Loyola university, announced yesterday the resignation of Dr. Louis D. Moorhead as dean of Loyola university medical school. Dr. Moorhead will devote his time to private practice. Dr. Moorhead has been dean of the school since 1918 and professor of surgery since 1928. He was the late Cardinal Mundelein's personal physician.

Young Soprano, Violinist Give Joint Recital

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Two of the city's brightest young musicians were heard in joint recital in the Goodman theater last night. Helen Margolyne, soprano, offered a miscellany of Italian, French, German, and English songs. Herman Clebanoff, violinist, played a group of modern transcriptions and original pieces and [with Marion Hall] the Brahms A Major Sonata.

Miss Margolyne not only displayed her silvery, attractive little voice to good advantage but also proved that she is growing artistically with every year that goes over her head. Her phrasing was delicate and meaningful, her grasp of contrasting types of music [Fauré and Strauss, for example] remarkably intelligent. Rossini's "La Danza," it is true, fell a little flat, but this means nothing more terrible than that Miss Margolyne has not yet happened to hit upon the secret of this song's exhilaration and sense of headlong motion.

Mr. Clebanoff's technical adroitness, delicacy of conception, and sound rhythmic sense were nowhere more apparent than in the Bartók Roumanian Dances. His tone thruout most of the evening was of a shining beauty, altho he certainly did a little miscalculating in the pianissimo part of Ravel's "Kaddish."

Miss Hall provided finely conceived and executed accompaniments and piano parts.

Leo Sowerby is a composer who is much less interested in winning friends and influencing people [by means of his music] than he is in living up to his own very high esthetic code. His new symphony [No. 3, F sharp minor], which was presented in Orchestra hall Thursday and yesterday by Frederick Stock and the Chicago Symphony orchestra, has both the drawbacks and the excellences associated with such an attitude.

Except for a few widely spaced episodes, the symphony is not effective and does not get over the footlights easily. On first hearing it does not seem to address even the most attentive listeners with great urgency nor to hold them with any continuous, cumulative, momentum filled discourse.

On the other hand, the sincerity of the symphony is beyond question. So its its superlative workmanship. Its instrumentation often has a quiet, woodwindy beauty characteristic of the composer. Its themes are evocative and exquisitely contoured.

At Hull House tonight the Hull House Music school will present a program of chamber music by Nesta Smith and Antoinette Tremater, violinists; Florence Dangremond, cellist, and Anna Kohn, Florence Kerman, and Rita Schwartz, pianists.

Anna Thelma Joseffer, violinist, and Evelyn White, pianist, will be heard in a sonata recital tonight at the Ann Rudolph school. Charlotte Schuchardt and the Anrudic Motion choir is to present several dance compositions.

THE STAGE

Barbara Scully, a young newcomer from Detroit, takes over the rôle of Kathie in "The Student Prince" at the Grand Opera house this afternoon. She will continue in the part until the operetta closes next Saturday evening.

"New Pins and Needles" will close its engagement at the Studebaker theater on Saturday, April 5. "Du Barry Was a Lady" closes tonight at the Erlanger.

"Strange Bedfellows," a farce comedy by John McGee and J. Bradley-Griffin, will be presented in the Civic theater by the Uptown players next Friday and Saturday.

Looking at Hollywood

By John Chapman

Hollywood, Cal., March 6.—Jimmy Stewart, who is a very well behaved guy, got home at 5 a. m. after he won his Oscar at the Academy dinner. He galloped into Burgess Meredith's room, shook Buzz awake, brandished his statue, and yelled, "I got it! I got it!" Meredith, who hadn't even remembered there was an Academy dinner, pried one eye open, took a look at Stewart and his prize, and queried, "Where you been—Venice?"

Meredith is surrounded by Oscar winners, living with Stewart and acting with Ginger Rogers in "Tom, Dick and Harry." He says he's glad—and so is everybody else—to see two people who are actually and unaffectedly thrilled at getting their trophies. "Only other winners I knew were a couple of bored, sophisticated writers who used their statues for doorsteps or to brain people with," says Buzz. "Rogers and Stewart are refreshing."

As long as this started as a postmortem column on recent events we might as well include a couple of yarns about the other two main topics of recent times—the shocking and interminable rainstorm, now happily passed, and Bayview's $118 victory in the Santa Anita handicap.

Rainstorm stories are endless—like the one about the fellow at Columbia Pictures who bought a house two weeks ago, and a week later saw it slide to destruction in the mud at the rate of an inch an hour. Twentieth-Fox has been making a musical called "Miami." Figuring that Florida weather was too wet and rough to chance making the picture on location, the studio built a hunk of Florida on its back lot—and a particularly heavy storm three or four night ago blew down all the palm trees.

Lionel Barrymore bought and moved to a remote 10 acre place in Chatsworth. There was a pretty little creek on the property, and he left it there for scenery. Came the rains and Mr. Barrymore was marooned. Finally he just had to get in to the M. G. M. plant, so he phoned the studio and had it send up a car to the edge of the now torrential stream. He came to the other bank with a horse, had a hired man hoist him aboard and perilously forded the creek cowboy style.

R. K. O. Producer Howard Benedict, one of the town's ablest and most fortunate gamblers, would, of course, have $25 on Bayview's nose, and word of such winnings does get around. Couple of days after the race Mrs. Benedict went to buy some flowers. She asked how much the begonias were and the guy said 35 cents a copy. She allowed that was a mite high, whereupon the florist snapped, "You can afford it. Your husband had $25 on Bayview."

Turnabout tale: Garson Kanin, now Hollywood's only baldheaded white-haired boy, is currently directing Burgess Meredith. Meredith revealed yesterday that, in his first Broadway hit, "Little Old Boy," Kanin was his understudy. And a very pestiferous understudy who was always trying to tell him how to act.

The action of a Florida judge in refusing to give Betty Compton Walker a parting from Jimmy Walker has caused tremors here, where incompatibility divorces can have the goofiest excuses. Suppose a judge some day should say to a surprised Hollywood couple, "No, by golly, you can't have a divorce." It's a shocking thought, mates. And I mean mates!

Gay Nineties Comedy Droll and Dramatic

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

Here's a comedy romance of the gay '90s that should delight everybody!

It's droll. It's dramatic. It sports the picturesque costumes, customs, coiffures, and songs of a florid, happy period, and the acting and dialog are exceptionally good. As is the direction—in the main. At the last I thought things sort of slopped over, but right certainly DOES triumph with a vengeance. And that, of course, is something.

Mr. Cagney appears as Biff Grimes, a small town correspondence school dentist who loses the strawberry blonde he THINKS he wants to marry to one Hugo Barnstead, a brash, back slapping young politician, who dresses as loudly as the law allows and is a geewhilliker with the girls.

A slippery elm, this Hugo, and one of his slick deals plumps Biff—at that time connected with him in business—right into the penitentiary for a period of years. . . . Biff, you see, the trusting soul, had signed a certain paper, wotting not what he was signing.

But the demure Mrs. Grimes, who, we must say, Biff had wed on the rebound, loyally awaites her spouse. . . . After he is again in circulation the two of them manage to carve out a pretty happy life—overshadowed by Biff's hate for Hugo and his determination to get even. . . . Get even he does—in the last reel.

Unexpected asides, spontaneous and human, add a fillip to the piece.

Mr. Cagney plays with relish and ability, though I thought Jack Carson's portrayal of Barnstead went his Biff one better. . . . Rita Hayworth is clever and pretty as the blonde menace and Olivia de Haviland gets over in great style, first as the supposedly strong minded trained nurse whose "mamma was one of the original bloomer girls." . . . "She's FAST!" hastily and surreptitiously comments one blade to another. . . . Later she creeps right into your heart as the gentle, gallant Melanie-like person she really is. . . . . George Tobias is much and entertainingly present as the town barber and Biff's best friend. . . . You'll get a kick out of several scenes in the barber shop AND those barber shop chords!

Well, guess that about says it.

You won't go far wrong taking "Strawberry Blonde" for that tired feeling.

[And here's the answer to a question you'll be asking yourselves: You DID once see a picture adapted from the same story. Its name—"One Sunday Afternoon." Its stars—Gary Cooper, Fay Wray, Neil Hamilton, Frances Fuller. And it was shown at the Chicago Theater in September of 1933.]

See you tomorrow.

Alliance Francaise.

"Claude Monet" is the subject of the lecture which Marius Jean will give at the Alliance Francaise this morning at 11:30 o'clock.

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

The recent Midwest Beauty Trade show was the peg on which a number of the country's finest hairdressers, including many members of our own Chicago and Illinois association, hung some of the best exhibitions of competent styling we have ever seen. There was a great deal of beautiful craftsmanship displayed in the various demonstrations.

"Flivver fashions" in hairdress can amount to a national style tragedy. They are rubber stamp and for some reason women go for them whether or not they are becoming. This year there is no flivver fashion to speak of. All the emphasis is on silhouette, in an arrangement that suggests and flatters the shape of the head. Pompadours were popular—and beautiful—but they are not stereotyped. Pompadour does not mean a Gibson girl roll framing the face. It can take that line, if that line is becoming to the wearer, but it can be arranged in any number of stunning versions. "Pompadour" seems to be the word that covers any suggestion of height or fluff or curl centered above the forehead.

In any case, pompadour or no, there is a necessity for an upswept line in the front at least. And gradually, but with the utmost certainty, back hair IS getting shorter. Maybe not for the young things—tho they'll come to it too—but for most women over 25.

In hair work, shaping is everything. Setting hair into a certain line is no trick. But cutting it so that the hair can hold the line calls for good craftsmanship. It's what hairdressers should pray for, and what women will willingly pay for!

Smart Ascot Gives Dresses Spring Touch

BY REA SEEGER.

Clever new accents for the neckline problems go into crisp checked and striped taffeta. Narrow smart ascots are of candy stripe taffeta, ready to be tied artfully close around the throat and pinned in position with a bright costume pin. These are not to be confused with the old time ascots.

Sailor collars and matching cuffs for simple daytime dress made of smart small checked taffeta in red and white are natural accents for all the navy blue dresses or the simple jackets that top pleated skirts. Pleated ruffles edge both collar and cuffs. These striped and checked taffeta trifles are as springlike as the first batch of pussywillows. They will revive the appearance of the most dated dress or jacket as if by magic.

The snowy white collars and cuffs are so plentiful most of the showings look like an inside blizzard job. Airy sheers, stunning eyelet embroidery, dainty appliqued effects of organdy against net, and the exquisitely fine French embroideries make the loveliest confectionery accents imaginable.

Val lace is getting a terrific push. Narrow and wide edgings and insertion combine with fine organdies, linens, and nets to make flattering white yokes, sailor collars, deep vestees, and ruffled cascades for suit or dresses. Frou frou in white will make fashion necklines this spring!

SYNOPSIS.

Don Barron, young American newspaper man, is sent to rescue Paul Darmal, a financier and an opponent of the Nazi régime. His plan is to let Darmal take his place on a Swedish boat and flee Germany. But when Barron arrives he finds his plans have been intercepted by the Nazis and he is left in Germany to figure some other way of getting Darmal out. He receives a message from a street hawker and goes to a nearby saloon to decipher it. He realizes he is being followed by secret service agents, but he manages to reach Darmal's place of concealment, where he finds Darmal has been forced to flee to another refuge. He meets Hertha, Darmal's stepdaughter; Twysden, the local agent in their rescue plan, and Darmal's granddaughter, Sigi.

INSTALMENT VI.

HIDING PLACE.

"There are special sources of information in my peculiar set in the university," Sigi said with her secret smile.

"But the way she has acted on them has been splendid," Hertha cried. "We have been hunted from pillar to post, Mr. Barron, until it seemed as tho there wasn't a spot in Germany where he was safe, no, nor a chance to get him abroad.

"It was Sigi who in the end, got in touch with Anthony, Mr. Twysden, here, who was able to get news to grandfather's friends in America."

Barron noted that Twysden was not too happy at being reminded of Sigi's place in the scheme of things. In fact, he said curtly:

"It was Hertha who at last found a place in this town and protected him here."

"He is here still?" Barron asked.

"No, I've told you the Nazis have shot our plans to pieces," Twysden muttered sulkily. "They got wind of him here and we had to get him away again."

"You're sure they knew?"

"Sure!" Twysden cried. "The S. S. trucks were actually entering the street as we got Darmal away by the back door. It was touch and go."

"Sigi again," Hertha glowed softly. "If she had not brought word we'd never have saved him." Twysden looked down his nose, as tho he had his own opinions of that, so Hertha said: "Isn't that so, Sigi?"

"Not a hope," the other girl said evenly. "He'd be in a concentration camp — or more likely have been purged by axe or bullet by this — but for my brilliant intervention."

"How did they know?" Barron probed. "If the secret was your own and well kept. . . ?"

"That's the mystery," Twysden muttered, keeping his eyes away from Sigi. "There are no clues."

"It was just their cleverness," Hertha seemed almost pleading with Twysden. "The Gestapo has a terrifying organization, you know, Mr. Barron."

"Looks like terrifying luck, too," Barron frowned. "Could any one have seen Darmal arrive?"

"I'd say no," Twysden said. "Hertha brought him alone by car. She managed it with the greatest secrecy, not even letting him sit up until she'd closed the garage door on him."

"Anthony—Mr. Twysden, helped splendidly," Hertha said. "It was really he——"

"O, I helped," the youngster flushed in a manner Barron thought worth noting. "But mine was mainly staff work. Hertha actually did the job. Anyhow, between us we're dead sure nobody trailed Darmal to the house."

"Who knew he was there?"

"That's the trouble," Twysden was sullen again. "There were only us here and the old couple who looked after him, and we're sure they're trustworthy."

The silence that followed was alive with an intimate unease. Hertha murmured almost as if she were defending some one:

"We can answer for everybody, you see, Mr. Barron. It could only have been Nazi cleverness."

"That's also a point," Don Barron said. "The Nazis are clever, yet you yourselves seem to have escaped suspicion. I'd have thought you'd been as liable to arrest as Darmal himself."

"What! Loyal Nazis like us!" Sigi mocked. "Why, we've belonged to every possible youth organization of the party from our schooldays up."

"Grandfather saw to that," Hertha said, wincing at the other girl's manner. "It was the way to avoid suspicion, and I'm sure that is the reason why they have overlooked us—so far. Also, you must remember that we've been here, in town, at the university mostly in the last few years, seeing little of grandfather in his country house; very much less, even, since the party became antagonistic to him. He himself saw that it was safer for us to keep apart. And, of course, we've worked very carefully so that nothing could be traced to us—as Mr. Twysden will tell you."

"And that's that, Mr. Barron," Sigi said. "We can trace nothing, even thru ourselves—also we've talked it over until our jaws cracked."

Barron noted that Twysden had to hold himself in as she spoke. Hertha said placatingly, "How to make sure of grandfather's safety now is all that matters."

"He is safe now?"

"Quite safe." It was Sigi who said that. The others did not speak. Twysden, in fact, was scowling.

"No getting him aboard the Magnus in my place, as planned?"

"No, that scheme's out," Twysden said. "Putteamus and his chaps are ready for anything like that. Also they have every passenger taped by now."

He saw Barron's eyebrows go up.

"Yes, I'm afraid that definitely ranks you as an abscondee, Barron. You've vanished from the ship, leaving Capt. Hekking in the dark and quite furious."

Barron, sitting stolid and still, thought it over, and said easily:

"Yeh, that's the best line. Hekking should report me missing himself."

"Those are his instructions," Twysden said taken aback by the other's calmness.

"Fine! That'll let him out," Barron said with such satisfaction that one of the girls laughed.

It was Sigi, of course, her eyes even took on a sparkle as she looked at him. Hertha, who saw deeper, said breathlessly, "But that means real danger for you, Mr. Barron. The Gestapo will search for you as well."

"I daresay they can be dodged," he grinned, not unpleased by her concern.

"Yes, we're—I understand we're getting out of here at once," Twysden said.

"Is there all that hurry?" Don Barron asked, looking at Hertha. "Until Magnus actually sails——"

"She goes out before dawn, and a good thing, too, she may get clear before things blow up."

"What is going to blow up?" Barron demanded. "What's back of all this troop movement?"

"We don't know." Twysden shrugged. "It may be the long-planned knock-out for England at last."

"But that's to be launched thru Holland and Belgium, I thought."

"They'll have to ship troops from every port they've got for a job like that." Twysden said. "They mean business, whatever it is, and because of that the quicker we get Darmal out of Germany the better. They'll be tightening up frontiers——"

"Well, we're all ready, aren't we?" Sigi said, picking up a heavy coat and moving toward the door.

"Wait a minute," Barron drawled. "I'd like to hear something more about this."

"I'm taking you to where Darmal is hidden," she said.

"And I'm noticing you're saying the minimum about it," Don Barron said so grimly that the girl's eyes narrowed on him.

"Precisely. The absolute minimum," she answered with a curtness that seemed malicious.

"You mean nobody here knows?"

"Nobody here, or anywhere, but me—and one other."

"That doesn't sound so good to me," Barron frowned, remembering Herr Oberst Putteamus.

"Think a bit, Mr. Barron," she shrugged. "Every hiding place my grandfather has used so far has been betrayed. We couldn't afford to take any more chances. So, to cut out all possible risks, I resolved that one of us only—I—should handle the matter."

That was sense, yet it didn't sound so trusting. He could see by Twysden's face he was furious, yet Hertha's eyes met his with steady frankness and she said:

"We all felt it was the best and safest way, Mr. Barron, after we'd discussed it."

BY MARY MEADE.

[Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.]

Anybody who lives this side of the Mississippi now can buy a fine variety of fresh oysters which are shipped to him the day they're harvested from the Long Island oyster beds.

The oysters are expressed in an especially made wooden tub, and are packed in ice. The package contains a quart of opened oysters in their own liquor [about 60 of them] and about 60 oysters in the shell. For 25 cents more than the cost of the oysters, a special shucking knife for the unshucked oysters is included. Cost, without the knife, to Chicagoans is $2.75.

Oysters casino are delicious, and persons who don't care for raw oysters on the halfshell "go for" them this way.

OYSTERS CASINO.

Lay open oysters on a bed of rock salt or on a baking pan and sprinkle each with a little freshly grated black pepper, minced parsley, and chopped chives. Lay a strip of bacon over each and broil until bacon is done, but not long enough to make it crisp. This would be too long a cooking period for the oysters, which require only the briefest exposure to heat, any way you cook them. If you insist on crisp bacon, fry it out a bit in a skillet first.

Now we can buy ready broiled mushrooms in the can. They're handy for steaks, especially, delicious heated and served as a vegetable, too. They are fat, flavorful mushrooms, and they've been cooked in butter.

There often was a pail of pickled tripe in our pantry at home, and I supposed, as children do, that everybody knew about tripe and ate it as often as we did. Nowadays I find that few homemakers even know for certain just what tripe is, let alone how to prepare it for the table.

Tripe is the inner lining of a beef stomach. The smooth, plain tripe comes from the first stomach, and the honeycomb tripe from the second. Honeycomb tripe is the kind usually pickled or canned plain. Canned tripe is good when it has been dipped in crumbs and fried. The mild flavor requires a tartar sauce, chili sauce, horseradish, or another accent.

Fresh tripe is washed, simmered for an hour in water to cover, and thereafter is ready to French-fry, or prepare otherwise. A two-pound piece of tripe may be stuffed with a well seasoned dressing, rolled, tied, and baked for an hour at 350 degrees. Bacon strips should cover it during baking. Tripe roll needs a well seasoned tomato sauce. It's really delicious.

BEG PARDON!

We're sorry there was an error in the orange coconut cake which appeared in yesterday's food section. The corrected recipe is as follows:

Orange Coconut Cake.

2¼ cups sifted cake flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
Grated rind of 1 lemon
Grated rind of 1 orange
⅝ cup butter
1½ cups sugar
3 eggs
2 tablespoons lemon juice
5 tablespoons orange juice
2 tablespoons water

Sift flour, baking powder and salt three times. Add grated rinds to butter and sugar, and cream thoroly. Add eggs, one at a time, beating thoroly after each addition. Add flour and liquids alternately, beating well after each addition. Turn into two greased 9 inch layer pans and bake in a moderately hot [375 degrees] oven for 20 minutes, or until done. Spread coconut filling between layers and ice with seven minute frosting. Sprinkle top with toasted coconut.

Dr. Angell to Address U. of Chicago's 203d Convocation Friday

Dr. James Rowland Angell, former president of Yale university, will address the 203d convocation of the University of Chicago next Friday in Rockefeller Memorial chapel, when 200 candidates will receive degrees.

Dr. Angell was a member of the University of Chicago faculty from 1894 to 1920. He was named head of the psychology department in 1905, dean of the faculties in 1911, and was vice president in 1918 and 1919. He retired in 1936, after serving as president of Yale university for 15 years.

Bachelor's degrees will be bestowed on 158 candidates at the spring convocation, while 37 students will receive the degree of doctor of philosophy, five will become masters of business administration, three bachelors of divinity, one doctor of law, and 31 doctors of medicine.

ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore H. Bearse of La Grange announce the engagement of their daughter, Frances Hallett, to Lieut. Joseph William Mehring Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Mehring of Huntington, Ind. Miss Bearse attended Gulf Park college and the Goodman School of the Theater. Her fiancé was graduated from Notre Dame university. Recently he was here on a visit from Quantico, Va., where he will be stationed until June in the marine corps school.

Bed Sock, Infant's Bootee

BY ELLEN BRUCE.

The invalid with faulty circulation will welcome this delightfully warm and comfortable crocheted bed sock. It is a perfect fit and suitable for any size foot. From this same pattern, with a change of material and hooks, one may create an ideal bootee for the infant. It is seldom one finds such a perfect sock, which may be made in about half an hour. One pair an hour! Think what may be accomplished in one day.

For instructions in crocheting the bed sock and infant's bootee, No. 402, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Miss Phoebe Ann Burr Being Married Tonight.

The marriage of Miss Phoebe Ann Burr to George Alexander McKeon will take place at 8:30 o'clock tonight in the home of the bride's father, William Brown Burr of Hinsdale. Among the out of town guests are the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alexander McKeon of East Orange, N. J., and the bride's aunt, Mrs. Ethel J. Rodman of Santa Barbara, Cal.

The bride will be attended by her three sisters, Miss Priscilla Burr, as maid of honor, and Mrs. H. Wade Barth and Mrs. Gilbert Rust Barton, as bridesmaids. Mr. McKeon's father is to be best man. Ushering will be Mr. Barth, Mr. Barton, and the bride's brother, John Burr.

Mr. McKeon and his bride will reside in East Orange for a short time until he is assigned to an army post as a reserve officer.

In Pasadena this afternoon Mancel T. Clark Jr., son of Mrs. Mancel Clark and the late Mr. Clark of Pasadena, formerly of Winnetka, will take Miss Ellen Lee as his bride. The wedding will take place in the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Baker Lee. Alson Clark Jr. will be his cousin's best man.

The Seymour Offutts [Moyra Browne] are spending the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. William Fergus [Marie Blanche McCormick], who will be leaving Chicago next Wednesday for Camp Forrest, Tenn., where Mr. Fergus has been stationed. Mr. and Mrs. Offutt are residing in St. Louis.

When I use a stiff brush to my radiators I cover their tops with a large, damp cloth. This is a life saver, for it keeps the dust from flying around the room.—Mrs. H. S., Chicago.

1940 Charity Gifts Here Put at $10,500,000

Chicagoans gave generously to organized, legitimate charities in 1940. According to the annual report given out yesterday by Leverett S. Lyon, chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce, contributions from Chicago citizens amounted to $8,718,645.

Of this total, he said, $4,571,194 was raised thru federations, including the Chicago Community fund, and $4,147,450 by individual agencies. In addition were large gifts, mainly bequests, amounting to $1,739,713, raising the grand total to approximately $10,500,000.

"This sum covers donations to bona fide charities within the city limits," Mr. Lyon said. "Donations to churches and educational institutions are not included."

For 1941 268 Chicago charities and philanthropic organizations have been indorsed by the Asociation of Commerce. This is one more than last year. Two of the agencies approved in 1940 have been dropped for failure to meet the association's requirements, and three new ones have been added.

The organizations appearing for the first time this year are the Good Shepherd Community center, the Central Council for Nursing Education, and the Chicago Tumor institute.

Mr. Lyon issued a warning against the rapidly increasing number of war charities.

"While many are worthy and well managed," he said, "the increasing number of spurious war charities are enabling racketeer promoters to mulct well intentioned but ill advised donors of millions of dollars."

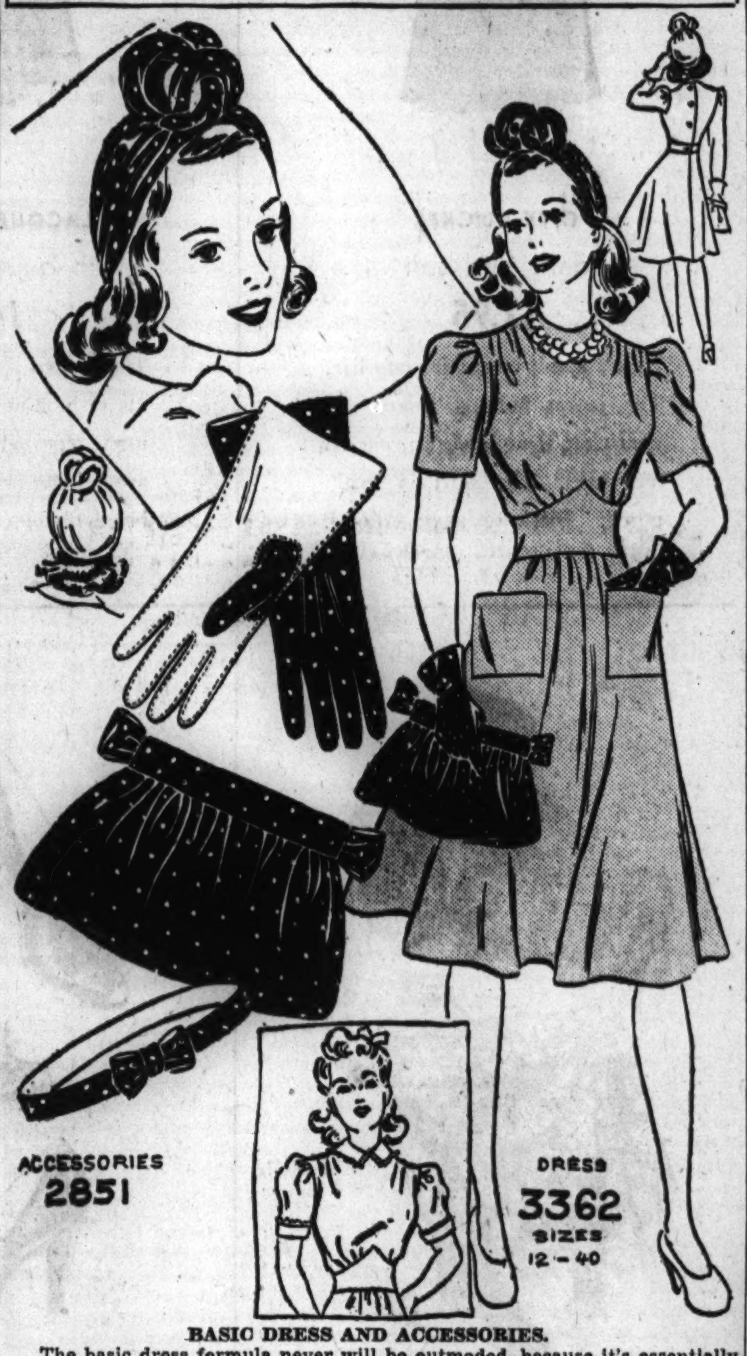
Basic Frock and Accessories



BASIC DRESS AND ACCESSORIES.

The basic dress formula never will be outmoded, because it's essentially smart and keeps pace with fashion. Today's two patterns offer a style conspiracy you'll join in heartily. The dress is a simple, feminine model with corselet waistline, soft bodice, short sleeves, full skirt and large pockets. The accessories include turban, gloves, bag, and belt in contrasting color and material.

Style No. 3362 is designed for sizes 12, 14, and 16, and 36, 38, and 40 inch bust measurements. Size 16 requires 4⅛ yards of 39 inch material.

Style No. 2851 is designed for one size, hat adaptable to any head size; gloves size 6½, adaptable to any size. Hat, bag, gloves, and belt require 1½ yards of 35 inch printed fabric, with 1 yard of plain.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1941: By Ely Culbertson.]

Yesterday I gave the requirements for the opening two no trump bid in the new Culbertson system and stressed the fact that his bid should be used with greater frequency. Now let us consider the responses to an opening two no trump. These are very simple, as follows: After an opening two no trump bid, the responder should show any six card or longer major suit even without any top strength. To show a five card suit he requires a minimum of one-half an honor trick. With only one-half an honor trick and no five card or longer suit, he should pass.

Holding more than one-half an honor trick, the responder should bid any five card suit or should raise to three no trump. Examples:

1. ♠965432 ♥74 ♦63 ♣852
2. ♠K52 ♥743 ♦632 ♣8542
3. ♠532 ♥74 ♦KJ863 ♣854

With hand 1 responder should, of course, take out the opening two no trump bid to three spades. With hand 2 he should pass. There is not likely to be any reasonable play for three no trump. With hand 3 he should raise to three no trump; he should not bother to mention the diamond suit.

These illustrations, needless to say, are of minimum responses. With greater strength, the responder should first make a simple take-out to his suit and then make a stronger bid at his next opportunity; or if he holds a balanced hand with two or more honor tricks, he should jump to four, five, or even six no trump, depending on his precise holding.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 spade	Pass	2 spades	Pass
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

North's response of two spades is an example of one of the rare instances in which a suit should be supported with slightly less than adequate trump support. With a five card suit headed by the ace, a singleton, and three trumps, North could be sure that his hand would contribute several tricks to a spade contract. A response of one no trump would deceive South as to North's distribution; a response of two clubs would overstate North's strength. By bidding two spades, North could show the full value of his hand and thereafter stay out of the bidding.

West opened the ace of diamonds, hoping his partner would have a trick in the suit or a singleton. On seeing the dummy, he shifted to the eight of clubs.

Fearing a singleton, declarer played dummy's ace of clubs and promptly led two rounds of trumps. When East showed out on the second round, South wisely refrained from drawing the last trump. He cashed the king of diamonds and led the queen of clubs.

East won with the king and cast about for a safe return. It was fairly obvious that the return of either red suit would sacrifice a trick, so East led back the nine of clubs. South discarded a heart, and West had little choice but to ruff with his jack of spades.

Now dummy's ten of spades was an entry and South discarded his other losing heart on the ten of clubs.

March 8, 1941.

Universal Day—A busy, active day if you take it in your stride.

March—For those who are in an eight-year the month of March is a two-month—or really an 11-month which is more difficult if one is not ready to take the high powered number. There may be a great deal of detail to take care of or there may be little worries and irritations that will make this an irksome period. If you can rise above the accumulation of small things, this could be a period of great inspiration when your imagination would be working to lift the everyday things out of their insignificance. Don't get bogged down with trivial matters because this year should be a strongly active and constructive one when the small issue can be pushed aside and the larger projects made to bring in material returns.

WILSON CARRIES WAR ON U. OF C. TO CONFERENCE

Athletic Directors Study Proposal.

Lafayette, Ind., March 7 [Special].—Wendell S. Wilson, director of athletics at the University of Illinois, today reiterated that he is in favor of severing athletic relations with the University of Chicago. He said Illinois would refuse to schedule Chicago in any sport, and he called upon other athletic directors of the Western conference to join him in the movement when a meeting was held here today in connection with the conference track meet and basketball schedule session.

He went before the athletic directors with a resolution calling upon Chicago to leave the Big Ten.

They Won't Talk.

After today's session, none of the directors who could be reached would admit that Wilson had presented such a resolution. It was understood that the resolution would come up for further discussion tomorrow, altho any definite action on the Chicago ouster suggestion this week-end is considered unlikely.

Wilson is piqued at the frequent utterances of Chicago's president, Robert Maynard Hutchins, against the intercollegiate sport program. Hutchins has said he does not believe other schools in the Big Ten conduct their athletics along ethical lines.

In Champaign, Prof. Frank Richart, Illinois faculty representative on the Big Ten athletic board, said Chicago would not be expelled from the conference "just because some one gets mad at President Hutchins."

Claims No Rule Broken.

"A school must break a rule before the matter of breaking relations with them is discussed [by the Big Ten faculty committee], and, so far as I know, Chicago has broken no rule," said Richart. He called attention to the fact that Chicago had intimated it might play football next fall with colleges which have no freshman rule. "If, as, and when such a thing happens, then there might be action."

The resolution which Wilson introduced at the Big Ten athletic directors' meeting follows:

"Whereas, it has definitely been proved that President Hutchins of the University of Chicago, in spite of his denial presented at the spring meeting of the directors of athletics of the Western conference in Chicago a year ago, made public statements to the effect that Big Ten conference institutions conducting football programs were doing so in an unethical manner and were violating their own conference code, and that the University of Chicago could not continue in football and compete with such institutions.

He Demands Evidence.

"Whereas, President Hutchins has not satisfactorily repudiated these statements, nor has he presented to the conference evidence substantiating his charges, thus in the minds of the general public he has left the Big Ten conference convicted of his original assertions.

"Whereas, President Hutchins in his statement of the last week that, if a losing basketball team has a depressing effect on the student body, that Chicago will abolish basketball rather than do what it can in a legitimate way to have good athletic teams, indicates that that institution is not interested in improving the caliber of its athtletic teams.

"Whereas, the minor sports programs—intramural and recreational programs for the entire student bodies of conference schools—are supported largely by income from football, and the University of Chicago is the only conference school that does not contribute towards that income, but derives the benefits by participating in minor team competitions with other conference universities.

He's "The Most Quoted."

"Whereas, President Hutchins is one of the most quoted men in university circles, especially regarding athletics, and he has definitely established himself as being an enemy of intercollegiate sport programs.

"Whereas, the Big Ten conference is an athletic conference only.

"Whereas, officials of the University of Chicago have stated that they will not withdraw from the conference unless they are asked to do so, but will withdraw if and when they are so requested by the athtletic directors.

"Be it resolved, that the directors of athletics of the Western conference respectfully request that the University of Chicago withdraw from their membership."

Coaches Consider Schedules.

Coach Arthur [Dutch] Lonborg of Northwestern said the basketball coaches discussed proposals to replace the present schedule plan, which provides that each team plays three "natural rivals" on a home-and-home basis each season, and the other six teams once each. One plan, Lonborg said, provided a conference schedule of 14 games for each team instead of 12, but details had not yet been worked out.

Beyond the Stars.

She had no reason to be kind to me,
I never brought her anything but pain,
And yet she gladly shared my misery
And suffered want to rouse my hope again;
She could have had the best things life could give,
The world was lavish in its offering,
But, angel that she was, she chose to live
Among the outcasts and the sorrowing.

Somewhere beyond the brightness of the sun,
Beyond the starlight in the vast unknown,
God must have made a place for such a one
Close to the glory of His great white throne,
Where she shall share a thousandfold each day
Those earthly pleasures that she cast away. —T. E. B.

MICHIGAN LEADS IN TRACK TRIALS; QUALIFIES TEN

N. U. and Illinois Hurdlers Set Record in Lows.

Lafayette, Ind., March 7 [Special].—Michigan's known balance was in evidence tonight as the Wolverines led the qualifiers in the preliminaries in six of the twelve events that will be on tomorrow night's final program of the 31st annual Big Ten indoor track meet. The Wolverines' Warren Breidenbach and Jack Leutritz were scratched from the quarter mile run, yet they qualified ten men in the six events.

Illinois and Ohio State, showing more strength than was expected, each qualified seven men, while Indiana, which is expected to press the Wolverines, qualified six, as did Wisconsin. Other qualifiers, by schools, were as follows: Purdue, 5; Northwestern, 4; Iowa, 3; Minnesota, 2; Chicago, 1.

Set Hurdles Record.

Charles Horvath of Northwestern, and Don Olsen of Illinois provided the highlight of the evening when they both were timed in eight seconds flat in qualifying for the finals in the seldom run 70 yard low hurdles, breaking the American indoor record of 8.2 seconds set by Earl Thomson, Dartmouth, in 1921.

Michigan qualified at least one man in each of the six events on the preliminary program, and sprang a surprise by placing three men among the nine who will compete in the 880 yard finals tomorrow night.

Hoosiers Get 2 in 440, 880.

Indiana, which is expected to score heavily in the one mile and two mile runs, in which no preliminaries were held, placed two each in the finals of the 440 yard dash and 880 yard run, one in the broad jump final, and one in the high hurdles semi-finals.

Qualifiers:

60 YARD DASH—Piker, Northwestern; Thomas, Michigan; Clay, Iowa; Hammond, Ohio State; Evans, Minnesota; McFadzean, Wisconsin; Keim, Purdue; Piel, Michigan; Soergel, Wisconsin; Franck, Minnesota; Wright, Ohio State; Novak, Wisconsin. Best time—:06.3 by Piker and Franck.

70 YARD HIGH HURDLES—Wright, Ohio State; Hall, Michigan; Hale, Illinois; Vollenweider, Iowa; McCarthy, Michigan; Mikulas, Indiana; Finch, Northwestern; Sulzman, Ohio State; Rankin, Purdue; Olsen, Illinois; Horvath, Northwestern; Harrer, Wisconsin. Best time—:08.8 by Olsen.

880 YARD RUN—Holderman, Purdue; Brown, Illinois; Kendall, Indiana; Kautz, Michigan; Eisenhart, Ohio State; Egert, Michigan; Kane, Indiana; Breidenbach, Michigan; Randall, Chicago. Best time—1:56.4 by Holderman.

440 YARD DASH—Cochran, Indiana; W. Todd, Iowa; Bailey, Illinois; Anthony, Purdue; Ufer, Michigan; Jenkins, Indiana. Best time—:49.1 by Cochran.

Soose weighed 162½, Vigh 160½. Soose drew a 30 day suspension from the New York State Athletic commission for coming in a pound and a half overweight.

Zale and Ross Help Honor 1941 Heroes

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Two gents who had helped make Golden Gloves history presented the two sportsmanship trophies annually awarded in the welterweight and heavyweight divisions, last night in the Stadium. One was Barney Ross, former lightweight and welterweight champion of the world, in addition to doing a turn as a referee, handed Bob Burns, Fort Wayne 147 pounder, the trophy which is named for Barney. Up from the ringside came Tony Zale, member of the 1934 Inter-city team, and present world middleweight titleholder, to present Tom Procter of Oklahoma City with the Joe Louis trophy, in lieu of the heavyweight champion, who was unable to attend last night.

The Cleveland team was awarded the out-of-town trophy, while the Savoy Athletic club captured the Chicago trophy.

MENCHACA AND DADE REPEAT 1940 TRIUMPHS

Inter-City Victory Next Goal.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The 1941 Golden Gloves tournament came to a traditionally spectacular climax last night as eight boys emerged finally victorious from a struggle in which 23,000 had been engaged thru many weeks of campaigning. A crowd of 21,650 packed all available space in the Stadium to watch the concluding program of the 14th annual show run off under the sponsorship of Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

The fans cheered wildly thru a performance packed with dramatic action. They saw two champions, Harold Dade of Chicago and Dick Menchaca of Fort Worth, make successful defenses of their titles. They watched a new hero rise—Jack Haley of Kansas City, who slugged his way thru one of the epics of Golden Gloves history to win the featherweight title. They saw good winners and good losers in a struggle that followed the finest traditions of Golden Gloves competition.

The champions:

112 POUND CLASS—Harold Dade, Chicago.
118 POUND CLASS—Dick Menchaca, Fort Worth, Tex.
126 POUND CLASS—Jack Haley, Kansas City, Mo.
135 POUND CLASS—Tommy Campbell, Moline, Ill.
147 POUND CLASS—George Horne, Cleveland, O.
160 POUND CLASS—Charles Hayes, Detroit.
175 POUND CLASS—Hezzie Williams, Chicago.
HEAVYWEIGHT CLASS — Allen Aubrey, Cleveland.

Ceremony Has Military Tone.

Immediately after the last of the 16 semi-finals, the arena was darkened momentarily. Then four bright lights, one over each corner of the ring, were flashed on. In each corner stood a Boy Scout, holding an American flag. While these colorbearers of the country's youth stood at attention, three representatives of the nation's armed forces—a sailor, a soldier, and a marine—came to the center of the ring. The soldier raised a bugle and played "To the Colors" while a huge American flag was hoisted to the rafters. Then Al Melgard struck up the Stadium organ and Umberto Marchez, operatic tenor from the Holy Name Cathedral choir, led the entire chorus of spectators in singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

They'll Remember This One.

In the course of the 14 years of Golden Gloves history there have been great bouts but last night's crowd saw one in particular that was worthy of taking its place with the magnificent battles of the past. It was the engagement in which Haley, a good looking red-headed Irish youngster from Kansas City, beat Eddie Hudson of Moline, one of the most rugged and courageous colored boys who ever stepped into a Golden Gloves encounter.

Haley had battered his way into the finals with a succession of knockouts. Earlier in the evening he had finished off his semi-final opponent with a tremendous right in the second round. When he beat Hudson to his knees soon after the start of the championship bout the crowd thought that this too would be over in a hurry. But Hudson got up and staggered Haley with a volley of punches.

Hudson Fights Back.

They came out for the second round. They maneuvered warily, then stood up and slugged, but each was going away as the other hit and the succession of exchanges was indecisive. Suddenly Haley connected with a left hook. Momentarily Hudson was dazed and in that instant Haley threw his right. Hudson dropped as tho he had been hit with a club. Surely this was the end, the crowd thought. Then they saw that Hudson was up again on one knee. At the count of eight he was on his feet. Haley closed in but Hudson rocked him back on his heels with a

BLOW BY BLOW STORY OF GOLDEN GLOVES

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The blow by blow story of the title bouts in the finals of the Golden Gloves tournament in the Stadium last night follows:

112 POUNDS

Harold Dade, Chicago, beat Paul Carbetta, Cleveland [3].

After cautiously circling, Carbetta carried the attack to Dade, defending champion, and had the better of long distance exchanges. Carbetta had the longer reach, but midway in the round Dade finally got in close to thump his rival solidly in the ribs. Carbetta continued boxing in the next round and his left kept the champion at a distance. When Dade countered he frequently was short.

In the final round Dade desperately carried the fight to his taller opponent. This furious rally piled up winning points. Dade fought effectively in close, and his heavier blows earned him the unanimous decision of the three officials.

118 POUNDS

Richard Menchaca, Fort Worth, beat Raymond Brown, Chicago [3].

Brown fought coolly thru the first round and speared Menchaca repeatedly with sharp lefts to the head. When the Texan rushed, Brown retreated and shot out his left, following with a right to the jaw. Menchaca rushed again and again.

In the second round Menchaca brought the crowd up cheering with a furious two fisted assault to the body. One of these right hand, pile driver blows to the body hurt Brown. The pace tired Menchaca and Brown came back to pile up points with cleaner, sharper punches. In the last 30 seconds of the round Menchaca again forced Brown to back away from body blows.

Menchaca rushed Brown to start the third and hammered him to the ropes. The Chicagoan scored only with counterpunches. Each fighter landed with scarcely a miss. Menchaca took a hard right to get at Brown and made him hold on to escape punches. Menchaca won the championship for a second year by a final spurt which had Brown exhausted.

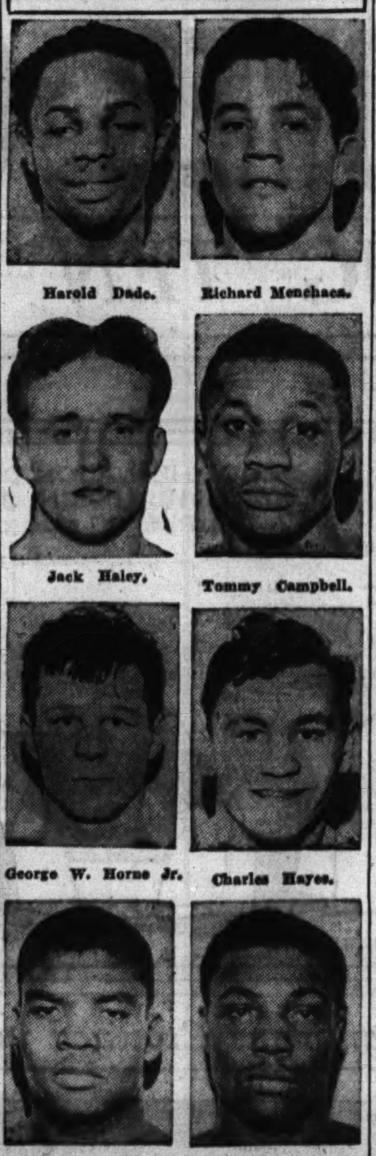
Jack Haley, Kansas City, beat Eddie Hudson, Moline [3].

Haley dropped Hudson for a no count in the first round with a hard right to the head. The Kansas City boy followed this up with a barrage of lefts and rights, but Hudson weathered the attack. Late in the round Hudson caught Haley with a sharp left hook and spun him to the ropes. Haley clinched and held.

The second round was a series of exchanges of hard smashing rights to the face. First one, then the other, battered with all his might. One, then the other, seemed about to fall. Thirty seconds before the end of the round Haley flashed a left and followed with a full right to the chin. Hudson dropped as if he had been hit with a bullet, but he rolled over at the count of seven, got up at nine, and lasted out the round.

Hudson rallied in the third punching to Haley's jaw. Haley clinched and coasted until he got a clean shot. A right put Hudson down for another nine count. The crowd stood to applaud Haley, the new champion, and gave a tremendous ovation to the defeated Hudson.

The Champions



Harold Dade. Richard Menchaca.
Jack Haley. Tommy Campbell.
George W. Horne Jr. Charles Hayes.
Hezzie Williams. Allen Aubrey.

135 POUNDS

Tommy Campbell, Moline, beat Richard Sholl, Peoria [3].

Sholl, a southpaw, retreated steadily from Campbell in the first round. Occasionally Sholl looped a right overhand which didn't bother the Moline champion. However, Campbell scarcely was more effective, altho he did force the fighting. Sholl caught a hard right to the jaw to start the second round and backed away. Sholl missed and another right staggered the Peorian. In a neutral corner, Campbell again pummelled Sholl.

Sholl began to fight in the third round. While Campbell had no appetite for punishment, he also managed to avoid half the blows. Campbell then came back to drop the Peoria champion to his knees for a two count and continue on to win an easy decision.

George W. Horne Jr., Cleveland, O., beat Robert Burns, Fort Wayne, Ind., [3].

Burns and Horne fought a well calculated, effective first round with neither having a decided advantage. For each punch the other had a counter. In close the boys hammered at the body and fought out of the clinches. Burns had a bit longer reach.

Burns was moving along easily, scoring with both hands until, in the first minute of the second round, Horne caught him with a solid right. Horne followed it up and another dropped Burns who did not take a count. For more than a minute Burns weathered the attack, rocking from clinch to clinch, and the crowd cheered his gameness.

Burns rushed to start the last round, but the snap was gone from his punches. A smashing right sent Burns to the floor for a two count. Again Burns charged, and Horne seemed exhausted from the fast pace, and his efforts.

160 POUNDS

Charles Hayes, Detroit, beat Clint Conway, Cleveland [3].

The middleweight championship fight started slowly with both Conway and Hayes apparently unwilling to lead. Conway had several inches advantages in reach. Hayes finally got under Conway's guard to land a series of rights to the body.

Action also was slow in the next round with Conway jabbing and Hayes weaving to get in close to the body. The same pattern was followed in the third round. Infrequent rights to the head failed of the mark. Hayes crossed a stiff right to the head just before the bout ended.

Hezzie Williams, Chicago, beat Ray Standifer, Kansas City [3].

Williams and Standifer had entirely too much respect for each other to start a free swinging battle. Williams was the more accurate, shooting stiff lefts to the face, but Standifer's right whistled past his ears twice in the first round and made him back-track.

In the second round Williams was staggered with a smashing right, but he still carried the fight to Standifer. Williams' sharp lefts to the face kept the Kansas City champion off balance.

HEAVYWEIGHT

Allen Aubrey, Cleveland, beat Al Jordan, Kansas City [3].

Jordan and Aubrey exchanged right hand blows from the first bell, but neither landed with full effect. To the crowd's surprise Aubrey, who had knocked out Tom Procter of Oklahoma City in the semi-finals, got the worst of the battle at long distance. In close, however, he gave as many blows as he received.

Aubrey punched and pulled at Jordan in the second round until he half dragged the Kansas City lad to the floor. Jordan wasn't hurt and he rushed across the ring to get at Aubrey. Jordan hammered at Aubrey's ribs until both clinched.

In the last round Aubrey held and then tripped, falling to the floor while the timer counted to four. Aubrey hung on to Jordan, who helped him to his feet. Jordan carried the fight to his rival with a great deal of holding.

Bloom, Elgin, Palatine Lose in State Play

Bloom of Chicago Heights, Palatine, Elgin and Woodstock were among the prominent teams in the Chicago area eliminated from the state basketball title race last night as semi-final play ended in 60 regional tournaments.

Thornton Fractional of Calumet City beat Bloom, 40 to 32, and Joliet defeated Bradley, 41 to 32, at Chicago Heights. New Trier of Winnetka stopped the winning streak of Palatine, 29 to 24, and Waukegan ousted Niles Center, 45 to 41, in Waukegan. Hebron eliminated Elgin, 33 to 16, and Dundee beat Woodstock, 59 to 33, in Woodstock.

Centralia, regarded as the No. 1 state title contender, advanced to next week's sectional tourney stage by gaining its 36th straight victory, beating Sandoval, 53 to 26. A total of 120 teams qualified for 16 sectionals.

St. Patrick Five Gains Queen of Angels Final

St. Patrick of South Chicago, defending champion, and the Buddy's Recreation quintet last night advanced to the finals of the Queen of Angels' basketball tournament. St. Patrick defeated the 47th Ward Democratic club, 37 to 27, and Buddy's Recreation triumphed over the Ahepa All-Stars, 35 to 27. The winners will meet tomorrow night for the title.

21,650 APPLAUD GOLDEN GLOVES' NEW CHAMPIONS

Menchaca, Dade Retain Their Crowns.

thundering right and left. Again the Irish lad attacked but the bell broke it up.

Thruout the intermission between the second and third rounds the crowd was cheering for the two game fighters. They came out for the third and the battering was renewed. Haley lashed out with another left and Hudson's knees buckled. He straightened up and Haley felled him with a right. He dropped with such a thump that it seemed he couldn't get up this time. But get up he did at the count of nine. Returning to the attack he drove Haley to the ropes. The Irish lad boxed his way out of it and hammered his foe across the ring as the last bell rang. Volleys of cheers in tribute to both boys swept the arena as the decision was awarded to Haley.

Dade Has a Tough Battle.

Dade was forced to call upon every reserve of his boxing ability to beat Paul Carbetta, Mansfield, Ohio's fighting florist, in the flyweight final. Carbetta rushed repeatedly only to be met by Dade's straight left. A particularly strong second round gave Chicago's defending champion his victory.

As had been expected, Chicago's Ray Brown put up a brilliant fight against Menchaca, but the aggressive tactics of the Fort Worth boy proved decisive.

North Section Title Captured by St. George

St. George of Evanston last night won the north section senior basketball championship of the Catholic league by defeating St. Mel, 21 to 19, while De Paul was losing to St. Ignatius, 19 to 13. De Paul and St. George were tied for the sectional lead before the contests, each having nine victories and two defeats. Leo, which clinched the south division title two weeks ago, added another victory to its string, whipping Mount Carmel, 46 to 36. Lineups:

ford, and an ardent Golden Gloves fan, was accompanied by Capts. Harry Simmons, and C. J. Ballam. In the first row of the Madison street section were Commander H. W. Blaisdell, commandant of the Great Lakes Naval Training station, and Lieut. E. W. Schuessler, secretary of the Ninth Naval reserve. Still another distinguished guest representing the army was Brig. Gen. Charles H. Bonesteel, commander of the Sixth Corps Area.

Huge as the crowd of 21,650 who packed the Stadium last night was, its number still was short of the 23,000 boys who started the original quest for Golden Gloves early in February.

The Most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, founder and director of the Catholic Youth Organization, had as his guest the Most Rev. Joseph Gilmore, Bishop of Helena, Mont.

Football isn't the only sport that employs the scouting system. Present last night to reconnoiter the Chicago winners were Spike Webb, coach of the United States Naval academy team, and Ray Bates of the New York City Daily News staff. Webb also coaches the News team, which will battle Chicago's best in the intercity bouts in the Stadium on March 26.

Among the out of town ringsiders were Harvey Buchanan, member of the Wisconsin athletic commission, and Fred Saddy, secretary of the same board.

Hank Has His Say

TUCSON, Ariz., March 7 (AP).—Hank Leiber, Cub holdout, viewed with aplomb today the reported deal which would return him to the New York Giants.

"I don't care what team I play with as long as I get what I think I'm worth," the big outfielder said.

Leiber, who underwent his second tonsilectomy Monday, said he had a letter from Jim Gallagher, the Cub's new general manager, saying the Cubs had a good chance to win "and he wondered why I hadn't signed.

"That makes me laugh. What are we going to win with? We haven't strengthened any."

BY EDWARD BURNS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Avalon, Cal., March 7.—The lawn of the Cubs' Spanish clubhouse today became a nudist camp as the thermometer moved toward 80 degrees in one of the finest days a Chicago outfit has experienced here in 20 years. For several hours before the baseball practice the athletes, naked as Mexican hairless canines, frisked and gamboled in the glorious sun. It was quite a sight, everything considered.

In addition to being a lot of fun the skin carnival was considered most healthful.

Lou, Diz Improved.

Lou Novikoff, who was out of yesterday's practice with a back misery, said he felt almost as good as he did when he left the oil fields.

Dizzy Dean, who, like Novikoff, was scheduled to leave for the mainland tomorrow to participate in an all-star game, also experienced a miraculous recovery from the injury suffered to his left ankle yesterday when he stepped on a vagrant baseball.

Dom Dallessandro said his arm injury was better and Eddie Waitkus, rookie first baseman, who reported a troublesome Achilles tendon last night, was ready to work out this afternoon.

Weather Today? Rain, of Course.

There was a twilight ball game today—just routine practice—but Manager Jimmy Wilson said the intraclub series would be resumed tomorrow evening, with an all-rookie cast of pitchers on both sides. The nearest mainland weather bureau forecast a return of the record rain series tomorrow.

The Catalina camp will break a week from today and the exhibition season will start a week from tomorrow when the Cubs engage the Athletics in Los Angeles.

No further word has been received from Manager Bill Terry of the Giants who yesterday offered Frank Demaree and Joe Moore for holdout Hank Leiber. The Cubs countered with an offer of Leiber for Pitcher Harry Gumbert and a rookie pitcher. Thus far Terry has ignored the counter proposition.

MINNESOTA MAT TEAM THREATENS INDIANA'S RULE

Columbus, O., March 7 [Special].—Indiana university's hold on the Western conference wrestling championship tonight was threatened by Minnesota at the close of the first day's competition in the annual conference tournament.

Minnesota placed three wrestlers in tomorrow's finals as did Iowa. Purdue, Michigan, and Indiana placed two each, and Chicago, Illinois, Ohio State, and Wisconsin one each.

Chicago, virtually a nonentity in Big Ten sports conquests, scored the highest point total in the opening rounds. The points are awarded on the basis of falls. The Maroons won three matches on falls; Illinois, Indiana, and Ohio State two each, and Iowa, Purdue, and Wisconsin one each.

Quarter-final summaries:

121 POUND—Billy Sherman, Iowa, beat Bob Antonacci, Indiana, fall, 4:00.

145 POUND—Al Janesko, Minnesota, beat Donald Burns, Indiana, decision; A. J. Montanero, Ohio State, beat B. Britt, Purdue, decision.

Box Scores that tell Baseball's History

[This is the 25th in a series of baseball's most famous box scores. All are milestones in the history of the national pastime.]

The Cubs put on one of the most amazing drives in the history of baseball to win the 1935 pennant. With the St. Louis Cardinals apparently certain to retain the championship, the Cubs rallied to capture 21 consecutive victories—the second longest streak in the history of the major leagues—in September and nosed out the Cardinals by four games. They clinched the pennant on Sept. 27, when they defeated Dizzy Dean and the Cardinals in St. Louis, 6 to 2. The Cubs wound up with 100 victories and 54 defeats for a percentage of .649.

The Cubs were unequal to the task of retaining the world championship for the National league, however, losing to the Detroit Tigers, four games to two. Box score of pennant clinching game:

Spring Is Near: Sox Pitchers Throw Curves

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Pasadena, Cal., March 7.—Curves, the kind pitchers throw, made their first appearance of the year in the White Sox camp today. So it won't be long now before Manager James Dykes' mound staff will be accepted as physically fit.

The curves poured from the left hand of Thornton Lee and the right hand of Bill Dietrich while they were doing their stretch in batting practice, but not many were thrown. The two pitchers were stopped abruptly by Dykes, who, altho seated far down in a right field bleacher, proved he could detect a curve from a distance far better than he ever did when in the batters' box.

There Must Be a Limit.

The manager, of course, didn't mind a few twisters because the demonstration bore out his theory that the best training is lesurely training, but he didn't want the two regular moundsmen to go far enough to invite possible arm soreness. Lee and Dietrich will throw a few more curves tomorrow and more on Sunday when Frank Frisch's Pirates invade Pasadena with some of their National league pop guns.

All portions of today's workout fairly sizzled under another dazzling sun that brought out all the local publicity experts who have spent most of the winter in their rubber boot retreats. The pitchers, even those who didn't feel safe enough to venture curving, loosened up. The hitters, despite the pitchers' inclination to throw, did very well in their efforts to reach the outfield hedge.

And everybody took a shot at running across the outfield to catch fungoes deliberately aimed so far ahead that a catch was impossible. This went all right with all except those who don't want to run unless there's a fire.

Jim Will Take 'Em, Too.

Dykes announced during practice, after being assured by Vice President Harry Grabiner that the feed bill would be o. k.'d, that he was going to give his boys daily portions of vitamin pellets. The Phillies, who need something, and the Cardinals, who will try anything, are reported to be taking the same treatment. It makes hitters hit better, pitchers throw better, and fielders cover more ground. If all 16 major league teams swallow the same pills there will be 16 pennant winners and that is liable to cause a lot of confusion in world series arrangements.

The experiment will include Dykes, who hasn't been feeling any too well. He's all right until he gets down to the field and sees fellows doing the things he once was able to do without stretching a muscle. If his enthusiasm gets ahead of his body something happens. Today he rose up from his bleacher seat in right field to hit a few fungoes while Coaches Mule Haas and Jim Austin were resting. The manager, in street clothes except for his coat, hit a few, slipped on the moist turf and went back to his seat. The vitamin order was issued soon thereafter.

DELANEY SETS SHOT RECORD IN CENTRAL TRIALS

Notre Dame, Ind., March 7 [Special.]—Jim Delaney of San Francisco, Notre Dame sophomore, shattered the Central Collegiate conference indoor shotput record with a toss of 49 feet 6¾ inches in the preliminaries here tonight. Qualifying trials were held in the 60 yard dash, high and low hurdles, and the 440 and 880 yard runs.

Delaney's mark bettered the record set by Don Elser of Notre Dame in 1936 at 48 feet 11¾ inches.

Notre Dame led, qualifying with nine men, moving into tomorrow's semi-finals and finals. The University of Pittsburgh was next with seven. Marquette, the defending champion, tied with Michigan Normal with four qualifiers apiece. Butler, Drake, Michigan State, and Western State had two each, and Kansas State, Loyola of Chicago, Toledo, and Wayne one each. The list of qualifiers;

JURGES TO FLY TO MAYO CLINIC FOR TREATMENT

Miami, Fla., March 7 [Special].—Billy Jurges, New York Giant shortstop, tortured by recurring dizzy spells for almost a year, will fly to the Mayo clinic for treatment on which his baseball future will depend, he announced here today. Jurges, forced out of the lineup when beaned by Bucky Walters last June 23, will leave tomorrow for Rochester, Minn., and if his condition cannot be cured there it undoubtedly will mean the end of his diamond career.

Jurges has been undergoing treatments here and says his condition has improved. It was upon the suggestion of Manager Bill Terry, however, that Billy decided to visit the Mayo institution. He would have left today but all transport planes here were grounded by the storm sweeping up the Atlantic seaboard.

SWIMMING TEAMS MEET.

W-G-N LAUNCHES SERIES TONIGHT FOR CHICAGOLAND

Features Music, Drama, Talk by Col. McCormick.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

Ruth Slater.

The new Chicagoland hour, featuring familiar music, drama, and talks by Col. Robert R. McCormick, editor and publisher of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE, will be presented for the first time this evening. The Chicagoland hour, except for tonight, will run a full hour from 9 to 10 every Saturday over W-G-N and the Mutual Broadcasting system. Tonight it will run from 9 to 9:45 o'clock.

Early this week, after it was announced that President Roosevelt would speak at 9:30 tonight, W-G-N arranged to shorten the Chicagoland hour to 30 minutes, from 9 to 9:30, for tonight. Yesterday Mr. Roosevelt, on the advice of his physician, arranged to give his address 45 minutes earlier so he might retire early.

Plans Talk at 8:45 P. M.

The President has had a cold. He will speak between 8:45 and 9 tonight along with Vice President Wallace and Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard on the eighth anniversary of the gathering of the nation's farm leaders in Washington.

The Chicagoland hour will follow this broadcast.

The music on the Chicagoland series will be under the direction of Henry Weber. Miss Marion Claire, who is vacationing, is to sing on the series later. Meanwhile, Ruth Slater, W-G-N contralto, will be the featured singer. Tonight she is to sing Bohm's "Calm Is the Night" and Stephen Collins Foster's "Old Folks at Home."

Other Program Features.

The chorus will be featured in the spiritual, "Go Down, Moses." The orchestra will feature the third movement from Beethoven's Symphony No. 1 and Slavonic Dance No. 7.

William A. Bacher will produce the new series. On next Saturday evening, March 15, the Chicagoland concert hour will present the stirring "Ode to Chicago" with 650 American Legion leaders as studio guests. "Ode to Chicago," aired for the first time last September, salutes the history, accomplishment and spirit of Chicago thru drama and music.

JAS. ROOSEVELT WON'T DISCUSS WEDDING, IF ANY

Los Angeles, Cal., March 7 (AP).—A divorce granted Betsey Cushing Roosevelt from James Roosevelt, son of the President, becomes final tomorrow, but Roosevelt is reticent as to reports he may rewed.

Roosevelt, now a captain of the marines at San Diego, Cal., has been seen occasionally in company with Romelle Schneider, the nurse who attended him after a major operation in Rochester, Minn., in 1939.

Miss Schneider's family moved to Beverly Hills from Independence, Wis., some time ago. Her sister, Phyllis, is Roosevelt's secretary at the studio where he recently completed his first motion picture. Asked by telephone concerning reports he and Miss Schneider planned to be married March 18, Roosevelt said "It's news to me. I have nothing to say about Miss Schneider."

Calls Jimmy Ridiculous.

Miami Beach, Fla., March 7 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt said today she was afraid her son Jimmy wasn't especially apt in military work. Jimmy, she said, worked up to a captain's rank in the marines and was made a lieutenant colonel to permit him to serve as the President's aide. "It was ridiculous," Mrs. Roosevelt laughed. "Jimmy realized he wasn't properly trained for the rank, and soon asked for a demotion. Why, in one drill I saw him march his men straight into a wall."

DIVORCES MATE, AGE 71, AND GETS $25,000 ALIMONY

Judge Theodore Forby of Zion, sitting in Lake county Circuit court at Waukegan, yesterday indicated he will grant a divorce on the ground of cruelty to Mrs. Hattie Druce, 71 years old, from Edward J. Druce, also 71, retired farmer and business man of Grayslake. The court told Mrs. Druce's attorneys, J. A. Miller and Leslie Vogel, to prepare a decree embodying a $25,000 alimony award and present it to the court for signing March 17. Mrs. Druce charged that her husband left her stranded in Florida in 1932, and that she had only $1.29. She testified that the Druce home in Grayslake had "rats in the basement, mice upstairs, leaky plumbing and a furnace about to fall apart," and charged that Druce refused to buy her new clothes. Druce denied the charges. His attorney, R. W. Churchill, said the case will be appealed.

Park Ridge Phone Manager Kills Himself by Accident

Melvin W. Berg, 30 years old, manager of the telephone exchange in Park Ridge, was found shot to death last night in his room at 313 South Crescent avenue in Park Ridge. Police said he shot himself by accident while cleaning a shotgun. Berg, police learned, had been preparing to be drafted into army service.

Blizzard Hits N. Y. City; Traffic and Planes Halted

New York, March 8, Saturday [Special].—A heavy storm that hit the city last night and had deposited more than 7½ inches of snow by 1:30 a. m. today reached blizzard proportions, grounding airplanes and hampering traffic.

BORGLUM'S BODY TO LIE IN STATE IN CHAPEL TODAY

The body of Gutzon Borglum, internationally noted sculptor of mountainside memorials, will lie in state from 9 to 11 a. m. today in the Rosehill cemetery chapel, it was announced yesterday. Private funeral services, for members of the family, will be held later.

Members of the Rushmore Memorial commission have said they will ask permission of the government to place the sculptor's body in a crypt at his famous Mount Rushmore memorial in the Black Hills of South Dakota. It was not indicated whether members of the family had approved this plan.

Mr. Borglum died Thursday in Henrotin hospital. He was 70 years old.

'FATHER' DIVINE POSTS BOND AND ESCAPES PRISON

New York, March 7 [Special].—"Father" Divine, Harlem Negro cult leader whose followers call him God, today posted a surety bond for $12,591.66 to guarantee that he will not leave New York county for six months. This action kept him out of an earthly jail, pending his appeal from judgment for half that amount obtained by Mrs. Verinda Brown, a discontented former "angel." She claimed she had loaned—not given—Father Divine money for his "heavenly treasury," and demanded its return.

George Ames Aldrich, landscape painter, died yesterday in his home at 5521 Kimbark avenue. He was 68 years old.

Mr. Aldrich was an illustrator for the London [England] Times and Punch magazine in the 1890s. He was awarded the Hoosier salon prize in 1932 for a snow scene. Other awards which he received included the Robert Rice Jenkins prize of the Art institute, the Lawrence A. Downs and Alexander F. Banks Hoosier salon prizes, and the Indiana alumni prize. His work is represented in permanent exhibits at Purdue university, the University of Illinois, and in museums in Decatur, Ill., and Sioux City, Ia. Several of his paintings are in Chicago schools.

He leaves his widow, Esta, an instructor in English at Tilden High school, and a daughter, Elizabeth. Services will be held at 3 p. m. tomorrow in the chapel at 5203 Lake Park avenue.

Two Get 10 Days in Jail for Driving While Drunk

George Cipick, 11132 Green Bay avenue, and Edward Marosic, 9225 Brandon avenue, both steel workers, were sentenced yesterday by Judge Charles F. Dougherty in Safety court to 10 days each in the county jail for driving while intoxicated. Their driving rights were suspended for 60 days.

TWO NEW AIR LINES ASKING AUTHORITY FOR PICKUP SERVICE

Washington, D. C., March 7.—Two new air transportation companies today filed notice with the Civil Aeronautics Board that they seek authority to operate an air mail and express pickup service in middle western and southwestern states. One was the Mercury Development corporation of Indianapolis, Ind. The other was Southwest Feeder Airlines, Inc., of Oklahoma City, Okla.

Mercury corporation asks for routes from Chicago to Indianapolis with a pickup of mail at Bloomington; from Indianapolis to Grand Rapids with 10 intermediate pickups; Indianapolis to Detroit and Indianapolis to Nashville. Approximately 135 cities would be served, and the mail picked up and dropped without stopping planes. Seven new airplanes would be purchased for the service, according to Harold L. Plummer of Indianapolis, corporation head.

Southwest Feeder lines asked also for permits to carry passengers on 19 routes covering 500 cities in Texas, Louisiana, Oklahoma, Missouri, Kansas, Illinois, Arkansas, with pickup and drop mail delivery. Passengers would be carried on nine routes. Two of these terminate at Chicago. Tom O. Hardin, former chairman of the Air Safety board abolished by President Roosevelt last year, heads this company.

DESCRIBE DATA GIVEN AIR LINER PRIOR TO CRASH

Atlanta, Ga., March 7 [Special].—A flight dispatcher testified at a Civil Aeronautics Board hearing here today that all necessary weather and landing information had been supplied the pilot of the Eastern Air Lines sleeper plane which crashed near Atlanta last Wednesday night. Eight were killed and several others, including Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, seriously injured in the crash.

The weather forecasts supplied dispatchers and Pilot James Perry were pronounced "remarkably accurate" by Paul Gareau, weather specialist for the CAB safety bureau.

Dempsey Brown, Eastern Air Lines dispatcher at Candler field, on duty at the time of the crash, testified that the huge airliner, with 16 persons aboard, left Washington for Atlanta with more than enough gasoline for the trip.

When the plane checked in over the Stone mountain marker as it approached Atlanta at 11:38 o'clock the night of Feb. 26, the pilots were given the latest altimeter and field instrument readings, Brown testified.

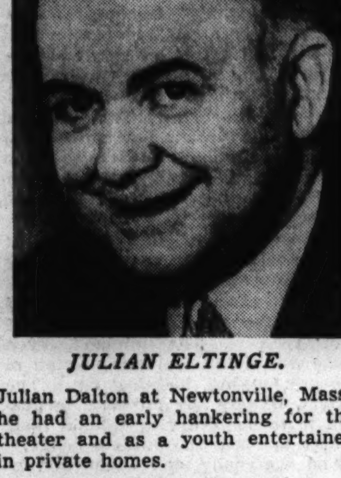
JULIAN ELTINGE DIES; FAMOUS IN FEMININE ROLES

On Stage in U. S. and Europe 45 Years.

New York March 7 [Special].—The death of Julian Eltinge in his apartment today ended a unique chapter in the theater. He had been considered without a peer as an impersonator of female rôles, a show business medium he developed to an art that won him international note. The screen, stage and concert figure, 59 years old, was stricken with a kidney ailment a week ago.

For 45 years Eltinge had been doing the same sort of act that brought him applause at 14. Born William Julian Dalton at Newtonville, Mass., he had an early hankering for the theater and as a youth entertained in private homes.



JULIAN ELTINGE.

Scores Tremendous Hit.

Eltinge still was in his 'teens when he was cast in a girl's part by the Boston Cadets, a private military organization, and scored such a hit that the following year the show was written especially for him. At 20 he was a Broadway star.

Eltinge wore women's clothes with all the grace, charm, and mannerisms of the beauties of the day and soon attracted attention of European booking agents. He played in Paris and London. At a command performance before King Edward VII. at Windsor castle, his majesty was so pleased he gave Eltinge a white bulldog.

Tours Country in "Cousin Lucy."

"Mr. Eltinge," said an announcement when the actor was touring the country for his second season in the comedy "Cousin Lucy," "is the one man who has been able to appear in feminine characterizations on the stage without losing a certain measure of respect either from members of his own or the opposite sex. He weighs 175 pounds and is as accomplished with his fists as he is with his ankles."

Eltinge retired several times from the theater, but he always went back. He claimed he made and lost three fortunes and in 1907 was reported as having inherited, with his mother, $1,000,000 from a relative in Sheffield, England. In 1910, with others, he built the Eltinge theater on West 42d street, which still bears his name. Last summer he returned to Broadway at the invitation of Producer Billy Rose for a billing at the Diamond Horseshoe.

Gloucester, Mass., March 7 [Special].—No meal time coaxing is needed for the Randazza children because they're big boys now. Joseph, 9 years old, sets his 290 pounds on a steel chair for his meals. His brother, Sam, 3 years old, still uses a wooden chair because he weighs only 85 pounds. But he weighs more than his older brother did at 3, and he expects to have a steel chair too before long. Joe gained 110 pounds in 14 months.

JONES IS LOSER IN BATTLE OVER RESERVE BANK

C. S. Young Elected to Presidency.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

Jesse Jones, powerful federal loan administrator, yesterday lost one of the biggest battles in the history of the federal reserve system when directors of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago rejected a Jones candidate for the bank presidency.

Howard P. Preston, reëlected first vice president.

The directors in effect rejected Emil Schram, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, by unanimously choosing as president for the next five years Clifford S. Young, a vice president who had been acting head of the bank since George J. Schaller retired Feb. 28.

Howard P. Preston, who has been first vice president of the institution since 1936, was reëlected to that office. His reëlection also was unanimous, and his term likewise is for five years.

Tied in Early Balloting.

Despite the board's announcement that the final vote was unanimous in the case of each office, it was learned that Preston and Young were running a neck and neck race during part of the balloting. It was understood that Preston, prior to the meeting, indicated his willingness to accept the first vice presidency in case of a tie vote.

For about a week, ever since THE TRIBUNE last Saturday disclosed what bankers termed an effort by Jones to hang an "RFC sign" on the door of the Chicago reserve bank, protests from all over the nation had been pouring in on the directors and on the federal reserve board in Washington, D. C., demanding that political pressure be resisted.

The Washington board, known to be concerned about the growing powers Jones is wielding thru the vast array of federal agencies which he heads, soon gave clear indications that it shared the view of the protesting bankers.

Delegated Vote Challenged.

Yesterday's election was the second held in an effort to name a new president. The battle lines against the Jones-RFC influence formed immediately after the disclosure of the issue which developed at the first election, held Feb. 27. At that time, four directors voted for Schram, and cast a fifth vote which had been delegated in Schram's behalf by an absent director. The other four voted for Young, and challenged the validity of the delegated vote.

The question of the delegated vote was left up to the Washington board, which ruled "no election" and ordered the election which was held yesterday.

It was reported that Marriner S. Eccles, chairman of the reserve board, finally asked Schram on Thursday to withdraw from the race to save Schram "from embarrassment." It was understood that Schram's name was not voted upon at yesterday's meeting of the directors.

Meet for Six Hours.

Eight directors attended yesterday, and the ninth was said to have concurred with their action in a telephone conversation with the sitting members. They were in session from 10 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., interrupting their meeting only for lunch in the bank's dining room.

Frank J. Lewis, Chicago manufacturer, who is chairman of the bank's board of directors, said, however, that the voting did not consume all of the time. Other routine matters were discussed, he said.

Early confirmation of the election of Young and Preston is expected from the Washington board. Young's salary was set at $35,000 a year, and Preston's at $25,000 a year.

Bankers Battle RFC Group.

Lewis and Walter J. Cummings, Chicago banker, both of whom had supported Schram in the first election, returned for the second meeting from Washington, where earlier they had long conferences with reserve system authorities.

While bankers and business men thruout the country were awaiting a final determination of the choice as to Schaller's successor, banker associations in the five states included in the 7th [Chicago] reserve district, led a fight by telegraph and telephone to head off the Jones' forces. The 7th district includes all of Iowa, northern Illinois, northern Indiana, southern Wisconsin, and part of Michigan.

In their messages, many of the bankers expressed fear that public and business confidence in the reserve system would be dealt a blow if the system were dragged into politics. Others said also that if the RFC gained sway over the Chicago bank, some of the member banks might withdraw from the system to escape RFC domination.

Young Born in Illinois.

Young, the new president of the bank, was born in Toledo, Ill., Dec. 9, 1890. He entered the banking business in 1906 after attending the public schools and studying law for two years. He was a second lieutenant

Hint Stainless Steel to Go on Priorities List

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

The action of the government yesterday in placing nickel on the priorities list indicated that stainless steel may be put under the same control which will limit its distribution to military use. This metal has become an important material in modern industrial production.

Stainless steel is used for a wide variety of purposes, but particularly where resistance against corrosion is essential. It is used for food containers and equipment in the chemical industry, for decorative purposes, for aircraft parts, and for the construction of streamlined trains.

The most generally used type of the metal is known as "18 and 8," being composed 18 per cent of chromium, 8 per cent of nickel, and 74 per cent of ordinary steel constituents.

Nickel Influences Move.

It is the growing tightness in the supply of nickel as a result of arms demands that is heading stainless steel toward the priorities list.

At the end of 1939 the annual capacity was 1,883,000 tons, but since then additional facilities have been or are being installed which will bring production by the end of 1941 to about 2,800,000 tons.

Chicago is one of the leading producing centers for the material, the South works of the Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation producing practically all the metal used by the various subsidiaries of the United States Steel corporation. The South works formerly had an annual capacity of 60,000 tons, but this is being increased by 100,000 tons.

Some Rolled at South Works.

Some of the ingots produced at the South works are rolled there into stainless steel plates. Others are sent to the Gary works and rolled into strip. The McKeesport, Pa., mill also rolls ingots into strip. At Cleveland the American Steel and Wire company rolls ingots into strip and draws stainless steel wire. The National Tube company at its Elwood City, Pa., plants makes seamless tubing of the material.

Stainless steel is produced in electric furnaces capable of turning out from 30 to 100 tons in 24 hours. A Bessemer converter is able to produce about 1,600 tons of ordinary steel in 24 hours and open hearth furnaces about 225 tons of steel in 24 hours.

Proceeds with Car Making.

The Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company which has been a large user of stainless steel for the construction of light weight railway cars indicated at Philadelphia headquarters that it has a sufficiently large supply on hand to maintain its present production program. This program includes 20 cars for the Santa Fe railway and 32 for the New York Central. The company also is bidding on other cars, indicating that it does not expect to be handicapped by a reduction in supply.

HIT C.I.O. CONTROL OF PLANT WHERE IT LOST ELECTION

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—A contention that the labor board should permit an individual plant to determine its collective bargaining representation, instead of being placed into a unit with other distant plants, was advanced today before the Supreme court.

J. W. McAfee and Henry H. Oberschelp, St. Louis, attorneys, challenged validity of a labor board order directing the Pittsburgh Plate Glass company to bargain collectively with a C. I. O. union as sole representative of employés at six plants, when the union did not have a majority at one of the plants.

They argued that the board had illegally deprived employés of the Crystal City, Mo., plant of the right to determine their representation by grouping them into a single unit with other company plants at Ford City, Pa., Creighton, Pa., Mount Vernon, O., Clarksburg, W. Va., and Henryetta, Okla.

298 Million of Arms Plant Expansions Are Certified

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—Plant expansions aggregating $298,248,000 were certified during February as essential to the armament program, it was announced today. Certification enables the firms to amortize the cost for tax purposes over a five year period.

U. S. PREPARES TO FIX PRICE OF SCRAP METALS

Synthetic Rubber, Nickel Rationed.

Washington, D. C., March 7 [Special].—The government today disclosed plans for fixing the price on scrap iron and steel and extended its control over vital armament materials by placing two more commodities, nickel and synthetic rubber, under priority regulations.

Leon Henderson, commissioner of price stabilization, announced that maximum prices for scrap iron and steel soon would be set at levels below current quotations. These prices, he said, would fall below $20 a ton, Pittsburgh.

His statement, said to have been issued in response to inquiries from the Pacific coast and other regions, read, "A set of geographical and grade differentials has been submitted to all interested divisions of the industry, including foundries, scrap dealers, and steel manufacturers, for criticism and discussion.

Will Set Maximum Prices.

"After the division has given due consideration to all these criticisms and suggestions, there is no doubt that a schedule of maximum prices on grades at various points in the United States, including the Pacific coast, will be established. All of these prices will be below $20 a ton, Pittsburgh."

It was reported that San Francisco sellers had been turning down a price of approximately $22 a ton, Pittsburgh basis. During December the price stabilization division had suggested $20 a ton as a fair price for scrap, but since then quotations have gone above that figure. Officials reported that number one heavy melting steel scrap was now selling for about $21.50.

The Office of Production Management anounced the mandatory rationing of synthetic rubber and nickel for the domestic and British military production programs. The OPM previously had restricted aluminum, machine tools, and magnesium. Orders from the British have been given equal priority, however, with those for United States armament orders.

Explains Priority Order.

In making the announcement on nickel and synthetic rubber [neoprene] Edward R. Stettinius Jr., director of priorities for the OPM, said that the action was necessary for armament needs.

"The control imposed on nickel will make it possible for the priorities division and the industry to facilitate the prompt flow of the metal into industries working on both British and Canadian orders and orders for the army and navy," he explained.

Some armament officials were surprised at the order on nickel, because nearly all American nickel supplies merely cross the border from Canada which produces about 85 per cent of the world supply. It was believed by the OPM that unnecessarily large inventories have been accumulated by some consumers and this was the reason for the priority order now on future deliveries of the metal.

During the last quarter of 1940 nickel consumption averaged 14 million pounds a month. Imports for the year were at the rate of only 10 million pounds a month.

Figures on Metal Division.

Stettinius said that this month the United States will get approximately 14½ million pounds of nickel from British empire sources, representing about 70 per cent of total empire production, and about 15 per cent of the 1941 nickel supply sent to the United States will go into nickel steels or other materials for Britain and Canada.

Synthetic rubber is principally used in the military program for the production of self-sealing gasoline tanks for airplanes, a development in the current European war which antiquated the United States army and navy warplanes. The armament forces are now trying to get into sufficient production of such tanks to keep up with the European developments.

Many Civilian Uses.

Synthetic rubber has also found many civilian uses, altho it is costly compared with natural rubber. It is quoted at 35 cents to $1 a pound. The average is 60 cents compared with around 20 cents for natural rubber.

Synthetic rubber is used as rapidly as it is produced. The synthetic product can be mixed with crude or reclaimed rubber, but rubber cannot be reclaimed for finished products of this combination, according to trade interests.

Rubber can also be produced from certain plants such as goldenrod and guayule, but at high cost amounting to roughly 50 cents a pound in production from goldenrod and 35 cents per pound from guayule plants.

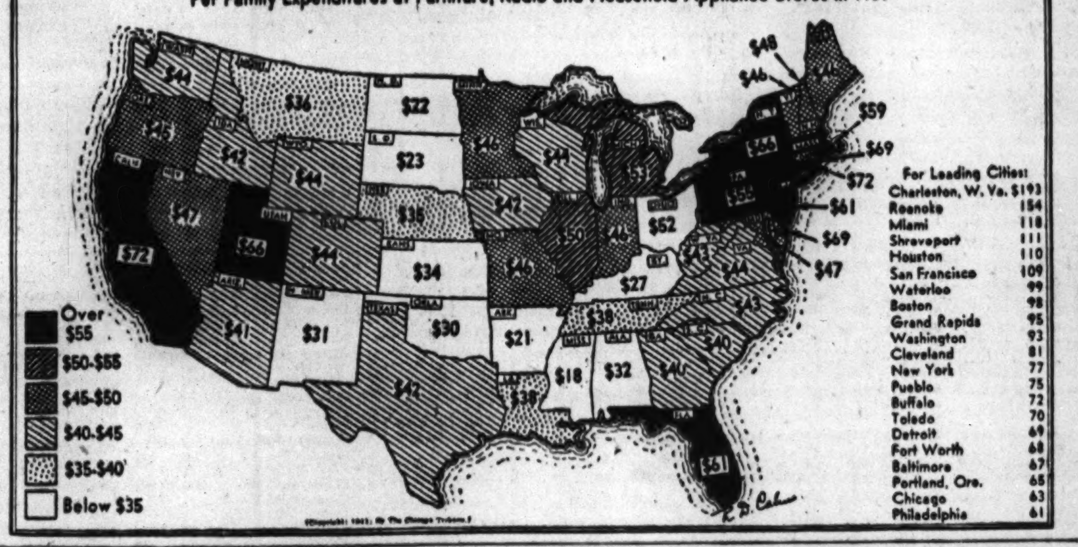
Letters on the new priority orders were sent to the International Nickel company, Brandeis-Goldschmidt company, both nickel suppliers of New York, and E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., producer of neoprene.

American Smelting Buys More Gen. Cable Shares

New York, March 7 (AP).—American Smelting & Refining company has purchased about 16,000 shares of General Cable corporation 7 per cent cumulative preferred stock, $100 par, from British interests, it was disclosed today. This brought total American Smelting holdings of the cable company's preferred to around 28,320 shares, or about 19 per cent of the 150,000 shares outstanding.

SALES BY FURNITURE STORES

Per Family Expenditures at Furniture, Radio and Household Appliance Stores in 1939



MARITIME BOARD WILL REPURCHASE 4 SHIPS IT SOLD FOR $304,000

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—The maritime commission said today it had decided to exercise an option enabling it to repurchase for $304,000 four freight vessels now valued at approximately $2,400,000.

The four vessels comprising the India service of the commission-operated American Pioneer Line were sold to American Export Lines for $76,000 each in November, 1939. The sale agreement contained a provision giving the commission the right to buy back the four vessels at the sale price after they had been replaced by new vessels.

Commission officials said three of the four vessels had been replaced by new ones, and that the fourth new vessel would be delivered in the summer.

The commission, officials said, sold the old vessels "well below the market." The vessels actually were worth about $200,000 each at the time of the sale, they said. Since then, because of the war created shipping shortage, the price of ships has skyrocketed and they now are estimated to be worth about $600,000 each.

The freighters will be assigned to carry strategic materials required for the arms program, it was said.

FARM EQUIPMENT EXPORTS CLIMB 46% IN JANUARY

Washington, D. C., March 7 [Special].—Exports of United States farm equipment in January totaled $4,961,892, an increase of 46 per cent over the figure for January, 1940, the department of commerce reported today. The gain was due principally to a 500 per cent increase in exports of wheel tractors. Exports of all tractors, parts, and accessories totaled $4,119,014, up 66 per cent from a year ago.

Exports of $13,069,670 of electrical equipment in January were the largest for any month since 1930, the report said. They compared with $10,966,874 for December and $10,585,091 in January, 1940.

January exports of automotive products had a value of $27,732,998, a total of 5.5 per cent more than in December, and 13.3 per cent higher than in January, 1940. Value of passenger car shipments was lower, at $4,875,125, against $5,339,674 in December, and $7,812,328 for January of last year. Truck valuation was $8,202,388 compared with $8,534,866 in December, and $6,211,018 for January, 1940.

I. C. C. ASKS END OF MILWAUKEE ROAD INJUNCTION

The Interstate Commerce commission made new efforts yesterday to wind up the reorganization of the Milwaukee railroad when it filed a motion in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals in Chicago to dissolve an injunction that has stopped it from taking a poll of the road's creditors on its reorganization plan. A similar motion was filed by attorneys for the institutional bondholders.

Vote of the company's creditors is one of the final steps in reorganization. The plan has been approved by the ICC and in federal court. If accepted by the creditors, it becomes effective, unless an appeal is successful.

Attorneys for the railroad company have filed an appeal to the reorganization plan. They state it is unfair and inequitable since it makes no provisions for the stockholders.

The company was given 10 days in which to file its answer as to why the injunction should not be dissolved.

WEEK'S OUTPUT OF AUTOS CUT BY SHORTAGES

Detroit, Mich., March 7 (AP).—Ward's Reports, Inc., today estimated car and truck output this week at 125,915 units. It reported the slight decrease from last week's 126,550 as due to "minor parts and material shortages." A year ago assemblies numbered 103,560.

The trade magazine, Automotive Industries, predicted that car and truck production during the 1941 first quarter would aggregate 1,540,000 units. The high mark for the first three months of any year is 1,546,319 vehicles assembled in that period of 1929.

Coal Company Buys More Land in Williamson County

St. Louis, Mo., March 7 (AP).—The Consolidated Coal company has purchased 1,300 acres of land in Williamson county, adjoining its old Lake Creek mine, northeast of Johnston City, giving it a productive potential of 17,000,000 to 18,000,000 tons. W. J. Jenkins, president, said today no new mine would be operated at present.

Pullman Gets Order for 15 New Coaches

Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company yesterday received an order to build 15 railroad passenger coaches and remodel 25 other cars. Numerous other Chicago companies, meantime, received army and navy orders, mostly for small amounts.

Pullman-Standard will build the passenger coaches at its Pullman plant in Chicago. The order was placed by the Norfolk and Western railroad, which will use the new cars on two fast trains, the Pocahontas and the Cavalier, between Norfolk, Va., and Cincinnati, O. The deliveries may be made in September, officials of the road said.

The coaches will be of the modern, lightweight type. The other units which will be remodeled are parlor cars which will be converted into coaches.

Awards in Illinois.

The war department announced award of contracts to the following Illinois companies [Chicago companies unless otherwise indicated]:

J. P. Phillips, $20,895; G. J. Liebich, $372; American Steel and Wire, $1,501; Inland Steel, $6,757; Scully Steel Products, $22; Abana Products, $18; J. H. Stone & Sons, $532; Harris-Hub Bed and Spring, Cicero, $7,905; J. A. Dubow Manufacturing, $24,178; Presto Gas Manufacturing, $12,751; Republic Steel, $3,614; Chicago Screw, $1,135; Lewis-Shepard Sales, Moline, $3,375; Carnegie-Illinois Steel, $7,337; Clearing Machine, $50,300; Sundstrand Machine Tool, Rockford, $7,122; Caterpillar Tractor, Peoria, $3,629; Aermotor, $13,022; Precision Scientific, $30,456.

The following contracts were announced by the navy department: American Sanitary Rag, $58,860; Ellis Drier, $28,816; Elgin National Watch, $11,025.

Asks Bids on Plant.

At Rock Island, Ill., Brig. Gen. Norman F. Ramsey, commanding officer of the arsenal there, called for bids on the $175,000 forge and heat treating plant to be built, and also on the work of clearing the site for a $2,640,000 military warehouse. Gen. Ramsey said the work would begin soon.

Bids were opened yesterday at the arsenal on 30,000 artificial sponges. E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co. was the apparent low bidder, at about $10,000. Atlas Box Works of Chicago was awarded a 30 caliber belt link box order, and Hummel and Downing of Milwaukee got a 50 caliber belt link box contract. These totaled about $5,000.

The war department was reported to be negotiating with Deere & Co., Moline, Ill., implement maker, on a contract for the manufacture of $18,000,000 of gears and transmission parts for war tanks.

NATIONAL INCOME CALLED RECORD IN BUYING POWER

New York, March 7 (AP).—A record high in the national income adjusted to changes in purchasing power but a slump in the "real income" per person during 1940 was reported today by the National Industrial Conference board, a research organization.

According to the board's statistics, the nation's total money payments received by individuals amounted to about $72,000,000,000 in 1940. 4.9 per cent higher than in 1939 and $7,500,000,000 less than in 1929.

Adjusted for changes in the cost of living, the board reported, the resulting real income [purchasing power] of 1940 was a record.

On the other hand, it was stated, since the population rose about 10,400,000 between 1929 and 1940, last year's income per person was $545, about 17 per cent lower than in the boom year of 1929. Real income per person also was lower than in 1929, running, according to cost-of-living changes, about 2.2 per cent below that year.

Restaurant Chain to Offer Stock to Selected Employes

Cleveland, O., March 6 (AP).—The Stouffer corporation, restaurant operating concern, notified the Cleveland regional office of the Securities and Exchange commission today of its intention to offer not more than 5,000 shares of class E common stock to selected employés, other than executive officers and directors, at $12 a share. The company operates 14 restaurants in Chicago, Cleveland, New York, Detroit, Pittsburgh, and Philadelphia.

ROOSEVELT SIGNS BILL TO REDUCE COMPANIES' EXCESS PROFITS TAXES

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP)—President Roosevelt today signed a bill saving corporations an estimated $23,000,000 on the new excess profits tax.

The tax, however, first of its kind since world war days, left most corporations with a huge bill yet to pay. Estimates of the tax on 1940 income range up to a billion dollars, but the treasury has issued no official guess.

The amendments were designed by the treasury and congressional committees to prevent abnormally large taxes in certain cases.

OHIO POWER CO. FILES BIG STOCK AND BOND ISSUES

Washington, D. C., March 7 (AP).—The Ohio Power company, Canton, O., informed the Securities and Exchange commission today of its plan to issue 15 million dollars of first mortgage bonds, due 1971, and 202,403 shares of cumulative preferred stock, $100 par value.

The company said that it would offer 169,403 shares of the preferred stock to holders [other than its parent, the American Gas and Electric company] of its outstanding preferred stock on a share for share basis plus cash equal to the difference between the redemption price of the old stock and the offering price of the new stock. The bonds and the remaining 33,000 shares of the new preferred, together with any unexchanged shares of the new stock, would be offered to the public.

The application said that American Gas and Electric would purchase not more than 1,236,549 shares of Ohio Power common stock for $6,182,745 in cash and would make a capital contribution of $1,456,936 in cash.

The company said that it would purchase from American Gas for cancellation 28,662 shares of 6 per cent preferred stock.

GERMANY SENDS MORE AMERICAN MONEY TO N. Y.

New York, March 7 [Special].—In February for the fourth consecutive month Germany shipped United States currency to New York to swell its dollar balances, the Federal Reserve Bank of New York revealed today in its monthly report on exports and imports of United States currency.

Total February receipts were $630,000, of which $120,000 came from Germany, making total receipts of $540,000 from German sources in four months. The rest of the February receipts came chiefly from Latin America.

Shipments of United States currency abroad in February amounted to $1,810,000, of which $1,400,000 went to Cuba. The rest went to other Latin American nations and to Canada.

NEW FINANCING TOTAL HIGHEST IN FOUR WEEKS

New York, March 7 (AP).—Borrowers began to return to the capital market this week, boosting public offerings of new securities to the highest level in four weeks. Offerings in the week ended yesterday totaled $42,609,359 compared with $9,383,000 in the preceding week, Poor's Publishing company reported today.

Comparison of the week's financing follows:

	This week.	Prev. week.	Year ago.

North Atlantic-Gulf Ship Lines to Increase Rates

New York, Mach 7 (AP).—Seven steamship lines operating between North Atlantic and gulf ports will increase their commodity rates by 25 per cent in April, the Atlantic-Gulf Coastwise Steamship Freight bureau said today. The bureau said that inadequate revenue already had forced four steamship lines to discontinue service and others would do likewise unless rates were increased.

Report Canada Plans Bonus to Non-Planters of Wheat

OTTAWA, Ont., March 7 [Special].—A bonus to induce farmers to keep land idle in western Canada is being considered in the government's wheat policy for this year, which is expected to be announced next week. With more than 500 million bushels of unsold wheat in storage, reduced production is regarded as essential in the prairie provinces.

Link-Belt Net Income Rises to 2½ Millions

Despite a tripling of federal taxes consolidated net earnings of Link-Belt company increased during 1940 to $2,514,381, or $3.37 a share, from $1,733,059, or $2.23 a share, in 1939. Alfred Kauffmann, president, presented the figures yesterday in his annual report to stockholders of the Chicago company which manufacture machinery for handling all types of materials.

Alfred Kauffmann.

"Provision for federal income and excess profits taxes for the year 1940 amounted to $1,343,185, compared with a provision for federal income taxes of $382,063 for the preceding year," he said.

Kauffmann said that every indication points to the company's "continued success in a business that is constantly finding new fields for its products." Expenditures for property, plant, and equipment during 1940 totaled $1,120,935.

Hershey Profit Is Lower.

The Hershey Chocolate corporation realized 1940 net income of $5,908,046, equal to $6.76 a share, compared with $6,233,304, or $7.24 a share in 1939. For the December quarter, net income was $1,803,609, equal to $2.26 a share, against $1,460,094, or $1.76 a share, in the comparable period of 1939. Executive offices are in Hershey, Pa.

The Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company reported net profit of $1,677,795 for 1940, or $14.47 a common share, compared with $943,178, or $6.01 a share, earned in 1939. Net sales and operating revenues were $13,395,816, against $9,685,945.

Net income of the New York Shipbuilding corporation, Camden, N. J., amounted to $2,334,261 in 1940, compared with $928,264 in the preceding year.

The Corn Products Refining company, with general offices in New York City, had net income of $9,581,054, equal to $3.10 a share, in 1940, compared with $10,120,398, or $3.32 a share, in 1939. The company produces starch, syrup, sugar, and other similar products.

Trane Company Earns Less.

The Trane company, which makes heating, cooling, and air conditioning equipment, reported net income for 1940 of $471,685, equal to $1.79 a share, compared with $530,533, or $2.02 a share, in 1939. Main offices are in La Crosse, Wis.

Feltman and Curme Shoe Stores, with headquarters in Chicago, realized net income of $30,284, equal to $2.25 a share in 1940, compared with net loss of $9,184 in 1939. Net sales, however, totaled only $3,973,700, against $4,294,764 in the preceding year.

Net income of the Bausch and Lomb Optical company increased to $1,675,773, equal to $3.41 a share in 1940, from $1,387,356, or $2.77 a share reported in 1939. Company officials said that installation of additional facilities boosted optical glass production 500 per cent. Main offices are in Rochester, N. Y.

BORDEN PROFIT PARED BY MILK COST INCREASE

Wage Boosts Also Big Factor.

Altho sales showed a substantial gain, higher raw milk and wage costs contributed to a slight reduction in 1940 net income of the Borden company from net earnings reported for 1939, Theodore G. Montague, president, announced yesterday.

Theodore G. Montague.

Consolidated net income for the year totaled $7,582,617, equal to $1.72 a share, compared with $7,979,837, or $1.81 a share, in 1939. Last year's net income was equivalent to 3.5 per cent of sales, while in the preceding year net income equaled 3.8 per cent of sales. Total sales rose to $216,795,850 from $208,789,250 in the preceding year.

Calls Tax Item Misleading.

In the report to stockholders Montague observed that the company's business in line with other consumer goods industries realized but little increase in volume from the stimulated industrial activity due to the armament program.

Because of a certain provision of the federal income tax law, Montague said that a comparison of the company's tax bills does not reflect the increase in taxes during the last year. Actual tax figures indicate a decline in this cost, with the total tax bill for 1940 being $6,477,171, against $6,720,632 paid in 1939. However, Montague stated that this reduction resulted mainly from deductions allowed for losses in connection with disposal of properties not essential to the company's operations.

While dollar sales increased Montague said that the rise in the cost of sales and expenses amounted to $8,647,577. Rises in raw milk, wage and tax costs, he said, had more than offset economies the company had effected for other expense items.

Spends More in Illinois.

During 1940, he said, the company paid $12,749,397 for dairy products, wages, and taxes in the state of Illinois alone. This represented an increase of $218,666 over the 1939 figure. For all of the company's operations, payments for milk, cream, butter, cheese, labor and taxes took 71.6 cents for each dollar of sales in 1940, compared with 69.9 cents in the preceding year.

"Sales and profits of the fluid milk division as a whole were not improved over 1939," Montague said, "altho some individual operations made decided progress. Constant effort has been made to lower distribution costs, but results have not been sufficient to overcome the high wage costs, the high prices decreed in many markets by government authorities for fluid milk and the mounting burden of taxes."

Loss in Chicago, N. Y.

He reported that operations in fluid milk, as well as other milk products, showed a net loss in New York City and Chicago, two of the company's largest units.

C. L. Dressel, president of Borden-Wieland division, the company's fluid milk unit in Chicago, reported that the division lost 5 3/10 cents on every dollar received during the year. He attributed the loss to "disturbed" marketing conditions here. This division was one of the milk companies that were affected by the milk drivers' strike here.

Owing to the slim profit margin of fluid milk, Montague told stockholders that the management plans further diversification of its products which can be marketed thru existing sales organizations. Executive offices of the Borden company are in New York City.

Celanese Corp. Awards $1,500,000 Plant Order

New York, March 7 (AP).—Celanese Corporation of America announced today the award of a contract for additional buildings at its Celco, Va., plant to the George F. Hazelwood Company of Cumberland, Md. The estimated cost of the expansion is about $1,500,000. An increase of about 1,000 employés was expected, the company said, with completion of the expansion. Present employment is 1,400.

STOCKS END ALL EVEN; RALLYING WAVE SUBSIDES

Moderate Profit Cashing Lowers Industrials.

New York, March 7 (AP).—Stocks generally lost their rallying exuberance in today's market, altho few developed any real weakness.

Altho gains of fractions to about a point exceeded total declines at the close, the majority of steels, motors, aircrafts, rails and coppers finished a bit lower.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was unchanged at 41.2. Transfers of 351,200 shares compared with 480,010 yesterday.

Some bullish sentiment still was present, brokers said, despite continued apprehension over a possible nearby war shock in the Balkans, labor unsettlement in defense industries, and fears forthcoming taxes may be bad news for shareholders.

Universal Pictures Spurts.

Universal Pictures, an odd-lot issue, jumped 5 points on a 20-share turnover. Ending with modest improvement were Sears Roebuck, Woolworth, North American, Southern Pacific, J. I. Case, International Harvester, United States Gypsum, Eastman Kodak, Johns-Manville, Allied Chemical, and Westinghouse Electric.

On the losing end were United States Steel, Bethlehem, Republic Steel, Youngstown Sheet, General Motors, Chrysler, United States Rubber, Montgomery Ward, Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Santa Fe, New York Central, Great Northern, Anaconda, Kennecott, General Electric, and Texas corporation.

A New York Stock exchange membership sold today at $26,000 duplicating the 43-year low, and down $1,000 from the last sale on March 5.

CHICAGO LIST UNEVEN.

Stocks were uneven yesterday on the Chicago Stock exchange. Of the 77 active issues; 24 declined, 21 advanced, and 32 were unchanged. Transfers totaled 15,000 shares and 600 rights.

Bendix Aviation led the list in turnover of 1,350 shares, advancing 1 point to 36½. Midland United preferred, another of the trading favorites, set a new 1940-'41 high at 6¾, but closed at 6½, unchanged.

Only three dually listed stocks traded from 2 to 3 o'clock recorded changes from the New York close. They were Bendix Aviation, up ⅜ at 36½; Spiegel, down ¼ at 5½, and Swift, down ⅛ at 22⅛.

WHEAT FUTURES ADVANCE ON LOAN BOOST FORECAST

Wheat prices were on the upgrade yesterday on the Chicago Board of Trade as large operators reversed their opinion as to the probable trend of the market following reports from Washington that a higher government loan on the 1941 crop was probable. Closing trades were about the top, with gains of 1 to 1½ cents a bushel.

Corn and other grains followed wheat. Corn and rye each gained ⅜ to ½ cent, and oats ⅛ to ⅜ cent. Trading in soy beans was fairly active but profit taking sales cut final gains to ¼ to ⅜ cent a bushel.

Amendments providing for trading in new July and September rye and oats contracts to conform with a Board of Trade members, effective today.

SUGAR AND HIDES REACH FUTURES PEAKS FOR 1941

Coffee, Tin, and Silk Also Move Upward.

Speculative buying prompted by anticipated shipping difficulties continued to support most commodities for future delivery yesterday, brokers said. Domestic sugar and hides moved up to their highest 1941 prices, while Santos coffee, tin and silk also showed substantial gains. Rubber dropped in a sharp reversal of its recent trend, wool tops were lower and copper was down, ending a two weeks series of price peaks.

With raw sugar advancing to as high as 3¼ cents a pound, top since the outbreak of the European war, speculators lifted domestic futures 0.02 to 0.03 cent. The May delivery reached 2.29 cents.

June Hides Near 14 Cents.

Hides jumped 0.12 to 0.24 cent, June futures hitting 13.81 cents a pound and closing at 13.77 cents.

In the metal futures markets, copper was 0.06 cent lower to 0.01 cent higher at 12.08 cents a pound for May and tin ended unchanged to 0.25 cent higher at 51.10 cents bid in that contract. There were no lead futures sales. Cash metals remained firm, tin advancing 0.12½ cent to 51⅛ cents.

Trade estimates yesterday placed February shipments of domestic copper at a new high, with deliveries of 125,000 to 130,000 tons, compared with 119,736 tons in January, the previous record.

Rubber futures sagged 0.25 to 0.35 cent to 21.30 cents a pound in May, while the cash market lost 0.13 cent at 21.62 cents.

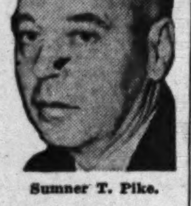
Requires Data on Labor and Priorities.

New York, March 7 [Special].—Administration of the Securities and Exchange commission has been "geared" to meet the problems posed by the national armament effort, Sumner T. Pike, SEC commissioner, told the New York Security Dealers association tonight at its annual dinner meeting.



Sumner T. Pike.

In the future, Pike said, where new projects are concerned, the SEC will "regard as material for registration purposes any information relating to priorities for raw materials and equipment, or the availability of labor necessary for the completion of the project."

Problem of Competition.

"In the world war," said Pike, "capital was scanty and had to be directed into useful war channels. Today money is probably the most abundant of the resources necessary. Control of capital is much less important than control of the other resources, altho the nation must be careful that our abundance of capital does not promote competition with the national arms effort.

"This problem of competition has been brought forcibly to our attention in connection with our job of protecting the investor under the securities act.

"Two main problems arise. The first is, do the priorities board and the labor control administrators within the national armament organization know about these projects, and second, are we permitting, by inadequate disclosure, the investment of the public's money in projects which national armament cannot permit to materialize? In other words, are we adequately protecting the investor?

"I am authorized to state that henceforth, where new projects are concerned, we shall regard as 'material' for registration purposes any information relating to priorities for raw materials and equipment or the availability of labor necessary for the completion of the project.

Must Show in Statement.

"Wherever it appears that any of the proceeds of a securities issue registered with us are to be used for new or additional facilities, such as buildings or machinery, we shall contact these two branches of the national organization. If they tell us either that materials or labor are unavailable or likely to be unavailable for the purpose specified in the registration statement, we shall require that this information be prominently displayed in the registration statement and prospectus."

Allan Sproul, new president of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, told the regional meeting of the American Bankers association that the financing of military contractors is well begun but that the financing of the government itself has still to reach a planned coöperation between the government and the banks, such as already appears between the government and industry.

C. I. O. REJECTS U. S. STEEL PAY INCREASE OFFER

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 7 [Special].—The offer of the United States Steel corporation for a conditional 2½ cents an hour wage increase for its 261,000 employés was rejected today by the C. I. O. Steel Workers Organizing committee. The union repeated its demand for a 10 cent boost.

Philip Murray, president of the Congress of Industrial Organizations, announced the decision of 150 delegates who convened this morning at his call. The 2½ cents an hour raise would have been tied to production. When the latter dropped below 85 per cent of capacity for any subsidiary, the company would have been privileged to rescind the raise. The present rate is 96 per cent.

SWOC leaders are expected to decide tomorrow whether to serve formal notice on the company of a desire to change the contract. Formal notification would invoke a clause which requires the start of negotiations within 10 days and the reaching of an agreement within an additional 10 day period.

People and Events

The 60 Chicago district lodges of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and members of Chicago's banking and industry will honor Col. William G. Edens, vice president of the Terminal National bank, at a banquet March 18 in the Stevens hotel. Col. Edens began his career as a brakeman in 1878.

David J. A. Hayes, Chicago attorney, will discuss the Probate court at a meeting of the Chicago Association of Life Underwriters today in the La Salle hotel.

More than 1,000 dealers and salesmen are expected to attend a banquet given by the Chicago branch of the Ford Motor company Tuesday noon in the Morrison hotel.

Jerry B. Gordon, president of the Hotel Pere Marquette, Peoria, was elected president of the Illinois Hotel association yesterday in Chicago. Edward S. Perry of the Hotel Leland, Springfield, was elected vice president, and Edward P. Allen of Springfield executive secretary and treasurer.

Ernest W. Smoot, vice president of Iron and Steel Products, Inc., Chicago, has been placed in charge of the new Washington, D. C., branch office.

STOCKS OF SLAB ZINC HELD BY PRODUCERS ARE LEAST SINCE 1912

New York, March 7 (AP).—Stocks of slab zinc in the hands of primary producers fell to the lowest level in modern times at the end of February despite rigid voluntary rationing of supplies by the industry, figures released by the American Zinc institute disclosed today.

The total on Feb. 28 of only 4,962 tons was equal to about three days requirements at the current rate of shipments. A total of 8,768 tons was held at the end of January and 65,869 at the end of February, 1940.

Statisticians delved back to 1912 to find correspondingly low stocks. At the end of 1912, the United States bureau of mines reported 4,522 tons were on hand.

February production dropped to 55,414 tons from 59,156 in January but was moderately ahead of 53,387 in February last year.

The effect of rationing supplies was seen in a decline in shipments to 59,220 tons from 63,272 in January. In February a year ago 51,050 tons were delivered to consumers.

in the army during the world war, serving in the finance department. He became vice president of a country bank after the war, and joined the Chicago reserve bank as an examiner in 1921. He was named a vice president of the bank in 1936.

Preston, who was born in Woodbury, Tenn., Dec. 6, 1884, was in the abstract and title business in California from 1907 to 1912, and was president and cashier of the Fort Bragg, Cal., Commercial bank from 1912 to 1928. He was vice president of the Bank of America National Bank and Trust company, San Francisco, for several years, and in 1932-'33 was Chicago office manager of the RFC. He was deputy governor of the Chicago reserve bank from 1933 to 1936.

Meantime it was learned that Nugent Oberwortmann of Evanston, chief national bank examiner for the 7th reserve district, has been elected a vice president of the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City. Oberwortman has had headquarters in the Chicago reserve bank.

A. F. OF L. UNIONS TIE UP CHRYSLER TANK PLANT JOB

Detroit, Mich., March 7 [Special].—Machinery installation at the Chrysler corporation tank arsenal has been held up since Feb. 25 by a 27 year old jurisdictional dispute between two A. F. of L. affiliated unions, it was revealed here today.

The unions involved are the International Association of Machinists and the International Brotherhood of Carpenters, the latter affiliated with the Detroit Building Trades council. Each union maintains the right to do the work was given it at an A. F. of L. convention in 1914.

Work was stopped when the building trades council protested the employment of four machinist union members by a contractor. The contractor immediately ordered all work halted until the dispute could be settled by the unions.

Standard Statistics, Poor's Stockholders O. K. Merger

New York, March 7 (AP).—Stockholders of Standard Statistics company and Poor's Publishing company today approved a merger of the organizations. A new name—Standard & Poor's corporation—was agreed upon. Paul T. Babson, who was president of Poor's, will become chairman of the board of the new corporation. H. Y. Barrow, who was chairman of Standard's board, will become vice chairman.

6 TAXING BODIES' UNPAID BILLS GO TO $28,660,000

Increase 4½ Million in Last Year.

BY LAURENCE BURD.

Unpaid bills and other current debts of the six major governments in Cook county soared 4½ million dollars during 1940 to a total of $28,660,000, the year-end financial statements showed yesterday. The governments are the city, county, school board, park district, sanitary district, and the forest preserve district.

This rise, accounted for by increased governmental spending in the face of continued poor tax collections, brought the government's current or floating debts to the highest total in four years. On Dec. 31, 1939, floating debts of the six governments amounted to $24,161,000, and two years earlier the total was only $20,960,000.

Total Debts Reduced.

Total debts of all kinds of the six governments dropped six million dollars in 1940, but only because of a reduction of 15 millions in bonds outstanding. Bonds must be retired automatically as funds are available from tax collections.

The total debt of the governments on Dec. 31, 1940, was $470,589,707, compared with $476,558,194 a year earlier.

All six governments registered increases during 1940 in their current debts. The largest boost was made by the county, from $5,636,914 at the close of 1939 to $8,286,914 on Dec. 31, 1940.

Tax Warrants Increased.

The slow rate of tax collections also caused a $4,600,000 boost in tax warrants outstanding last year. The total of warrants for the six agencies amounted to $97,908,813 at the close of 1940, against $93,303,526 a year earlier. The 1940 total was the largest for any year-end since 1936.

The following table compares the total debt of each of the six governments in the county at the end of 1940 with their debt a year earlier:

COTTON

General heavy buying by mills, foreign interests, and speculators lifted new crop deliveries of cotton to new seasonal high prices yesterday. Reports that a compromise might be reached on proposed farm legislation which would permit loans up to 75 per cent of parity, or equal to 12 cents a pound, had a market effect as a price-making influence. Profit taking and hedging sales caused a reaction from the best prices, with the close .02 to .11 cent a pound higher.

Cash cotton closed .04 to .05 cent higher, with New York, 10.87 cents; New Orleans, 10.53 cents; Houston, 10.25 cents, and Galveston at 10.24 cents a pound. Futures prices follow:

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK

A strong undercurrent was evident in the markets for most classes of meat animals yesterday. Hogs under 240 pounds in weight sold mostly 10 cents higher. Both the extreme top and the average prices moved up 10 cents to $7.95 and $7.60 a hundred pounds.

Slaughter lambs sold strong to unevenly higher, with a large share of offerings reaching the $11 a hundred pounds top.

The scant supply of steers and yearlings brought fully steady prices.

Hog receipts, 8,500; shipments, 1,500.

Cattle receipts, 1,000; shipments, 500.

Sheep receipts, 7,000; shipments, 1,000.

FOLMER GRAFLEX.

I saw a notice the other day that Folmer Graflex has received a war department order for cameras. I would like to know where this company is located, whether it has stock on the market, and what its earnings record has been.—J. B.

Answer: Folmer Graflex corporation has its plant and office at Rochester, N. Y. It manufactures cameras and photographic equipment which it distributes thru its own and Eastman Kodak sales branches.

Formed in 1926 around a nucleus of assets acquired from an Eastman Kodak division, the company assumed a business operated for 21 years. A portion of its stock was offered publicly at that time.

The company has outstanding 2,826 shares of 5 per cent cumulative preferred stock of $100 par value and 38,500 shares of no par common stock. The shares have a limited market over the counter in New York. The company has not made its recent financial statements public.

GROSS INCOME.

I am a single woman. Last year I received $300 in interest and dividends on investments and I earned $200 from odd jobs. I also received $10 a week in support from my brother. Are all these items included in gross income and do I have to file an income tax return for 1940?—A. H.

Answer: You are required to file a return if you had gross income of $800 or more in 1940. In your case, the $520 received from your brother would be considered the receipt of a gift, which is not taxable and is excluded from gross income. Your gross income, therefore, was $500 and you would not have to file a return.

Gross income includes all forms of income except those specifically excluded by law. These items exempt from income tax include proceeds from matured life insurance policies; gifts, bequests, inheritances; alimony, separation allowances; veterans' pensions; certain interest on government securities; health, accident, and workmen's compensation benefits, and payments for injuries and sickness.

EVEN THE PRESIDENT.

Are any government officials exempt from filing income tax returns? —K. S.

JANUARY MEAT IMPORTS THREE TIMES EXPORTS

Sales Abroad Are Lowest on U. S. Records.

The volume of meat exports during January was the smallest for that month on government records, which date back more than 60 years, while imports exceeded exports by the widest margin on record for the month, data furnished by the department of commerce disclosed yesterday.

Foreign business of United States packers was cut 89 per cent compared with January sales last year. Only 3,278,092 pounds of beef and pork, exclusive of lard, were shipped out, whereas the United States imported 9,596,922 pounds of meat during the month.

Had Export Excess in 1940.

During January last year exports of 29,911,975 pounds exceeded the imports of 9,433,246 pounds by 20,478,729 pounds.

The heavier flow of canned beef from South America swelled beef imports to 8,555,376 pounds, second for January since 1919 only to last year's 8,755,564 pounds. Two years ago this country received 4,679,167 pounds of beef from other countries, while three years ago the January imports were 3,313,361 pounds, and four years ago only 1,764,914 pounds.

Pork Imports Larger.

Pork imports increased to 1,041,546 pounds, compared with 677,682 pounds January last year. Only 2,275,224 pounds of pork were exported, the smallest January exports of pork in the history of the industry. They compared with 28,587,458 pounds during January, 1940.

Beef and veal exports decreased to 1,002,868 pounds, compared with 1,324,517 pounds a year ago. Lard exports were the third smallest on record for January, at 13,666,279 pounds, compared with 27,588,373 pounds in 1940.

RAILROAD BONDS ADD FRACTIONS TO RECENT GAINS

New York, March 7 (AP).—Railroad bonds today added minor fractions to more than a point to recent gains. Other groups, including United States government obligations, were irregular, altho rising issues showed the widest changes.

High lighting an otherwise routine day in the foreign dollar division was a rise of 2⅞ points in the stamped and assented Panama 5s, which established a new high at 71¾. Some quarters looked for speedy action in working out a new plan covering Panama's financial affairs as an encouragement to western hemisphere solidarity.

Dealers in government bonds over the counter referred to the day's activity in their field as a "tax exempt market," meaning most of the demand was for treasury issues the income from which the treasury cannot touch via the income tax route. Activity was light, they said, but prices averaged ⅛ point higher. Turnover in government issues on the stock exchange was negligible.

Secrets in Your Dreams!

What do those mysterious mental adventures mean to you? Read what psychoanalysts have to say!

Strange Signposts of the Subconscious

By
LLOYD WENDT

HAVE YOU DREAMT lately of being chased by a big red bull with bloodshot eyes and a pikestaff tail? If the dream recurs, regard the bull closely, for he may be your unconscious' conception of your wife's uncle, your boss, or perhaps your grandfather.

Belief in dreams is as ancient as man himself, but it is only in the last half century that scientists have been able to interpret the symbolism of dreams, relate them to real life problems, and employ the conclusions to correct personality defects, defeat neurosis, and in extreme cases ward off incipient insanity. The new science in which dreams play an important part is called psychoanalysis, the science of the unconscious.

Ever since Sigmund Freud rose in 1896 in the chambers of the Vienna Medical society to present his theory of the unconscious a hot controversy over the subject has raged among the scientists. Freud's early disciples, who joined him and fought for his findings in the years when Freudianism was considered almost disgraceful, have now become legion. Among them are some of the greatest scientific names the world has known. Yet men equally eminent still refuse to accept any part of the Freudian theory, and there is every evidence that the battle may continue for generations.

But Freud lived to see himself voted first citizen of the Vienna which rejected him, and institutes devoted to research in his science established in principal cities thruout the world. Some of the special terminology of the Freudian technique has become part of our everyday language. Today psychoanalysis has reached beyond the study of abnormalities and the evolution of our politics and customs to provide practical treatment for supposedly normal persons who cannot adjust themselves to the complexities of modern life. And they are responding as fast as long and difficult psychoanalytic method can care for them.

In the east this season psychoanalysis is reported to be the rage. An important impetus to this popularization of the science has been provided by Moss Hart's new play, "Lady in the Dark," a smash hit in the opinion of every New York reviewer.

Hart wrote the play out of his own experience with psychoanalysis. He got Marshall Field III., of the Chicago department store family, to back it as a result of their mutual interest in psychoanalysis. Field has been devoted to the science for years, and the report is that he and Hart met for the first time in an analyst's office.

Hart's play presents Gertrude Lawrence, the English actress, as the editor of a smart magazine who discovers that everything has gone abruptly awry with her work, her love life, and her happiness. She visits a psychoanalyst, and then on a revolving stage is presented an amazing sequence of dream scenes, which represent the unconscious longings of her libido, that have been too long shushed. Dancers, acrobats, all of the weird characters of a conventional nightmare cavort on the revolving stage as the analyst picks to bits Miss Lawrence's unconscious and puts it together again. She learns finally that what she really needs is honest love and protection rather than a career and illicit romance, and everything works out beautifully.

Field is also reported to have backed PM, New York's new tabloid newspaper, with nearly $4,000,000 as a result of his interest in psychoanalysis. According to the New York reports, Ralph Ingersoll, editor of PM, met Field thru their mutual interest in analysis and thus got his support for the paper.

The work of Sigmund Freud, Alfred Adler, Abraham, Ferenczi, Jung, Rank, and other illustrious men in the field of psychoanalysis has been by no means limited to a mere interpretation of dreams. But our sleeping visions most graphically demonstrate the activity of our unconscious. The psychoanalysts describe the unconscious as a tremendous welter of repressions, frustrations, wishes, and fears which influences our daily behavior. The study of dreams, therefore, becomes an important introduction to analytic method.

This article on psychoanalysis and psychotherapy will not attempt to be a scientific discussion. An exhaustive description of a single case might fill a thick volume. The cases recited here will be typical of many coming to the attention of the analysts. They are for the most part not advanced neurotics, but average persons unable to make what we consider normal adjustments. They might be one of your neighbors or friends. All cases are based on facts, but the characters will be fictitious. The complete confidence of a patient is the psychoanalyst's chief working instrument, and he would not on any account violate a confidence.

The man who dreamed a bull pursued him did not visit the psychoanalyst merely to report this common fantasy. It was an incident in his recital of experience drawn from his unconscious during a long and earnest period of analysis. But it provided a clew to quirks in his personality that were causing him to shun social relationships and were ruining his business.

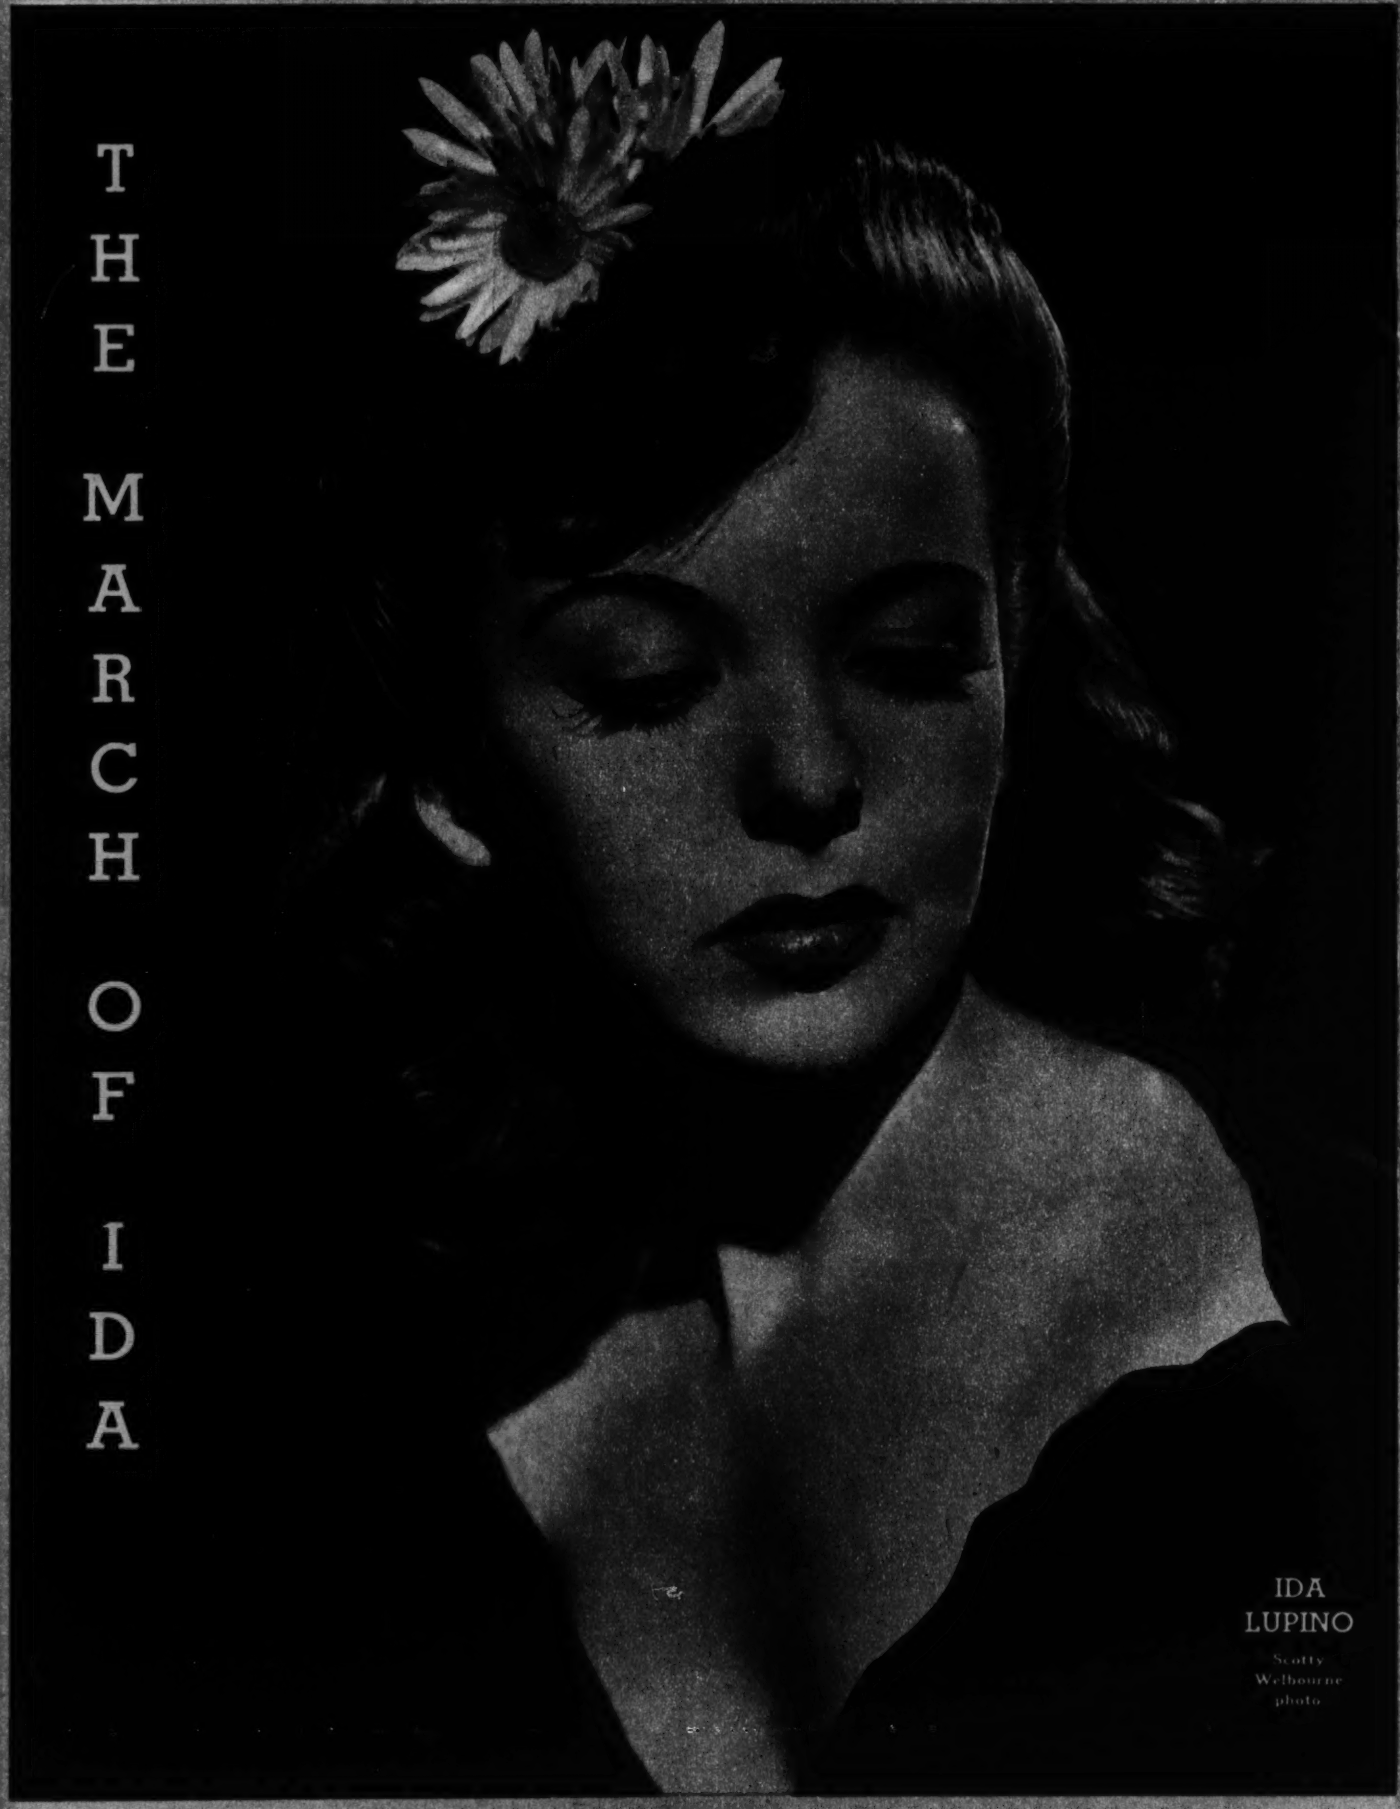
Mr. A., young and ambitious, had expanded his company beyond his ability to finance it, and there was constant danger of bankruptcy.

Altho he was desperate for help, A. could think of no one who would aid him save the irascible grandfather who had reared him and whom he had not seen for many years.

Mr. A. did not consider the possibility of visiting his grandfather. His pride would not permit it. He told himself that he had already been helped more than he deserved and that it would be useless to seek anything additional. His business continued to decline, and (Continued on page eight.)

NEXT SUNDAY—"When Ladies Turn to Crime," from Confidential Files of the Fraud Fighters

THE MARCH OF IDA



"They live in a nice, ungaudy home."

LOOKING AT HOLLYWOOD with JOHN CHAPMAN

Hollywood.

IDA LUPINO, 100 well assembled pounds of zing, knows what she wants and wants what she wants when she wants it. She is finally getting same, but it was a close call. She darn near held herself out of pictures for good. Now she can have all the right kind of pictures she wants, which is a very fine state of affairs for a lass of 23.

Miss Lupino's new foothold in filmdom came with a Warner melodrama called "They Drive by Night," in which she played a sexy maniac with the maximum of emotional intensity; from there on she has been a rising star. In her ability to handle a dramatic rôle she is a recognized rival of Bette Davis, Big Tenner, whom she has never met. They often eat at the same time in the Green room at the studio, but nobody has ever thought to perform an introduction. It has just been taken for granted that they are old pals—and you know how it is: A star can't very well walk up to another one and say, "I am So-and-So." It would be something like Lindbergh presenting letters of introduction to the late Ambassador Herrick in Paris.

Miss Lupino is slender yet curvy; has big, beautiful and intense eyes, set off by very authoritative eyebrows; she has a small face narrowing down to a pointed little chin; she has stopped being blonde and has her regular brown hair. She is not beautiful, like the babes the playboy agents and hangers-on take around to the night joints, but she has the instant effect of persuading an onlooker that here is a lady of distinction, intelligence, and ability. She also has ambition and the drive necessary to take it some place. Her mind is alive, and I'm neither original nor reckless in predicting a top spot for her in 1941.

Two and a half years ago Miss Lupino got tired of playing blonde gigglers and walked out on a $1,700 a week contract at Paramount. She took the risk of being washed up at 20, but it turned out to be a good gamble. She got a new chance at Paramount by demonstrating that she could be a bit of a hellion. She wanted a rôle in "The Light That Failed," which Wild William Wellman was casting. How, queried Wellman, did she know she could handle such an emotionally demanding rôle? She showed him right then by becoming hysterical in her pleas for the part, and Wellman signed her.

Then came another lapse. She had been offered another good rôle in "Victory," so she turned down two other offers and waited for this one. Then came the news that the character had been changed from an English girl to an American girl, and Ida was out.

"But," she howled, "that's what I've been doing for years—playing American girls!"

"Sorry," they said, "but you're too English for the part."

Nothing else happened until the Warners signed her for "They Drive by Night."

There are actresses who refuse to do things for their bosses and get the reputation of being temperamental and hard to handle. Miss Lupino is not like that; she did not, for instance, particularly care for her rôle of a mobster's moll in "High Sierra"—but everybody else does and the picture is a hit, so who is she against so many? But she once put the chill on C. B. De Mille, which, at Paramount, is like desecrating a heathen idol in a Lord Dunsany play; you just don't do those things without catching hell.

She told me about it the other day. I had said I happened to be at De Mille's broadcast the evening she played Mrs. De Winter in "Rebecca," and that I thought it was a fine performance. She said she was wound up tighter than a marlin reel because there had been a lot of off again on again business about Joan Fontaine playing the part, and she'd had only two days to get ready. Then she told how she got into C. B.'s palatially furnished doghouse.

"Several years ago, when I was at Paramount, he wanted me to play a bit in 'The Sign of the Cross.' 'But I'm an actress,' I said, 'and why should I play a bit?' De Mille wouldn't even speak to me for months and everybody at the studio was horrified. And then one day he asked me to appear in one of his broadcasts and I did. I've been in five of them. Just before each one he used to give me a penny for good luck.

"Late the other afternoon, before we were to go on in 'Rebecca,' I felt uneasily that something was missing—and then I knew what it was. He hadn't given me a penny. I told him and he drew from his pocket a rare coin. 'There are only a few of these,' he said, 'and I am saving them for the people I like best on my broadcasts. I want you to have the first one.' . . . Did you notice that I had my left hand clenched at my side during the show? I was clutching that coin."

Ida got this emotionally demanding role in "The Light That Failed" by becoming hysterical in her pleas for the part.

Ida Lupino, British born, is a direct descendant of one of the oldest—and one of the most numerous—acting families. The Warner publicity department says she is descended "from the longest line of theatrical people in the world," but that may not be quite true. According to John Parker's "Who's Who in the Theater," which has a section devoted to family trees, the oldest family is that of the Pitts, a dynasty founded by Mrs. Ann Pitt, who was born in 1720. Next oldest is the Kemble tribe, started in 1721 by Roger Kemble.

The Lupinos' position in this careful chronology is a little vague because the date of birth of one Giorgio Lupino, acrobatic dancer, seems to have escaped research. All that is known is that he was "alive in 1784"—but so were Roger Kemble and Mrs. Pitt. Ida's family tree, starting with the union of Giorgio's dancing son George and a dancing lady named Rosina Proctor—a union blessed with thirteen children, only three of whom were dancers—carries on down to now and spreads the while. There are Lupino Lanes and Laurie Lupino Lanes and Wallace Lupinos and people named Crauford, Blythe, and Jones.

Mr. Parker's who's who diagram, being strictly British, is a bit stiffish on the subject of the cinema. It lists Ida's sister, Dora, as having been an actress; of Ida it says only "films." It lists Ida's noted father, Stanley, and her mother, Connie Emerald, as actors. Stanley Lupino is the most interesting person in the world, not excepting Husband Louis Hayward, to the subject of this article.

"He's weird," she says. "He's a leprechaun and I'm a pixie."

And if this paragraph about family trees and leprechauns hasn't driven you back to the breakfast table for another cup of coffee to clear your head, your I. Q. is immense.

A few weeks ago Arch Selwyn, one time theatrical producer, was in a bad automobile accident and barely came thru with his life. He got a thoro going over in the hospital, during which the doctors found malaria in his bloodstream. They asked him if he had ever been in the tropics and he said yes, he was in Cuba during the Spanish-American war. He'd had malaria nigh onto forty-three years and never knew it! Well, Miss Lupino has had theater germs playing tag in her veins all her life, so it was natural that, when she was 13 and had finished high school in London, she demand her chance at acting.

But Papa Stanley wanted her to go to college. As a joke he said she could go on the stage if she got a job in one afternoon. Ida fooled the old man by putting on high heels, lying about her age, and landing a leading rôle in a movie, "Her First Affair." This was followed by more London-made talkers, and Alan Dwan, the American director, discovered her for Hollywood.

Actor Louis Hayward married Ida three years ago and they live in a nice, ungaudy home on Brentwood Hillside where there is an honest to goodness view of the distant ocean. They bought the house and added a compact lounge-bar to it. It's a wood paneled room with a comfortable fireplace and a center chandelier made of a pair of antique rifles (Hayward's hobby is collecting guns).

There is a properly stocked bar, but don't upset the hostess by being a dope and asking for ice in a highball. One doesn't ruin perfectly good liquor that way, y'know. There is a phonograph with a recording attachment, and this gadget occupies much of the Haywards' leisure time.

Ida's hobby is helping young people get radio jobs. She has a regular stock company, and they prepare air shows—even to the commercials—and record them. Musical stuff and dramas. Recently they have become enthusiastic over a series of sketches about a cockney family—the Harkit family.

Ida, Hayward, Richard Haydn, and any other actors handy of an evening will say, "Let's take the Harkits to the beach," or to the museum, or wherever. So they get out the microphone, put on a blank record, and begin. It is a fine exercise in ad-libbing and the results, altho frequently ribald enough to give the Federal Communications commission the vapors, are so engagingly funny that plans are now afoot to clean the Harkits up and sell them to a radio sponsor.

Another of Ida's hobbies is music. She has lots of classic and modern stuff for the phonograph, which she'll play while studying a script, and she makes up tunes on the piano. She thinks that some day she will publish some of the waltzes she has composed. She also paints; won a prize for an oil from the Royal academy in London when she was 12. It was a Madonna.

It is more than probable that Paramount, which had Ida Lupino under contract for so long, regrets that it let her go. Under her deal there she was to get $10,000 a picture, or a little more than an average of $1,000 a week while working. When the Warners asked for the loan of her for "They Drive by Night" Paramount readily agreed because it had nothing for her. The picture was finished and waiting for a preview when Ida's Paramount contract option came due.

The next night the truck driving thriller was previewed; Lupino all but stole the film from George Raft, Humphrey Bogart, and Ann Sheridan. Paramount tried eagerly to resign her at four times the previous wage, but it was too late. The Warners had tied her up. Her present annual deal is to make three pictures for the brothers of Burbank, one with 20th Century-Fox and another with Columbia. Her next film will be "Ladies in Retirement," at Columbia.

Miss Lupino, who admits she's a pixie and the daughter of a leprechaun, has a couple of dogs—and the name of one of them, which was reported to you on this page last summer, is worth repeating. It's Edward the Flowers Are Not for You to Pick Pride of Pampas Cornforth Fingal's Cave Rimsky Oh Guy Vanderbilt Grimswade Lightfoot Go Lie Down.

The Borden Murder Case

After Nearly 50 Years It Is an Unsolved Mystery

IN THE climax of that stinging comedy, "The Man Who Came to Dinner," the hero and great literarian, Mr. Sheridan Whiteside, saves himself from being kicked into the street by a happy recollection of the famous Lizzie Borden murder case.

Whiteside, as the play runs, cracked a clavicle, or something, while leaving the home of a Mesalia, O., family after he had been invited to dinner while visiting the town on a lecture tour. There is nothing to do but put him to bed in the house, which he proceeds to reorganize for his own convenience.

The hapless Richard Stanley, lord of the manor until that evening, is then kicked about for three acts by the acidulous Whiteside. Finally Stanley, in desperation, musters sufficient nerve to order Whiteside out. But our hero, on the stroke of doom, saves his neck and reputation by recalling that Stanley's whacky sister is the famous Harriet Sedley, who murdered her mother and father with an ax 25 years before in Gloucester, Mass.

"Come, Mr. Stanley, it's a very small favor," says the diabolical Mr. Whiteside to his defeated host. "Or would you rather have the good folk of Mesalia repeating at your very doorstep that once popular little jingle:

"Harriet Sedley took an ax
And gave her mother forty whacks,
And when the job was nicely done,
She gave her father forty-one."

Whiteside, who stays, of course, is said to represent Alexander Woollcott, famed columnist, writer, and lecturer, whose hobby was the Lizzie Borden murder case. Thus in comedy is preserved some recollection of a gruesome incident in American life that might very well serve as the entire motivation for a Eugene O'Neil tragedy.

The famous Borden murders did not take place in Gloucester, but in Fall River, not far away, and they occurred considerably more than 25 years ago. The date was Aug. 4, 1892.

Fall River in that year was a peaceful, prosperous mill town. Its leading citizen was Andrew J. Borden, sharp-eyed Scot with thin, tight lips, and a set of white chin whiskers. He was 70 years old, president of the leading bank, and owner of extensive real estate and industrial holdings. He was domineering and calculating, inflexibly righteous in the New England Puritan tradition, and impervious to any sentimental nonsense.

Banker Borden had married twice. Abby, his second wife, was a firm, cold, and somewhat coarse woman, who constantly thwarted her husband while seeming to obey him, and who governed her household with a malicious thoroness that gave her two adult stepdaugthers little opportunity for self-expression. Their mother had died when they were young, and Abby Borden had reared them from childhood.

Of the two daughters, Lizzie seemed to find life most pleasant. She was a Sunday school teacher, secretary of the Christian Endeavor society, and a worker in the W. C. T. U. and the auxiliary of the Y. M. C. A. She was as generous as her father would allow, reserved but pleasant, and stubborn once she had made up her mind. Emma was the quieter of the two. She went out infrequently, and then usually to see a few special friends.

On Aug. 2, 1892, Emma Borden went to visit a friend in Fairhaven, a town near Fall River. That evening, after dinner, both Mr. and Mrs. Borden became ill. Emma said later that she had been ill also. The family thought that the milk it received was tainted.

The following day Lizzie visited her friend, Alice Russell, who lived down the street. "I feel depressed," she told Alice. "I feel as if something was hanging over me that I cannot throw off. . . . Father has so much trouble. He and Mrs. Borden were awfully sick last night. We all were but Maggie ('Maggie' was the Bordens' name for Bridget Sullivan, the family servant). Sometimes I think our milk might be poisoned. I am afraid somebody will do something. I feel as if I wanted to sleep with one eye open . . . for fear they will burn the house down over us."

Later that day, when Lizzie returned home, she found her uncle, John V. Morse, brother of the first Mrs. Borden, had arrived for a visit. He was given the guest room, and he and Borden sat up rather late that night, talking together.

Aug. 4 was extremely hot, even at an early hour of the morning. Mr. and Mrs. Borden and Morse had breakfast together at 7 o'clock. Breakfast consisted of mutton soup, warmed over for the third time in 24 hours, mutton, cakes, bread without butter, coffee without cream, and bananas.

Alexander Woollcott as Sheridan Whiteside, the character said to have been inspired by himself and his interest in the Borden case.

At 8:45 Morse excused himself and left to visit other relatives in town.

At 8:50 Lizzie came down to breakfast. She surveyed the warmed over food and told Emma she wanted only cookies and coffee.

At 9:15 Borden, donning his frayed frock coat despite the extreme heat, departed for the bank, five minutes' walk from his home.

Mrs. Borden told Lizzie to help Bridget with the dishes and announced that she was going to tidy the guest room. She returned a few moments later and ordered Bridget to wash the rear windows of the house.

Bridget went to the barn behind the house for her supplies and Mrs. Borden returned to the guest room. Lizzie dried the dishes and began ironing handkerchiefs.

When Bridget finished her window washing at about 10:45, she went into the house. She heard a fumbling at the front door, and went to admit Mr. Borden, who had returned from the bank because of the heat. They were both surprised to find the door locked. Borden had also been to a side door, and found the screen hooked from the inside. Bridget, however, had entered the house from the rear without difficulty.

Just as Mr. Borden got inside, he and Bridget heard Lizzie laugh. The strangeness of the sound in that house startled them. Lizzie came downstairs. She joined her father, and went over the morning mail with him. He asked where Mrs. Borden was.

"She's gone out," said Lizzie. "She got a note from a friend who is sick and went out. She said she'd be back for dinner."

Mr. Borden went upstairs to his room, returning a few moments later. He rolled up his coat, using it for a pillow, and lay on the sofa for a nap. Bridget began washing inside windows at the rear of the house, and Lizzie went to the dining room and resumed ironing.

"Are you going out today, Maggie?" Lizzie called.

"I don't think so. I don't feel so well," Bridget answered.

"Well, if you do go out, don't forget to lock the door, as Mrs. Borden is out and I may go out, too. By the way, there is a sale of dress goods at Sargent's today; it's selling at 8 cents a yard."

Bridget found the heat unbearable and went to her room upstairs for a rest. She said she went to sleep soon after she heard the town hall clock strike 11. She was awakened 15 minutes later.

"Maggie! Maggie! Come here at once!" It was Lizzie calling frantically from the sitting room downstairs.

"What is it, Miss Lizzie?" Bridget called back.

"Father is dead. Hurry down. Some one has killed him!"

Bridget dashed down the steps. Lizzie met her in the hall. "O, Maggie, don't go in there," she cried. "Get Dr. Bowen, quick!"

Bridget hastened to the home of Dr. Bowen up the street. He was out. She hurried back.

"How awful!" she moaned as she again met Lizzie in the hall. "Where was you, Miss Lizzie, when it happened?"

"I was out in the yard under the pear tree," said Lizzie. "I heard a groan and came in. The screen door was wide open. Run over and get Alice Russell."

While Bridget was on her new errand, Mrs. Churchill, a neighbor, came over, and Joseph Allen, a policeman patroling the neighborhood, noticed the excitement and came to see what was going on.

Allen took one look at the body of Andrew J. Borden, lying on the living room sofa. Then, instead of standing guard to see that nothing was touched—an inflexible rule of the police in modern times—Allen himself acted as messenger to the central station. He dashed off to inform his superiors of the crime.

"Where were you when it happened?" Mrs. Churchill asked Lizzie when she had recovered from her initial shock.

"I was out in the barn, getting a piece of iron," Lizzie answered.

Dr. Bowen returned home and arrived at the Borden house ahead of the police. He examined the body of Mr. Borden as it lay on the sofa. He found that the first blow, as well as he could judge, had split the man's skull. Borden died almost instantly. The savage, mutilating gashes which followed had not been needed.

Dr. Bowen was pleased to see that Lizzie was not giving way under the terrible shock. She did not weep or show any signs of hysteria.

"Some one must tell Mrs. Borden and Emma," Lizzie said. "Emma is visiting in Fairhaven, but Mrs. Borden must be upstairs. I thought I heard her come in a little while ago."

Dr. Bowen and Mrs. Churchill went upstairs. There, on the floor of the guest room, they found the body of Mrs. Borden. Her head had been hacked in the same manner as her husband. Dr. Bowen estimated that she had been dead for two hours.

The police arrived shortly after the discovery of the second body and began a search for clews. Dr. Emmett Dolan, the coroner, examined the bodies. Nothing had been taken from Borden's pockets. Mrs. Borden, Dr. Dolan guessed, had been struck down from behind as she was arranging a pillow slip on the bed.

Lizzie Borden

The house had not been rifled. And, strangely, there were few traces of blood anywhere. It seemed almost impossible that two persons could be murdered in such horrible fashion without signs of blood being found about the house, beyond the immediate space occupied by the bodies. There was no indication that blood spots had been removed from the floors or rugs.

Two axes and two hatchets were found in the cellar beneath the house. One of the hatchets, from which the handle had been recently broken, was coated with ashes. The police suggested that the ashes had been used to scour away blood stains.

Following the double funeral for Mr. and Mrs. Borden, the Fall River police reluctantly began questioning Lizzie Borden. Because of the great notoriety given the case, Albert E. Pillsbury, attorney general of Massachusetts, joined in.

Among the witnesses at the inquest were Eli Bence and Fred E. Hart, clerks in a South Main street drug store, and Frank H. Kilroy, a citizen who happened to be in the pharmacy on Wednesday, Aug. 3. These men testified that on that day Lizzie Borden came to the drug store and sought to buy prussic acid, which she said she wanted to use to kill moths in her sealskin coat. This evidence was ruled out when Lizzie went to trial for her life the following June.

"My father had trouble with a man several weeks before his death," Lizzie testified at the inquest. "He came to the house and I heard them talking about a store. My father ordered him out of the house. Father also had trouble with Hiram C. Harrington, who married my father's only sister, but I don't think it was serious.

"About five years ago I had trouble with Mrs. Borden about her stepsister. After that I did not regard Mrs. Borden as my mother. I did not call her mother because I did not want to.

"The day they were killed I had on a blue dress. I changed it in the afternoon to a print dress. After my father returned from town, he sat on the sofa and I told him I was going to the barn to get some lead for a sinker so I could go fishing. I went upstairs in the barn, unhooking the screen door when I left the house. I had no fishing apparatus at the house, but I had some at the barn. It is five years since I used that fishing line.

"I don't know where Bridget was all this time, but when I returned from the barn I took off my hat and then found father dead and called her. I saw one hatchet not long ago on the chopping block in the cellar. I don't know how many axes or hatchets there were down there. If there was a hatchet there with blood on it, or recently washed or scrubbed with ashes, I don't know anything about it.

Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Borden

"I never went to a drug store to buy prussic acid. I did not go into the guest room where Mrs. Borden was killed all that day.

"One night not long ago I saw the shadow of a man near the house as I was coming home. I hurried in the front door. I saw somebody run around the house last winter and jump over the fence. I know nothing about the unfortunate murders."

On Dec. 2 the grand jury returned three indictments against Lizzie, one for killing her father, one for killing her stepmother, and one for killing them both. Her trial began June 5, 1893.

The state sought to show that Lizzie committed the crime for fear her stepmother would be favored in her father's will. It charged that she had opportunity to commit the crime, and that she indicated premeditation in her conversation with Alice and her effort to lure Bridget out of the house with her remark about the dress goods sale. No sick friend of Mrs. Borden could ever be found. The prosecution pointed out that Lizzie had told conflicting stories as to her whereabouts at the time of the murder of her father.

Alice Russell testified that Lizzie told her she had gone to the barn to get a piece of tin or iron to fix the screen door at the time of the slayings. She also said she saw Lizzie burn a dress similar to the one she had been wearing the day of the murders.

The defense, having succeeded in barring all testimony concerning Lizzie's alleged attempt to buy prussic acid, showed that the screen door of the house was open while Lizzie was in the barn, and that the slayer might have had opportunity at that time to commit the crimes. The defense made its strongest point when several persons testified that they had seen Lizzie immediately after the murder of her father and that there were no spots of blood on her person or clothing. Defense experts had previously testified that it would be almost impossible for a slayer to hack a victim so brutally without acquiring a stain of blood.

The trial proceeded for 15 days. Three judges presided, altho the case was being heard by a jury. Both sides had eminent legal talent. Chief counsel for the prosecution was William H. Moody, later an associate justice of the United States Supreme court. The defense staff was led by George R. Robinson, thrice governor of Massachusetts. Forty newspapers sent correspondents and artists to cover the trial. Most of the newsmen, like the general public, regarded Lizzie as innocent, and they belabored the prosecution daily.

Lizzie Borden did not take the stand. She sat calmly thru the dramatic proceedings, never once betraying her emotion. Even when the gleaming skulls of her parents were brought into the courtroom, to permit the state to show that the hatchet blade from the Borden cellar fitted into the dozen clefts in each of them, Lizzie still maintained her quiet composure.

When the evidence and arguments were in, the jury took exactly an hour and six minutes to find Lizzie Borden not guilty. The country hailed the verdict.

Following her acquittal, Lizzie continued to live in the family home at 92 Second street with Emma. Six years later the sisters quarreled over the settlement of the estate and separated, Emma moving to Providence, R. I. Lizzie then became a recluse, altho she sometimes went to Boston, New York, or Washington to attend the theater, of which she was very fond.

Lizzie died June 1, 1927, at the age of 65. By her will she cut Emma off without a penny, and left her fortune to animal charities. Emma died in Providence nine days later. Together, the sisters left an estate worth $690,000.

All of the persons connected with the Borden murder case and the trial of Lizzie Borden now are dead. Lizzie and Emma are buried in the family lot, beside their father, their mother, a sister who died in infancy, and their stepmother.

Despite the keen interest of many criminologists and investigators in the case, the mystery of the Borden murders has never been solved.

VOICE OF THE MOVIE FAN

Letters published in this department should be written on one side of the paper.
If you wish a personal reply please inclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Dear Miss Tinée: Just recently I saw "Pride and Prejudice." I noticed especially the actor playing the part of Charles Bingley. Would you please give me his name? Thanking you very much,

C. C.

Editor's note: Glad to help you out. Bruce Lester played the rôle of Charles Bingley in the above-mentioned film.

Dear Mae Tinée: Recently I saw the movie "Escape," with Bob Taylor and Norma Shearer. I thought the acting was wonderful, especially the way the actors and actresses mastered the guttural German accent. I was especially enthused with the man who played the part of the German doctor in the concentration camp. I would like to know what his name is. My mother would like to know how to pronounce Nazimova's name. Thanks a lot and lots of luck to your column. Sincerely,

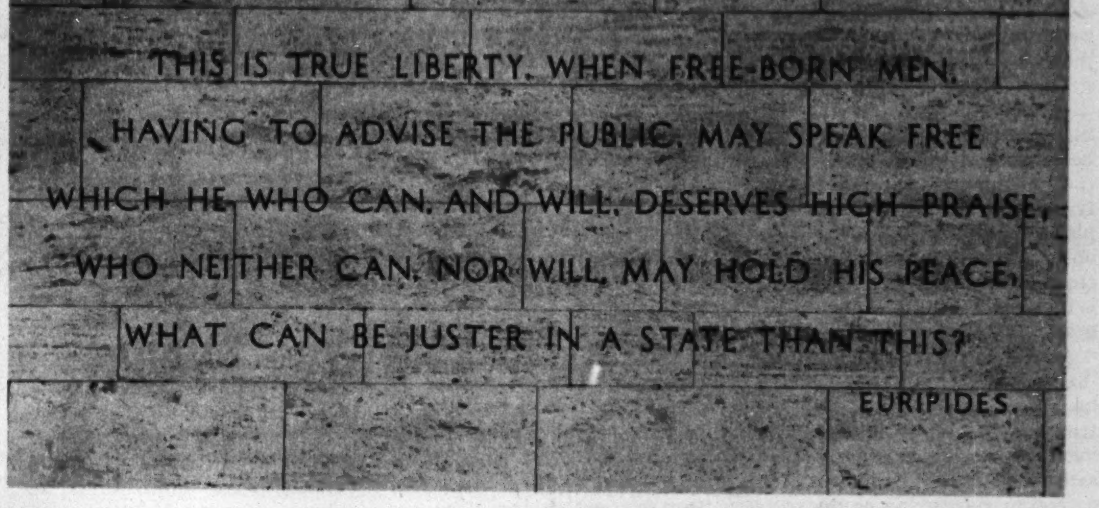
DOTTY JANSEN.

Editor's note: Philip Dorn played the rôle of Dr. Ditten, the doctor in the concentration camp. Tell your mother to pronounce it "nah-zee-mo-vah"—accent on second syllable.

Dear Miss Tinée: I am a girl 12 years of age. I am a great admirer of Billy Halop, one of the "Dead End" boys. I would like to know how to get an autographed picture of Mr. Halop. EVELYN FIGG.

Editor's note: If this doesn't give young Mr. Halop a thrill I've guessed wrong! You can write to Warners-First National studio, Burbank, Cal., for his photo.

THE HALL OF INSCRIPTIONS IN TRIBUNE TOWER



THIS IS TRUE LIBERTY, WHEN FREE-BORN MEN,
HAVING TO ADVISE THE PUBLIC, MAY SPEAK FREE
WHICH HE WHO CAN, AND WILL, DESERVES HIGH PRAISE, WHO NEITHER CAN, NOR WILL, MAY HOLD HIS PEACE, WHAT CAN BE JUSTER IN A STATE THAN THIS?
EURIPIDES.

REPRODUCED above is a photograph of one of the 19 famous inscriptions to be found on the walls of the entrance hall of Tribune Tower. Carved clearly in the travertine marble of the hall, which has come to be known to journalists thruout America as the Hall of Inscriptions, these immortal words of the distinguished Greek tragedian Euripides define true liberty.

In addition to the inscriptions on the walls of the hall there is inlaid in its floor a celebrated quotation from John Ruskin, the profound English writer and critic. On the outside wall of the tower, just north of its main entrance, is a quotation from John Milton, the great English poet.

These 21 famous sayings by publicists, poets, dramatists, orators, presidents, jurists, and journalists represent 24 centuries of utterances for the freedom of speech and the freedom of the press—important manifestations of real liberty. The Hall of Inscriptions thus sets forth so that all may understand the ideals and obligations of the American journalistic profession.

Euripides, quoted in the inscription here reproduced, was the third of the three great Greek tragedians—the other two were Æschylus, founder of the Greek drama, and Sophocles, the tragic poet. Euripides was born about 484 B. C. His first play was produced in 455 B. C.

It was from one of his patriotic plays, the "Suppliant Woman," written in 421 B. C., that the inscription on the Tribune Tower wall was taken. This play represented Athens as the city of enlightenment, helper of the oppressed, and champion of Hellenism and true piety.

Euripides died in 407 B. C., but for six centuries afterward his plays were the preferred works of drama-loving people. Truly Euripides was a significant figure of human history.

Another of the inscriptions will be reproduced and discussed in an early issue.

THE COMPOSERS

● Charlotte and Milton Cassel, writers of "Sagebrush Serenade," "Please Kiss Me Good Night," and "Why Dream?", have studied and performed music since early childhood. Mr. Cassel is a direct descendant of Henry of Cassel, renowned as a flute played and brother of Frederick the Great. Mrs. Cassel had her first music lesson at 6, first recital at 14, and began organ study at 16. She was organist at the Roxy theater and solo pianist for "The Cat and the Fiddle." She is the author of a book for instruction on musical theory and harmony.

● Starting with the violin at the age of 10 and gradually adding other instruments in accordance with whatever the school orchestra was short of, Mr. Cassel can be said to have played virtually every instrument in the band. At the present time he is one of the country's outstanding artists on all woodwinds. In common with his wife he has played at New York's leading motion picture theaters and on the air.

Poland Still Fights— on the Sea!

(Wide World photo.)
Polish sailors leave one of the submarines interned at Stockholm.

London.

THE POLISH submarine Wilk moved quietly forward at 15 fathoms. Over the faint humming of her electric motors could be heard the more robust churning of surface vessels and now and then a tremendous explosion somewhere in the depths that made the Wilk shudder.

The second World war had begun five days before, and German destroyers and trawlers had ever since been trying to entrap the Polish navy in Gdynia harbor. The Polish warships had been pounded with gunfire and the Polish submarines mercilessly sought out by German airplanes patroling the area in cooperation with the German navy. On the third day of the war the Wilk, working with other Polish craft, laid mines in the water near Danzig then occupied by the German warships. It was a hazardous assignment, and extreme care had to be taken in avoiding destroyers with their sensitive listening devices for detecting submarine engines.

Now, on the fifth day, the Wilk's tired crew were going thru hell. Early that morning the terrifying depth bomb attack had begun. Every few minutes a drum of explosive would plunge downward thru the sea, exploding, according to the pressure setting, anywhere from 10 to 30 fathoms deep. One of the early ones had almost got the Wilk. With it exploding about 80 feet away, the sudden violent increase in water pressure had strained the submarine's seams, starting leaks.

The Wilk's captain, an intelligent, husky, blue-eyed man in his early thirties, put his pumps to work and moved away, steering a zigzag course to elude the Nazis. For hours he crept along, stopping his motors whenever a surface vessel approached, moving a quarter of a mile this way, a half mile that way. Yet everywhere he went the Germans were right after him. The depth bombs kept on coming, and seldom did they seem to explode more than a few hundred feet away. The captain couldn't understand it, because he did not know that one of his seams, partly sprung by the earlier bomb, was releasing a steady flow of oil from the engine room. Like a bleeding stag, the Wilk left a trail that any one of the hounds above her could follow with ease.

At 11:30 in the morning the bombing suddenly ceased. It was lunch time, and the Germans were hungry. Guessing what was going on above him, the captain of the Wilk also ordered lunch and both sides in this grueling struggle on and under the sea sat down simultaneously to a quiet meal.

But during all the time the Wilk was resting on the bottom the trickle of oil, unbeknownst to her crew, was rising to form a growing pool on the surface. At 12:30 the bombardment began more furiously than before. Several times those aboard the Wilk thought all was lost, but somehow the big submarine withstood the terrific pounding—and finally at sundown the enemy gave up the chase.

After that the Wilk was able to get out of the shallow coastal waters and to operate against German warships in the open sea. But her leak continued with the weeks and her fuel supply was getting low. Realizing he could not refuel at his base in Gdynia, now in German hands, the Wilk's captain took stock of the war situation as reported on his radio and decided to escape to England. This meant passing thru German mine fields at various places about the narrow entrances to the Baltic, but the captain believed he could make it by hugging the Swedish shore, where there was supposed to be a channel left for neutral shipping. The worst stretch to be covered, of course, was the Danish shallows, where there was not sufficient depth for a submarine to submerge. Here German destroyers would be sure to keep careful watch, and if the Wilk were seen she would have no recourse but to surrender or fight it out on the surface.

Waiting for a moonless night, the Wilk was successful in sneaking across the miles of shallows and getting into the Skagerrack and away. Her crew had many exciting moments as searchlight crews, practicing on the nearby shore, played their beams in her direction just as two German destroyers approached. The destroyers were doing a zigzag course thru the straits and luckily their pilots were concentrating so hard on their charts and compasses that they failed to notice the low black conning tower and upper hull of the Wilk scarcely 100 yards away.

Such is the story of the Wilk's escape as her captain told it exclusively to The Tribune at the Polish naval office in London many months later. But the Wilk was only one of five Polish submarines operating in the Baltic at the start of the war. A second one, the Orzel, which later fought gallantly off Norway and sank the German transport Rio de Janeiro with 5,000 troops, also escaped from the Baltic, and even more dramatically than did the Wilk. The Orzel was interned in Estonia in October, 1939, and placed under guard, with her charts and navigation instruments removed. But one night her crew under Captain Grudzinski kidnaped the guards and put to sea, passing the German mine fields and the Danish shallows as had the Wilk before it. The Orzel was later lost at sea a few days after entering Trondheim harbor during the Norwegian campaign. Altho the Orzel entered the harbor on the surface, the Germans were too puzzled to fire on her and she managed to send off a torpedo at the German ships before making good her escape.

The three other Polish submarines, which were damaged during the fighting in the Baltic, were interned in Swedish ports.

The rest of the Polish navy at the start of the war consisted of four destroyers (two of them new and displacing more than 2,000 tons), six mine sweepers (made in Poland, displacing 180 tons each, and mounting one 4.7-inch gun each), one mine-laying cruiser, one torpedo boat, two gunboats, and a flotilla of 14 motor torpedo boats. Three of the destroyers were ordered out of the Baltic just two days before war began, and these successfully joined the British navy as instructed. One of them was later sunk at Narvik, struck full in the middle by a bomb dropped from 10,000 feet which killed 60 officers and men outright.

The mine-laying Polish cruiser Gryf with five 4.7-inch guns, one destroyer, and all six mine sweepers were sunk on Sept. 13 in a fierce battle in the Baltic in which they in turn sent four German destroyers to the bottom.

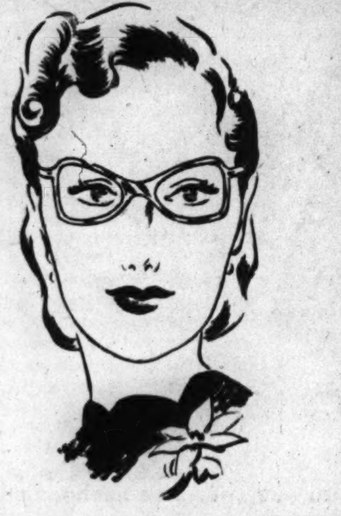
Except in submarines the Polish navy is considerably stronger now than it was at the start of the war, most of the replacements being French warships taken over after the collapse of France in June. Admiral Unrug, commanding the Polish navy, now takes his orders from the British admiralty, and his ships are mostly based in Scotland.

Altho Warsaw fell to the Germans on Sept. 26, the Polish coast held out until Oct. 4, 1939. Only two regiments of infantry under Colonel Dabek held Oksywie and Gdynia against overwhelming odds, and the colonel himself committed suicide when finally forced to capitulate. Beaten down to a single company of men, Hel peninsula surrendered only on Oct. 2 while suffering terrific fire.

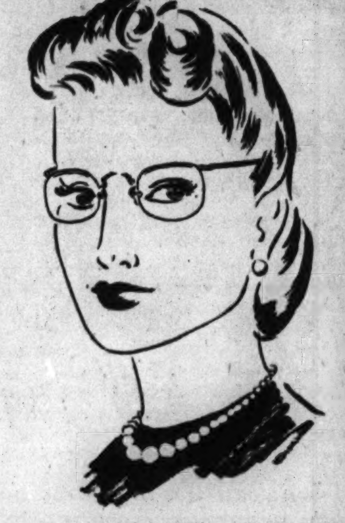
The Polish mercantile marine at the beginning of the war amounted to 130,000 tons, but only one small Polish merchant ship fell into German hands, thru the bad luck of happening to be near the German coast at the moment war was declared. The big liners like the Pilsudski and Batory, on a North Atlantic line, and Chorby and Sobieski, on a South Atlantic line, took active part in transport duty. The Pilsudski was sunk in October, 1939, but happened to be empty of troops at the time. Her master, Captain Stankiewicz, was given the highest honors for his bravery in helping save passengers. Refusing to leave the deck as his ship sank, he was knocked into the sea by a falling beam. Altho he was rescued, he died of his wounds.

The Chorby was sunk near Narvik in May, 1940, during a dive bomber attack with British troops aboard, but not without fighting back to the utmost of which she was capable. When France fell to the Germans a month later several Polish cargo boats in North Africa managed to escape internment by sailing without their navigation instruments—all of them eventually reaching England or neutral destinations.

THE GLASSES OF FASHION



An uptilt or irregular frame breaks the too symmetrical lines of a long, full face.



Inconspicuous glasses that come down over the cheekbones give the face length.

By ANTOINETTE DONNELLY

(Copyright: 1941: News Syndicate Co., Inc.)

WE ARE TOLD that the day is gone when eyeglasses were merely spectacles with which to see better. With every woman today cognizant of the value of selecting the right hat, the proper shoes, correct gloves, and jewelry, it's no exaggerated step to adopt glasses in harmony with an ensemble. A woman who wouldn't be caught dead in a sports hat at a dinner party sometimes will wear shell-rimmed affairs on such occasions, which you now are told by an eastern eyeglass designer and authority on the subject are not in the smart 1941 picture.

"After all," says this designer, "glasses are an extra item on the face. They are shiny, attention-getting objects, and whether you make them less or more noticeable, more or less becoming, depends on the kind you choose. Substitute for that ridiculous old bromide about girls with glasses being overlooked by the men the fact that girls who wear glasses have beaux and interesting jobs, marry nice men, have a whirl of social fun. The trick, therefore, is to choose eyeglass frames that are becoming, flattering, and in harmony with your particular face. You may even invite the services of a spectacle stylist who will analyze your facial characteristics and possible irregularities. Most of us have face irregularities, so that our personality, coloring, manner of dressing must be considered. The color of rims depends for effectiveness on one's own coloring of eyes, hair, and complexion.

The stylist says that the shape of the face should dominate the selection of shape of eyeglasses. Bone structure, facial planes, jaw line influence the choice. The face is one part of ourselves we cannot change basically, but there can be given a definite impression by optical illusion. And here are a few basic rules:

"First study your face in the mirror to determine if yours is a long or short face. Then see if yours is a long face with a pointed or blunt chin, or if you have a short face with a pointed or square chin. And whether you have a long or short face, see if the width is concentrated up around the eyes or at the jaw line.

"If your face is long and narrow, with a pointed chin, don't wear a high bridge. Choose instead frames that broaden the brow line.

"If your face is long and full, with a wide chin, choose a frame with an uptilt, or irregular shaped, to break the too symmetrical line.

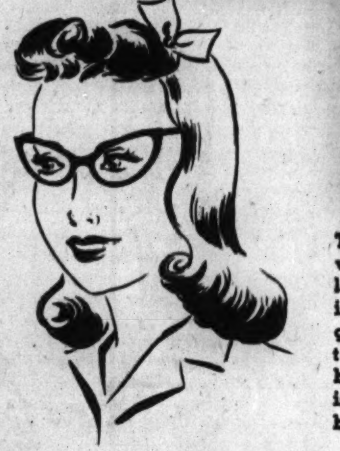
"If your face is short and round, don't wear round glasses. If you have a short, square face, don't repeat the lines with octagon-shaped frames. Something inconspicuous and rimless, or a semirimmed type that comes down over cheekbones, gives the face length."

About rim colorings and the individual:

The youngish face with graying hair, along with brown eyes, wears red brims well. With gray hair and blue eyes the pale blue brims are most becoming.

The reddish blondes with blue eyes, or true redheads, look best in glasses with a pale amber frame. The true blonde with hazel eyes looks more striking in rims that give a sharp contrast, such as black or red. She is perfect in black harlequin frames for sun glasses.

Matching the color of your eyeglass frames to your accessories is smart. Naturally you complement the color of your hair, eyes, and complexion, but if you can afford to have more than one pair of eyeglasses there's no better way to evidence the thought you give to your grooming than by matching frames to your accessories!



The true blonde with hazel eyes looks more striking in rims that give sharp contrast, such as black or red. She is perfect in black harlequin frames.

THE BATTLE OF BLENHEIM—By Robert Southey

It was a summer evening;
Old Kaspar's work was done,
And he before his cottage door
Was sitting in the sun;
And by him sported on the green
His little grandchild, Wilhelmine.

She saw her brother Peterkin
Roll something large and round,
That he beside the rivulet,
In playing there, had found:
She ran to ask what he had found,
That was so large and smooth and round.

Old Kaspar took it from the boy,
Who stood expectant by;
And then the old man shook his head,
And with a natural sigh,
"'Tis some poor fellow's skull," said he,
"Who fell in the great victory.

"I find them in my garden,
For there's many hereabout;
And often, when I go to plow,
The plowshare turns them out;
For many thousand men," said he,
"Were slain in that great victory."

"Now tell us what 'twas all about,"
Young Peterkin, he cries;
And little Wilhelmine looks up
With wonder-waiting eyes;
"Now tell us all about the war,
And what they fought each other for."

"It was the English," Kaspar cried,
"Who put the French to rout;
But what they fought each other for
I could not well make out;
But everybody said," quoth he,
"That 'twas a famous victory.

"My father lived at Blenheim then,
Yon little stream hard by;
They burned his dwelling to the ground,
And he was forced to fly;
So with his wife and child he fled,
Nor had he where to rest his head.

"With fire and sword the country round
Was wasted far and wide,
And many a childing mother then,
And newborn baby, died;
But things like that, you know, must be
At every famous victory.

"They say it was a shocking sight
After the field was won;
For many thousand bodies here
Lay rotting in the sun:
But things like that, you know, must be
After a famous victory.

"Great praise the duke of Marlborough won
And our good Prince Eugene."
"Why, 'twas a very wicked thing!"
Said little Wilhelmine.
"Nay, nay, my little girl," quoth he,
"It was a famous victory.

"And everybody praised the duke,
Who this great fight did win."
"But what good came of it at last?"
Quoth little Peterkin.
"Why, that I cannot tell," said he;
"But 'twas a famous victory."

FOUR STARS IN COLOR

● ROSEMARY LANE, the "middle Lane" of the famous sisters from Indianola, Ia., is the songstress of the family. She got her start in the films singing with Fred Waring's orchestra. Staying on in Hollywood after her first picture, "Varsity Show," she teamed up with Priscilla and Lola in making such pictures as "Four Daughters" and "Four Mothers," the latter their most recent. Rosemary was born April 4, 1916, is 5 feet 4 inches tall, weighs 108 pounds, and professes a weakness for orangeade, cornmeal pudding soufflé, and tennis in big doses.

● ROBERT CUMMINGS was born June 9, 1910, in Joplin, Mo., and early in his search for a stage rôle discovered that his midwestern origin was his greatest handicap. Going to England on borrowed money, he acquired an accent and columns of publicity and came back to be hired as a British juvenile in "The Roof," later appearing in Ziegfeld's Follies. For his first screen part, in "So Red the Rose," he shed his British accent for a Texas drawl. His latest picture is "Spring Parade," opposite Deanna Durbin. He lacks just half an inch of being six feet tall, and the scales show he weighs 165 pounds.

● NELSON EDDY, baritone of the screen and concert stage, is one of the greatest money makers in music, but his path to the top was not easy. Born in Providence, R. I., June 29, 1901, he left school at the age of 14. He worked in an iron foundry, as a newspaper man and an advertising copy writer. His earliest musical training he provided himself thru the study of phonograph records. He attributes his concert success to singing songs people like to hear. Happily married to Ann Franklin, he is known to millions as the film sweetheart of Jeanette MacDonald. Their latest picture is "Bittersweet."

● A sweater won LANA TURNER her first break in motion pictures and the title of Hollywood's "Sweater Girl." Spotted sipping a soda in a drug store, she was recommended for a film test and was offered a contract by Producer Mervyn LeRoy. During the filming of "Dancing Co-Ed" she met Artie Shaw, orchestra leader, and eloped with him after the picture was completed. Lana, however, obtained a divorce seven months later. Born in Wallace, Idaho, Feb. 8, 1920, she attended high school in Hollywood. Among her most recent film successes is "These Glamor Girls."

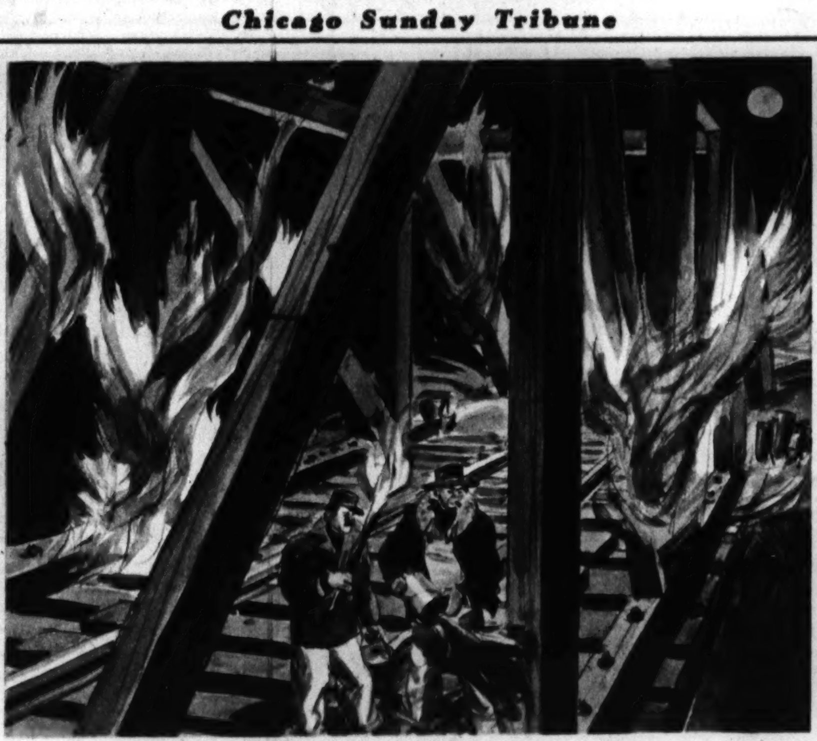
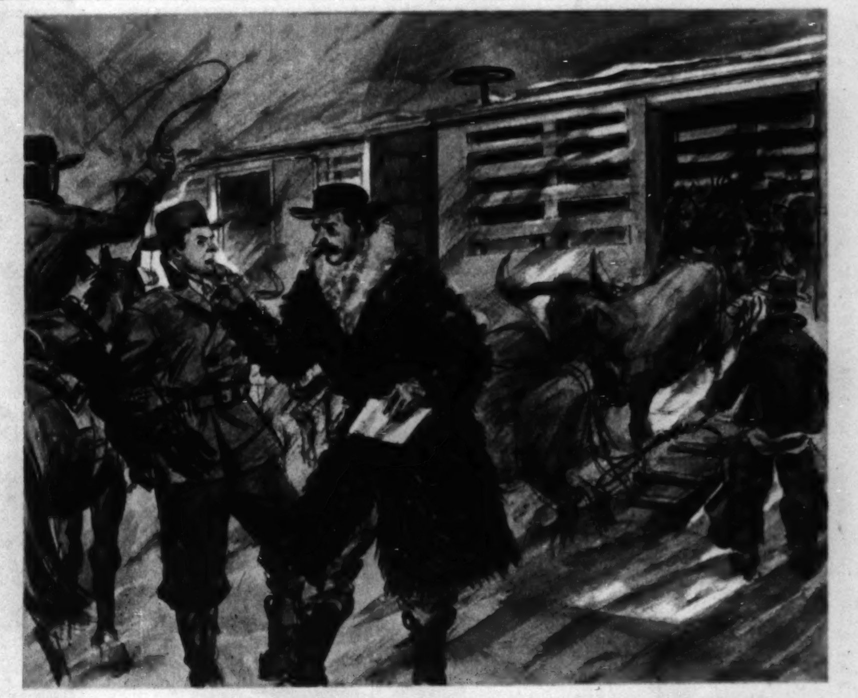
ILLUSTRATED BY AUSTIN JEWELL

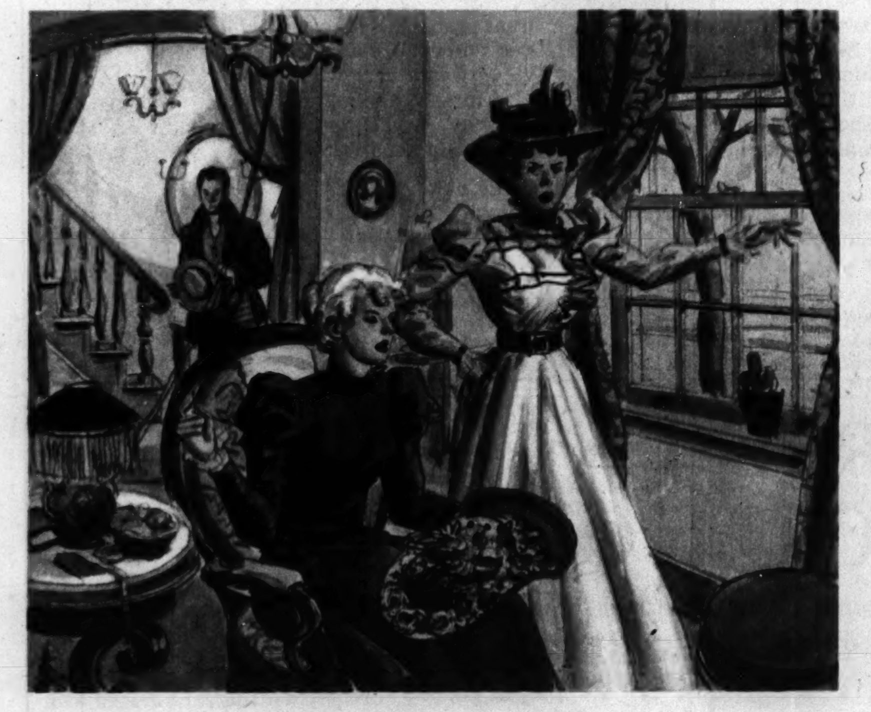
WHAT HAPPENED LAST WEEK A serious freight wreck hampers the efforts of George McCloud, new division boss, to expand a western rail empire. When he finds Murray Sinclair's wrecking crew looting the damaged cars McCloud fires them. Sinclair threatens to shoot him, but a mysterious stranger saves McCloud's life, then disappears after revealing only that he is Whispering Smith. Sinclair goes off swearing vengeance.



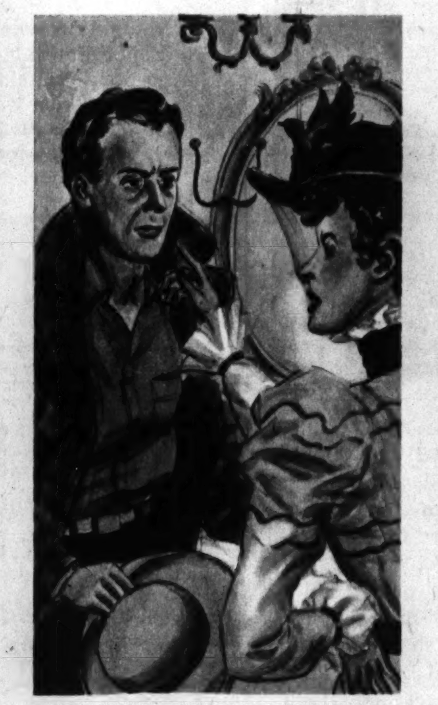
1 Revenge comes quickly. "Get that torch over here, Alec," snaps Sinclair as he speeds the work of firing Smokey Creek bridge. "That smart Mr. McCloud is going to be a very busy man by morning." And he is.



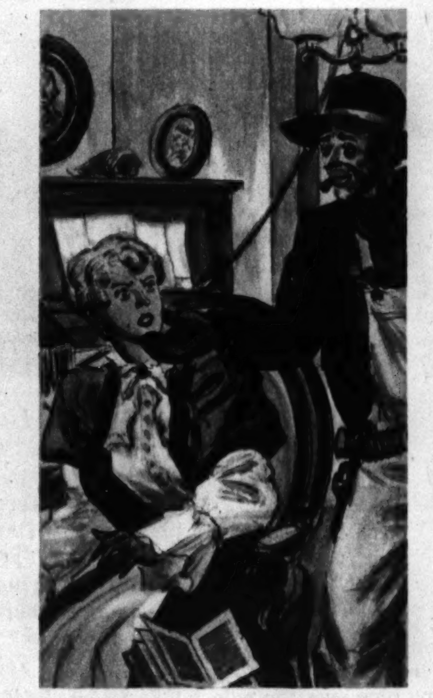
2 "I don't care if a bridge did burn out; your men mishandled my cattle and I want satisfaction." McCloud tries in vain to placate Lance Dunning, uncle and partner of Dicksie Dunning, a beautiful girl George had met at the earlier wreck.



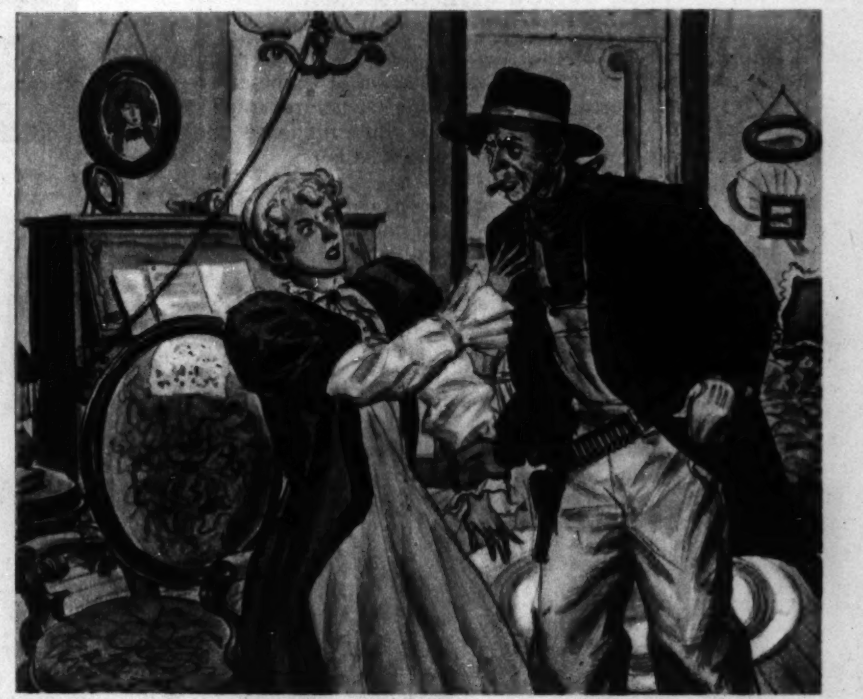
3 Discouraged, McCloud returns to his room in the home of Sinclair's estranged wife, Marion. He overhears Dicksie say: "That young McCloud must have a mean nature to fire Murray! What earthly reason had he? Murray was a fine foreman."



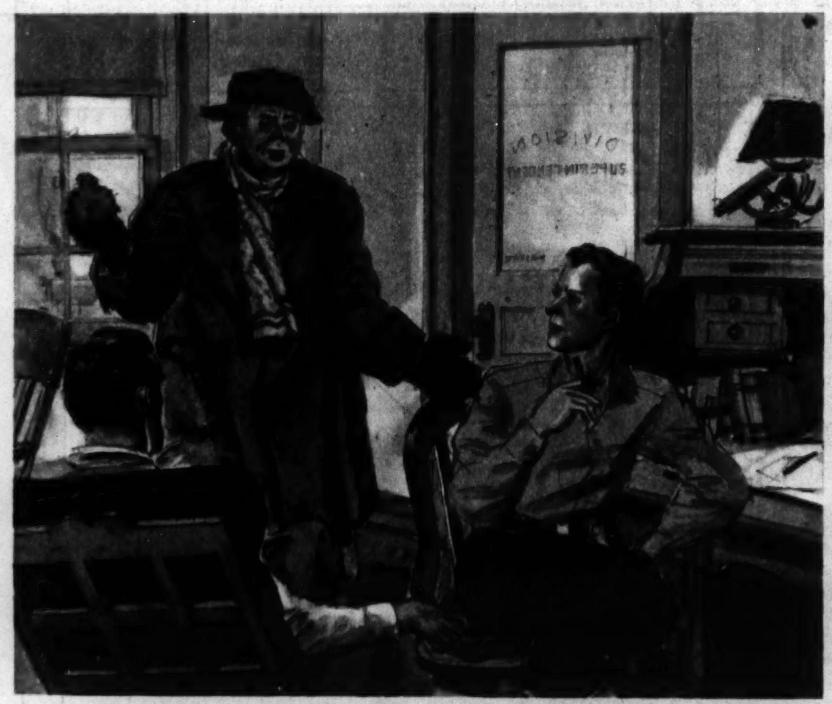
4 "O, an eavesdropper, too!" exclaims Dicksie angrily as she discovers McCloud. He follows her as she stomps out.



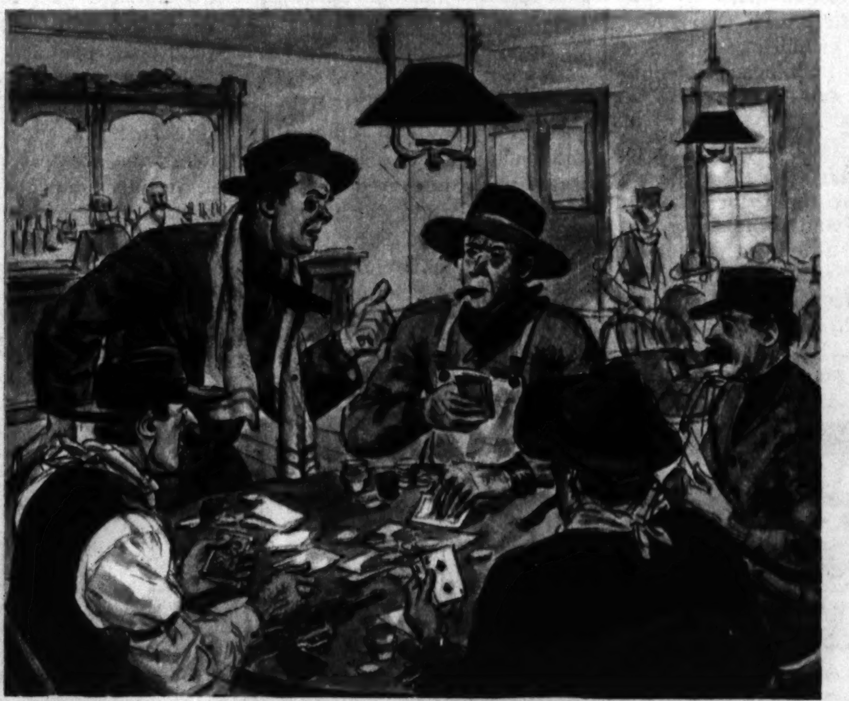
5 Very shortly Murray Sinclair, hat on head, saunters into his wife's parlor, chucks her insultingly under the chin.



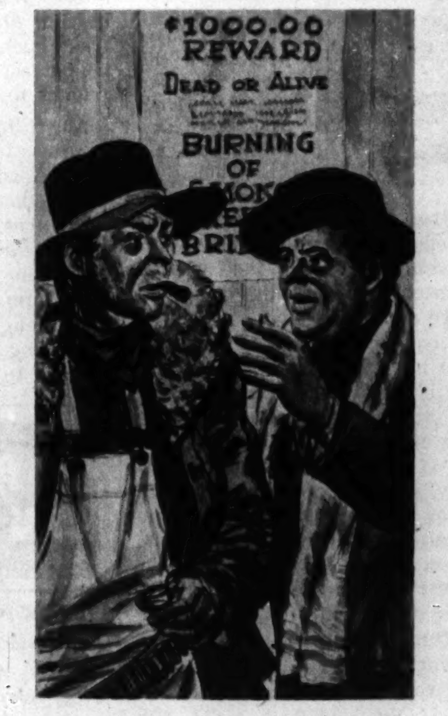
6 "I've decided to take you back," he says jauntily. "And I've decided you won't," Marion replies coldly. Angered, Sinclair threatens to kill her. "You're in this scheme against me, too. But I'll get even with all of you!" he shouts.



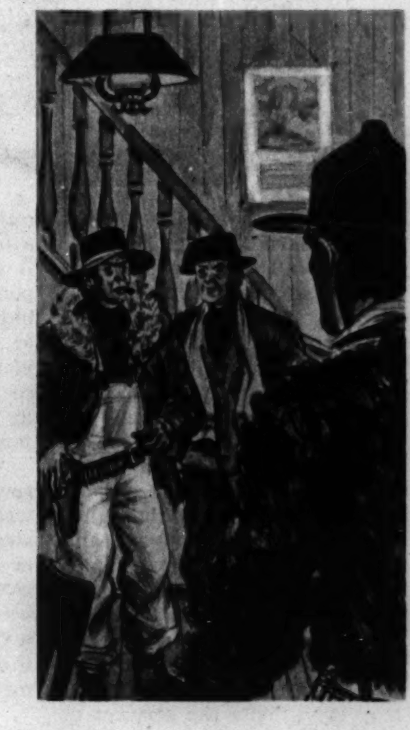
7 A few hours later Bill Dancing, McCloud's voluble, amiable assistant, bursts in upon him and a stranger, blurts out an idea. "Get Murray Sinclair to hunt down the bridge firebug, chief, it'll throw him off guard!" "O. K., Bill," says McCloud. "Go find him."



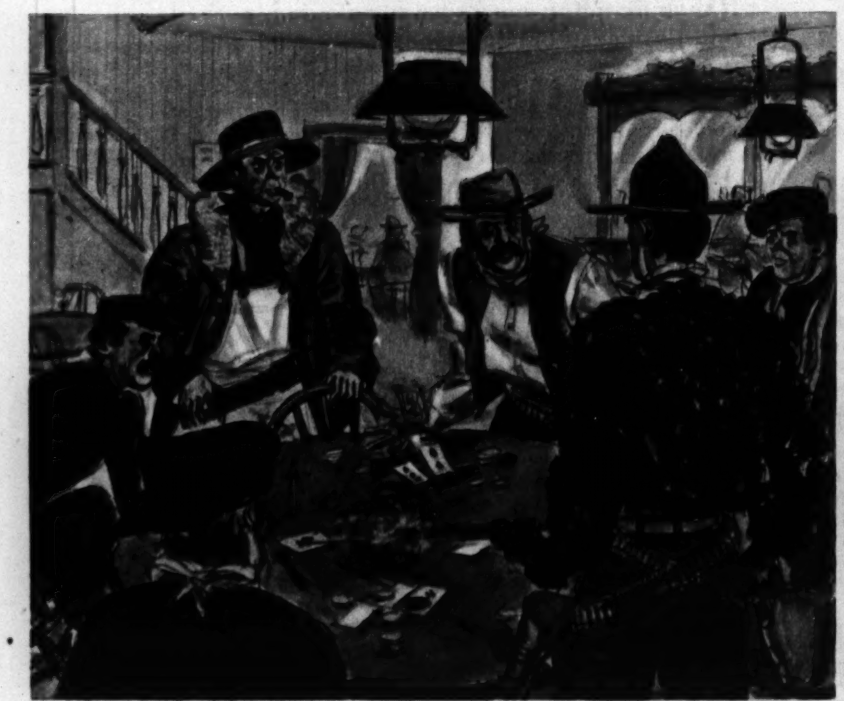
8 In the Three Horses saloon Dancing finds Sinclair playing poker. "Hst! Murray. . . . I gotta talk to you." They go to a quiet corner and Dancing delivers the message he had suggested to McCloud and the quiet, mysterious stranger.



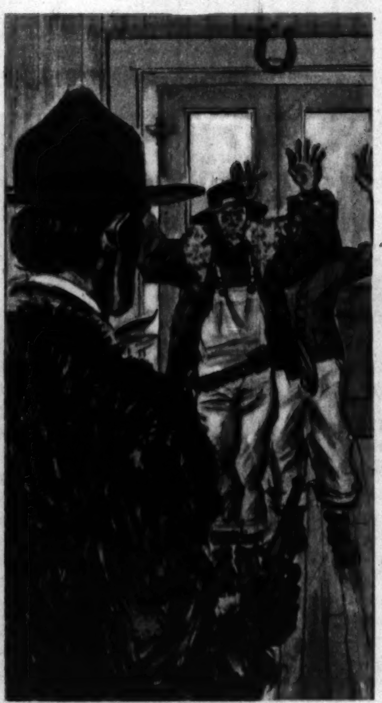
9 "What'd he say, Dancing? Did any one else hear him?" Bill tells him just a man he never saw before.



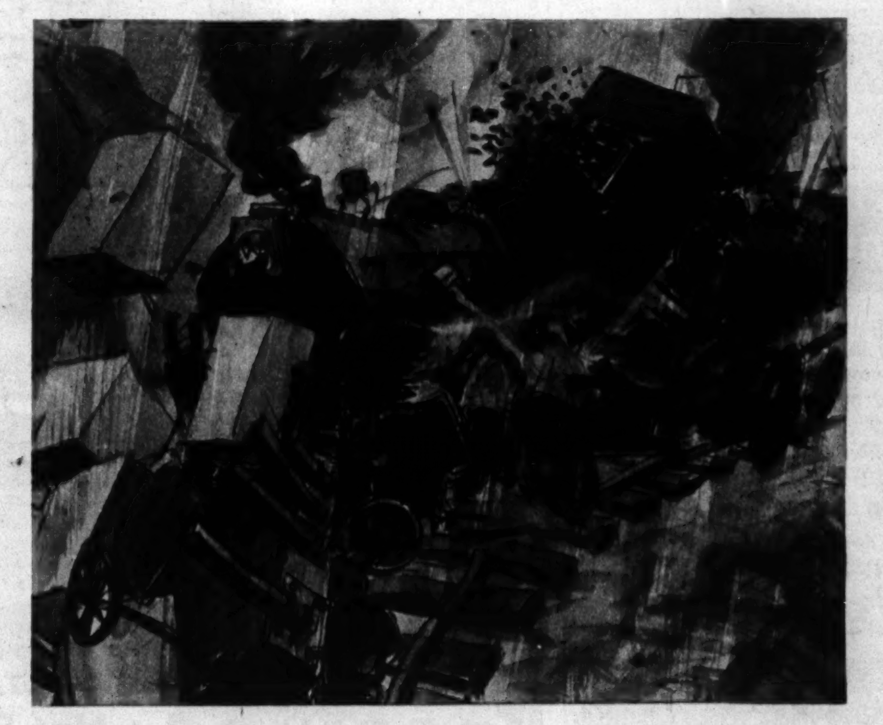
10 "Gosh, Murray, there's the stranger now . . ." Murray looks up, and almost chokes. "WHISPERING SMITH!"



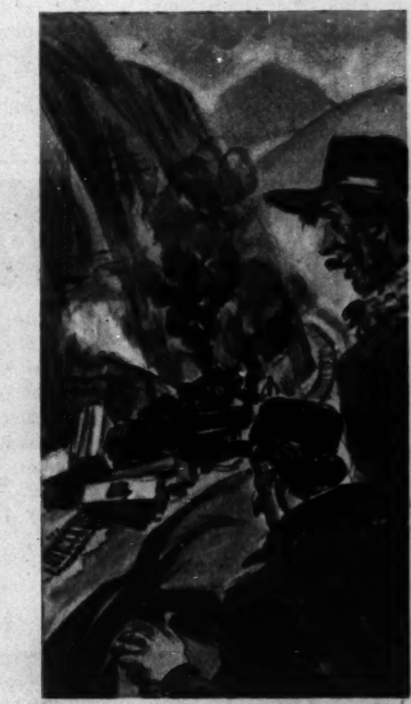
11 "Yes, Whispering Smith," replies the stranger. "You gentlemen know of me. I'm back to keep the law, and keep this railroad running and growing." Suddenly he fires at a card, plugging the ace of spades. "A man's a lot easier to hit than that."



12 Without further ado, Smith orders Sinclair and Alec to back out of the saloon, and keep going.



13 Within a week disaster strikes again. And again it is in George McCloud's division. A fast freight, operating under the new high-speed schedules, crashes near a siding. The engineer, fireman, and freight conductor are killed.



14 Up on the crags Sinclair chortles: "That's just a start, McCloud, and MISTER Whispering Smith!"

Dishwashing Twice as Fast

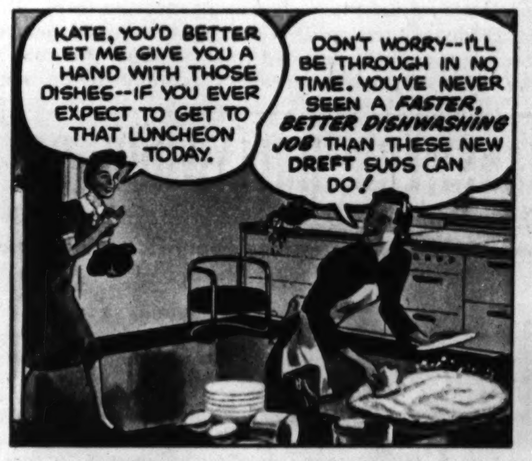
WAIT TILL BILL HEARS THE NEWS! HIS DISH-DRYING DAYS ARE OVER!

Amazing New Suds ...Unlike any soap... Never leaves grayish, hard-water film to be polished off dishes!

They dry so radiantly clean, wiping isn't necessary!



KATE, YOU'D BETTER LET ME GIVE YOU A HAND WITH THOSE DISHES--IF YOU EVER EXPECT TO GET TO THAT LUNCHEON TODAY.

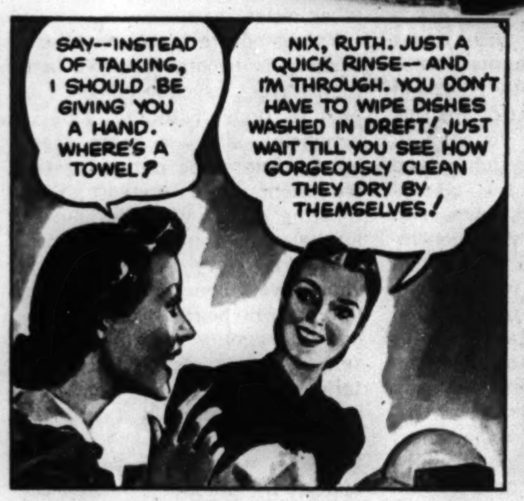
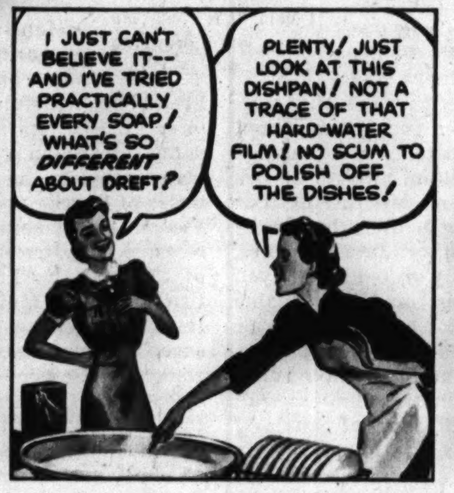
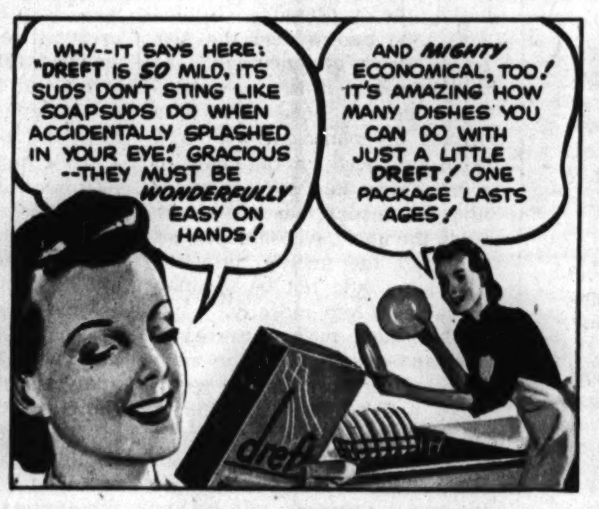
HEAVENS! I NEVER SAW SUCH HEAPS OF SUDS IN OUR HARD WATER!
YES--THEY CLAIM DREFT MAKES 5 TIMES MORE SUDS THAN ANY SOAP IN HARD WATER. WHY THE GREASE PRACTICALLY DISAPPEARS BY ITSELF!



SAY--INSTEAD OF TALKING, I SHOULD BE GIVING YOU A HAND. WHERE'S A TOWEL?
NIX, RUTH. JUST A QUICK RINSE--AND I'M THROUGH. YOU DON'T HAVE TO WIPE DISHES WASHED IN DREFT! JUST WAIT TILL YOU SEE HOW GORGEOUSLY CLEAN THEY DRY BY THEMSELVES!



I JUST CAN'T BELIEVE IT--AND I'VE TRIED PRACTICALLY EVERY SOAP! WHAT'S SO DIFFERENT ABOUT DREFT?
PLENTY! JUST LOOK AT THIS DISHPAN! NOT A TRACE OF THAT HARD-WATER FILM! NO SCUM TO POLISH OFF THE DISHES!



WHY--IT SAYS HERE: "DREFT IS SO MILD, ITS SUDS DON'T STING LIKE SOAPSUDS DO WHEN ACCIDENTALLY SPLASHED IN YOUR EYE!" GRACIOUS --THEY MUST BE WONDERFULLY EASY ON HANDS!
AND MIGHTY ECONOMICAL, TOO! IT'S AMAZING HOW MANY DISHES YOU CAN DO WITH JUST A LITTLE DREFT! ONE PACKAGE LASTS AGES!

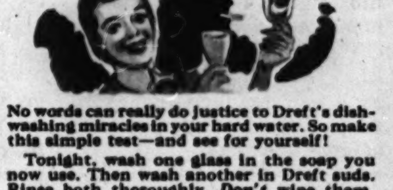
A LITTLE LATER
KATE--LOOK HOW THAT GLASS SPARKLES! IF I HADN'T BEEN HERE MYSELF--I'D NEVER BELIEVE YOU DIDN'T WIPE IT!
WELL--YOU KNOW IT WASN'T WIPED. SO THE MORAL IS--USE DREFT AND YOU'LL MAKE YOUR DISHWASHING WORK GO TWICE AS FAST.

SIMPLE LITTLE TEST

shows why DREFT can save you endless drudgery



No words can really do justice to Dreft's dishwashing miracles in your hard water. So make this simple test—and see for yourself!

Tonight, wash one glass in the soap you now use. Then wash another in Dreft suds. Rinse both thoroughly. Don't wipe them. When they're dry—look at both glasses.

Naturally, the one washed in soap will be coated with a dingy, gray film of hard-water scum. But not the one you washed in Dreft! It will be so radiantly clean, you'll say wiping it would be a waste of time! By all means, see this proof yourself. And from now on—end unnecessary dishwashing work by using Dreft—the suds that makes it twice as fast!

marvelous suds discovery

You'll Cheer for These Dishwashing Advantages No Soap Can Offer!

IT'S what you've waited for! A dishwashing suds that does things no soap in existence can do! In fact, Dreft is so completely different from any soap you ever used, it's been granted patents by the Government!

Do you want your dishwashing made worlds easier? Twice as fast? Wonderfully gentle on your hands? Then read how Dreft's amazing differences accomplish this:

(1) MORE SUDS IN HARDEST WATER! Actually 5 times more suds than any soap! Light, active suds that seem to dissolve and chase grease like magic!

(2) INSTANT SUDS—even in cool water! Dreft makes suds faster than any soap you ever used!

(3) SUDS THAT NEVER FORM "SCUM"—even in water hard as a rock! Not a trace of this clinging, grayish film! Glasses and dishes dry lustrously clean—without wiping! Dishwashing work is cut in half!

(4) COMPLETELY NON-ALKALINE SUDS! The first non-alkaline suds. Not a trace of any alkali—so often the cause of rough, red hands!

So you can see for yourself—Dreft is a dishwashing suds literally like no soap you ever used! And its results are so astonishing—Dreft is changing the dishwashing habits of the nation! No longer is there any reason to wipe and polish glasses! They dry by themselves with that jewel-like brilliance that makes you proud to see them on your table!

Tonight—say good riddance to needless dishwashing drudgery. Start cutting your work in half with patented, economical Dreft suds. Ask your dealer for that smart green package of Dreft. Procter & Gamble

Dreft is different!

So different, its advantages can't be duplicated by any soap!

Secrets in Your Dreams!

A. became morbid and sometimes physically ill. He avoided his friends, kept to his apartment as much as possible. He became a victim of agoraphobia, a fear of open spaces.

Finally Mr. A. visited a psychoanalyst. He coöperated readily, but glumly believed that his case was hopeless. One day, after several treatments, he described a dream of the previous night.

"I was in a field," he said. "A red bull charged after me. My feet were stuck in mire and there was nothing I could do to get free. I was terrified but helpless. I could see the angry, bloodshot eyes, almost feel the hot breath. I woke up screaming."

They discussed the dream at length, Mr. A. and the analyst.

"I remember an experience just like that," A. said dreamily. "I was a little boy, and a bull did chase me in the field. It was on my grandfather's place—I lived with him after my parents died. Instead of sympathizing with me in my experience, grandfather became terribly angry. He scolded me and threatened to whip me for going into the field. His eyes were angry and red, almost like those of the bull."

This association brought up other instances of the grandfather's unbridled anger at the child, incidents Mr. A. had completely forgotten until analysis restored them to his conscious memory. He had parted pleasantly from his grandfather when he went off to school as a young man, and he had believed since that he had nothing but affection for the old man. His conscious thought was that he must never seek help from the man who had been so good to him.

Actually, said the psychoanalyst, in his unconscious mind A. hated and feared his grandfather. He had repressed this emotion, arising from the grandfather's anger at him in childhood, but it had found expression in dozens of curious behavior incidents mystifying to him until he visited the analyst.

The dream was a revelation. Doubtless the bull was the grandfather. A.'s unconscious had expressed his true attitude toward this relative. His agoraphobia represented his unconscious desire to return to the security of his early childhood, when he was in the tender care of his parents, before his grandfather's anger had become a problem he couldn't solve.

The explanation of the source of his fear of his grandfather, together with the rational deduction that the grandfather never hated the boy, but scolded and frightened him because of love and a desire to protect him, permitted Mr. A. to revise his unconscious attitude. He went to the grandfather, was generously provided with the funds he required, and gradually completed the untangling of his repressions until his agoraphobia and other symptoms ended.

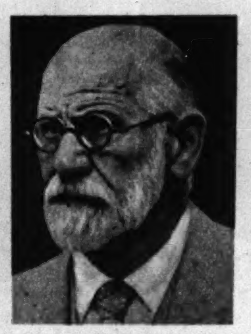
Foes of psychoanalysis charge that this infant among sciences is ridden with sexuality and that Freud, the distinguished father of the science, reduced the motives of all human behavior to sex. That was largely true in the beginning. Freud called the all-powerful sex urge the libido. But, developing his theory over the years, he found other urges—the ego or life urge, the id, and the life and death instincts. Shortly before his death he expressed the belief that even broader motivation might be discovered. Yet there is no escaping the fact that sex, representing the continuity of life itself, is of extreme importance in psychoanalytic method.

Mrs. B. was the pretty young wife of an important midwestern industrialist. In her marriage she had security, social position, and the complete love of her husband. She was happy until pregnancy upset her physically. Then she began to report to her husband that men were insulting her as she passed them on the street.



Sigmund Freud, "father" of psychoanalysis.

Her husband was first incensed against these men, but when the reports recurred he doubted they could be true. Yet Mrs. B. was insistent, and the "insults" grew more numerous. She either refused to go out or demanded that her husband accompany her. She ordered him to challenge strangers they passed, and when he saw no reason for it she retreated to her room and wept. The distressed husband believed his wife to be on the point of insanity. Their sex life, which might have continued satisfactorily during early pregnancy, ended completely.

Mrs. B. was taken to a psychoanalyst. She was nervous and irritable. But after several conferences she began to talk freely and grew calmer, altho her fantasies persisted.

One day Mrs. B. described a dream of several nights before which she had withheld from two previous interviews.

"I dreamed that I was at a glorious ball," she said. "Every one of importance was there, all dressed in beautiful or quaint or grotesque Mother Goose costumes. I was the most beautiful of all. Every one wanted to dance with me.

"Suddenly I noticed that every one at the party seemed just like dolls. I looked closely at their faces and saw that they really were dolls! Wooden dolls, rag dolls, bisque dolls; dolls of every color and race and nationality, and curious little dwarflike men who kept following me about.

"I was still very happy, even if they were dolls, but then, as I was in the very center of them, with all eyes upon me and the music playing furiously, to my horror I felt that all my clothes were dropping off. I stood there completely nude, and when I grasped for something to cover myself it vanished into the air.

"Just then a great brown bear came into the room, bearing a huge club. He charged down upon me and began beating me . . ."

Mrs. B. was sobbing, and her voice broke with emotion. She fell back into her chair exhausted.

When she had recovered the analyst began questioning her, and she replied with the first words that came to her mind. She began recalling events of her childhood, things which until then she had completely forgotten.

One day as a very young child, while playing with her dolls, she was seized with an irresistible desire to remove her clothing. She committed a sin common to many children, despite the refusal of society to admit it, and was caught by her father, who soundly spanked her.

That experience, the analyst explained, was driven into her unconscious because she did not want to remember. With it was repressed her childish sense that she was unutterably bad and different from other children. But, repressed tho it was, that unwholesome experience continued to exercise its influence. The analyst convinced Mrs. B. that the experience is not uncommon to children, that she had not been worse than many other people, that she was in fact completely wholesome and normal. She recovered, bore her child, and returned to a happy life with her husband.

The recollection of this single incident did not represent the correction of Mrs. B.'s difficulty, however. Rather it was that she had gained sufficient courage and confidence in herself during treatment to be able to recall her childhood experience and consider it with adult mental and emotional equipment.

Many scientists would not ascribe Mrs. B.'s dream to a childhood incident, but perhaps rather to cold feet, an upset stomach, or something equally mechanistic. The psychoanalyst, who generally must have medical training before beginning his work, would agree as to a physical stimulus being responsible for the dream, but he differently interprets the meaning.

"Dreams protect our sleep," one noted analyst explained to the writer. "If we become thirsty in sleep we may dream of being on a desert, finding an oasis, and obtaining a drink, which relieves us of the necessity of waking to actually get a drink.

"Dreams may also express our wishes which are repressed in our conscious life either by circumstances or moral considerations (in the case of adults) or by adults in the case of children. Our dreams, usually little restricted by reality, seek to compensate for desires inhibited by our conscious selves."

Freud had a favorite example which concerned his little nephew Herman. Herman was instructed by his parents to give his uncle a present on his birthday in May. Little Herman brought Freud a big basket of cherries and duly presented them.

The next day Herman told his mother of a dream the night before. "I dreamed I had the biggest basket of the reddest cherries in the whole world, and I ate them all up," the child said.

Herman, Freud explained, really didn't want to give him the cherries at all. But Herman knew it was wrong to feel thus, so he repressed his wishes. However, in his dream the wish had free exercise, so Herman not only ate all the cherries but they were the biggest and best in the whole world as well.

"Fear dreams usually come from a guilty conscience," the analyst said, "or from fear of actual problems which must be faced. Sometimes those problems are so grave we can't even express them in dreams, and we substitute the symbols of our nightmares."

Similarly, in our dreams we may substitute for an immoral or antisocial wish some symbol more acceptable to our consciences.

A young scientist was accepted by a professor as a collaborator in an important experiment. He was highly grateful for the honor, and for a time he did excellent work. Then he began to devote his time to trivial, routine tasks and made no real progress. He became moody and morose and sometimes wanted to destroy himself.

During psychoanalysis the young man reported a dream in which a wealthy uncle had died of pneumonia.

By free association, the technique of analysis developed by Freud, he recalled that the professor had telephoned the laboratory a few days before to say that he would not come down because of a cold. He also remembered that his uncle, tho rich, had persistently refused to help him during his difficult days in school. He discussed freely with the analyst his conviction that he was of little use in the laboratory and harmed the professor rather than helped him.

The psychoanalyst said flatly that the young man envied and hated the professor. In his dream he had wished the professor dead of pneumonia so that he might finish the experiment alone. Since even in a dream his conscience would rebel at a wish for the death of a man who had so befriended him, his unconscious had substituted the uncle, whose death, because of the uncle's unfeeling conduct, would not be so unacceptable to him morally.

The young man protested at this analysis, but finally, after further introspection, he recognized and admitted his unconscious hatred of the professor.

Because of this unconscious wish, which would have outraged his moral, conscious self, he had deliberately done bad work, without realizing why. His unconscious reaction, he discovered, was to offset his envy and hate of the professor by demonstrating symbolically, with inferior work, that he was not attempting to take away from the professor's glory by contributing too much to the success of the experiment.

"In effect," said the analyst, "by doing bad work you were unconsciously saying: 'I do not really envy and hate you. See, I can in no way equal you. I am no help to you at all. I ought to be discharged.'"

Once the unconscious reasons for the young man's behavior were disclosed, he could rationally eliminate the difficulty.

We are all Dr. Jekylls and Mr. Hydes, more or less, and our unconscious, say the psychoanalysts, is likely to be a reservoir of evil or antisocial behavior, because it is the experiences that run counter to moral or social behavior that we repress. Since sexual inhibition is sternest, a great many of the examples of abnormal adult behavior devolve to the sex experience or sensitivity of childhood.

"I felt that all my clothes were dropping off."

Mr. L. was a healthy, happy young man who married at the age of 26. He was devoted to his pretty wife, who responded fully to his love. But there was no consummation of the marriage, for the young man found himself impotent.

This condition brought on disturbances and aberrations that rendered Mr. L. unfit for normal business and social relationships, and he finally visited an analyst.

Mr. L. was completely unable to account for his difficulty. He had visited a physician (psychoanalysis is rarely attempted until thoro examination eliminates all possibility of physical causes of trouble) and was found to be in excellent health. He confided to the analyst that he had been involved in a few affairs before his marriage, and following his honeymoon he had in desperation gone to a disreputable house to bolster his ego by proving himself fully normal. Yet he remained impotent before his wife, whom he dearly loved and who reciprocated his affection.

By free association L. began recalling events of his childhood, and he remembered an unusually strong attachment for his mother, because of circumstances in his family. He discovered that he had married his wife because she was more like his mother than any other woman he had ever met.

Actually, the analyst found, in his unconscious L. had completely substituted his wife for his mother. This is somewhat true in all marriages. Freud called the tendency the Œdipus complex, after Œdipus, the mythical character who slew his father and married his mother. But in L.'s unconscious the substitution had gone to unnatural length. To his unconscious, consummation of the marriage would have been morally abhorrent.

An understanding of his unconscious attitude permitted L. to correct it. He is now living happily with his wife, his mental health restored.

Man's unconscious was an undiscovered mine until Sigmund Freud began postulating his theories in 1893. As a young man doing research in physiology and neuropathology in the laboratories of Brücke and Meynert in Vienna, Freud became much interested in hysteria. He learned of Charcot's work with hypnotism and joined him in 1885, then returned to Vienna to work with Joseph Breuer, an eminent neurologist. Breuer had already discovered that hysterical patients could recall experiences of which they had no memory in a normal state, and he and Freud applied hypnotic treatment. They concluded, following experiment, that a great emotional disturbance, if sufficiently painful to the individual, may be excluded from consciousness and cannot be remembered in the normal waking state.

But, they found, the experience continues to exist within the individual, even if he does not know it, and appears to cause abnormal behavior otherwise inexplicable.

The conclusions, roughly stated here, led Freud into the research which occupied the rest of his life and established a new science—the science of the unconscious. Critics suggest that Plato, Aristotle, Lucretius, and others of the ancient world discussed phenomena of the unconscious and that Freud therefore offered nothing new. However, the fact that Democritus advanced an electronic theory in similar times does not detract from the glory of modern scientists. Freud applied scientific method to support and apply his theory, and he continues to gain followers and force.

Psychoanalysis is now largely practiced by medical men or psychiatrists who have taken special training in the field. Standards are regulated by the International Psychoanalytical association, and training as well as treatment is provided by such organizations as the Institute for Psychoanalysis in Chicago and similar institutes in other cities.

Young doctors of medicine wishing to become analysts are themselves psychoanalyzed as part of their training. This is beneficial, since it helps them to appreciate the nature of the treatment and to guard against treating others while influenced by their own abnormal attitudes. A favorite story among the psychoanalysts concerns the young analyst who began practice without undergoing treatment himself. He was visited by a hysterical woman who wept and wrung her hands in a state of near collapse.

"Now, what seem to be the symptoms, madam?" asked the young doctor soothingly.

"I keep picking feathers out of my chest," replied the lady excitedly, demonstrating with a plucking motion of her hands.

The young doctor backed hastily away. "Don't get them on me, madam!" cried he.

NEXT WEEK—The psychoanalytical method, and the case of Mrs. R., whose strange dreams solved her problem.

Match Your Handwriting with the Movie Stars'

By SHIRLEY SPENCER

(Copyright: 1941: By The Chicago Tribune.)

THERE ARE other classifications of handwriting besides the introvert and extrovert types which I have analyzed for you, and today I have a fine example of the mental type. You aren't surprised that the example of the mental type is Ronald Colman, are you? In spite of the fact that Mr. Colman is sometimes cast as the romantic and athletic hero, he is at his best when he outwits his enemies rather than when overcoming them with brute force. Mr. Colman is definitely the intellectual type, and his handwriting bears this out.

Look at your own handwriting and see if the letters are small, fine, and simplified, as are Mr. Colman's. Are your upper and lower loops foreshortened? The loops in this mental script have either entirely disappeared or are short and thin. In this sample you can see that a straight line has taken the place of most of the loops. Note the "f"—both the upper and lower loops have been eliminated. This elimination of superfluous strokes is the key to the mental development of a writer.

The more simplified the letter formations become, and the more graceful and beautiful in line and form, the higher the degree of culture and mental development shown. The rhythm and lovely strokes in this writing express the charm, graciousness, and subtle mentality for which this romantic hero is popular. There is modesty in the capitals. The underscore is the only sign of his assurance and confidence, and even that is a straight line with a graceful curve which takes away from the dignity and severity of the firm line.

But the most charming feature of Mr. Colman's script is the imagination revealed in the flying "t" bars. Here is real whimsical humor and a vivid imagination which colors all his thinking. He is enthusiastic about mental adventure. His mind is nimble and eager, curious, inquiring, whimsical, and gloriously daring.

Are motion pictures still in their infancy?

JANE DRUMMOND ANSWERS HOLLYWOOD QUESTIONS

Jane Drummond is a former Chicago model who is now in the movies. Several weeks ago she told her own story. Now she answers questions about Hollywood and the movies.

Can a girl successfully keep up a career and a home?—A. K.

Surely. But it's not a normal way of living, and it requires infinite understanding on the part of both husband and wife. If a man is proud of his wife's career he would gladly do his part in adjusting their lives to fit it. And a woman, successful as she might be, would always remember that her business life must not dominate their home, and especially must it not dominate her husband's life. The right sort of persons can manage it beautifully, altho it requires a lot of give and take.

Is your ambition now all for a career, or do you think that if you fell in love you would be content to marry and become just a home girl? —W. H.

So far I haven't had to face that problem, and I suppose no one can say for sure what she'd do if she fell in love. But I honestly believe that however much in love I was, I'd never be happy if I gave up my career before I had proved to myself that I could go no farther in it. I'd always wonder, otherwise, if maybe I had denied myself some very great and valuable experience. That wouldn't make for happiness.

What do you do between scenes on the set?—A. N.

O, you can rest if you want to, but it's a grand time to learn things. I usually sit as near the director as possible and listen to his instructions and watch how other actors follow them. Of course, sometimes your makeup needs attention, or your hair or costume. You can do most anything, just so you're deathly still when you hear "Roll 'em, it's a take."

How much does it cost for a girl to live modestly in Hollywood?—E. A. B.

In Hollywood or Beverly Hills, two of the most convenient spots, you can get an apartment and food for about $100 a month. Incidentals will add about 25 per cent to that minimum. Apartments usually run about $40 a month and up, furnished. But you must have pleasant surroundings and good food in order to do your best work. Don't come to Hollywood with the idea of starving for your "art." You'll have enough worries without that.

Would you rather be a great emotional actress or a fine comedienne? —J. P. M.

It seems to me either would be equally satisfying—for both require real talent and experience. I believe, tho, that I prefer the emotional type, because I've had my greatest success so far in that field.

Hale but Not Too Hearty

Meals Must Have Good Balance

By MARY MEADE

MAKE THE main course or the dessert of a dinner hearty, but not both of them. After a big meal it's best to finish with something not too calorific—ice cream, a fluffy, cool-on-the-tongue pudding, or a fruit whip. After a light luncheon or dinner course, then the mince pie or steamed fig pudding with honey hard sauce.

Short ribs and sauerkraut or barbecued short ribs, with potatoes, other vegetable, and salad, need a fairly light dessert such as chilled fresh fruit "frosted" with a ball of orange ice. Crown roast of pork with mashed potatoes and cinnamon apples is a dinner which might end beautifully with a peppermint tapioca cream.

To cook short ribs of beef, brown them on all sides in a little hot fat, season with salt and pepper, add a little water, cover the pan, and simmer until tender, about two hours. Serve on a bed of heated sauerkraut. Or cook the ribs this way, in a barbecue sauce:

BARBECUED SHORT RIBS OF BEEF
(Serves six)

3 pounds beef short ribs
1 medium onion
2 tablespoons shortening
2 tablespoons vinegar
2 tablespoons brown sugar
¼ cup lemon juice
1 small bottle catsup
3 tablespoons Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ cup water
½ cup chopped celery
Salt, pepper

Brown onion in shortening. Add remaining ingredients and simmer until slightly thickened, about 30 minutes. Pour sauce over short ribs, which have been browned in hot fat, cover, and bake in a 325-degree oven about two hours.

Roast a crown cut of pork loin at 325 degrees until the meat thermometer registers 185 degrees, well done. Don't cover the pan or add any water during cooking. Serve it as pictured, filled with fluffy mashed potatoes, and cover the rib ends with paper frills if you like.

Here's a new trick with a crown roast of pork. The dinner's mashed potatoes are piled in the middle, and rib ends are frilled.

The fig pudding is an example of a hearty dessert to be served as the end of a light meal.

STEAMED FIG PUDDING
(Serves six to eight)

2 cups chopped dried figs
1½ cups milk
1 cup butter
1 cup sugar
3 eggs
1¼ cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups soft bread crumbs
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
2 tablespoons grated orange rind

Cook figs in milk in top of a double boiler over boiling water for 15 minutes. Cool. Cream butter and sugar. Beat in eggs thoroly. Add fig mixture. Mix and sift dry ingredients. Add crumbs and rind. Stir into other mixture. Pour into a well greased pudding mold and steam for two hours on a rack in a closely covered steamer. Serve hot or cold with honey hard sauce.

HONEY HARD SAUCE

Cream ⅓ cup butter and work in 1 cup sifted confectioners' sugar, 2 tablespoons honey, and 1 teaspoon lemon juice. Chill.

Steamed fig pudding is a perfect finish for a light meal.

1½ cups milk
1½ tbsp. butter
3 tbsp. flour
1 tsp. salt
1 tin College Inn Chicken a la King
6 sliced buttered toast
6 eggs, poached

Wash, peel and slice mushrooms. Scald milk, add mushrooms and simmer gently 5 minutes. Melt butter, blend in flour and salt. Add hot milk and mushrooms, stirring constantly until smooth and thickened. Add Chicken a la King and cook until thoroughly heated. Serve hot Chicken mixture on buttered toast, topping each serving with a poached egg. Serves 6. Costs about 12c a serving.

There are so many delightful ways to fix appetizing chicken dishes economically with College Inn Chicken a la King. It's chockful of big pieces of chicken meat . . . the kind everybody loves. So get Chicken a la King and serve this tempting dish tonight.

FLAKIER PASTRY!
"MY CRISCO PIE TURNED OUT FINE! I SERVED IT AT SUNDAY DINNER TO GUESTS. EVERYONE SAID HOW FLAKY AND TENDER IT WAS."
Mrs. F. L. Brown, Lawrence, Kansas

TENDER PASTRY—TASTES BETTER!
"THE PASTRY I TESTED WITH 'SURE-MIX' CRISCO TASTED EXTRA DELICIOUS—AND IT WAS SO TENDER! YES—THAT CRISCO PIE WON ALL MY FAMILY'S VOTES."
Mrs. Hugh Burnett, Cleveland, Ohio

... "SURE-MIX" CRISCO GAVE US
FLAKIER PASTRY!

Tender, better-tasting pie crust so easy now with New Crisco—It's different . . .

What stacks up with the family like cherry pie—when the under crust's tender and the top crust's flaky—and everybody beams and says: "Gosh, how good your pie crust tastes!"

Feel this rosy glow of success . . . make your very next pie with "Sure-Mix" Crisco. It's different from other shortenings as hundreds of women from Coast to Coast testified recently.

Crisco pies win by 4 to 1

These women were using other shortenings (every type you can think of) when independent investigators called and asked them to try New Crisco and compare. Here's how the test came out . . . when women told us which pies they liked best, the vote was 4 to 1 for Crisco over all other shortenings combined! In describing the difference in their pies, they said: "Crisco pies were tender and flakier!"—"They tasted better!"

And just as enthusiastically women chose Crisco for cakes and frying, too . . . said they got lighter, smoother-textured, more delicious cakes and crisp, better-tasting fried foods.

A patented discovery makes New Crisco act differently from any home shortening we know of. Try Crisco today and see what a difference it can make in all your cooking.

STAR AND STRIPES CHERRY PIE

3 cups pitted canned red cherries
⅔ cup red cherry juice
⅓ cup sugar
2 tablespoons quick-cooking tapioca
1 teaspoon lemon juice, or
¼ teaspoon almond extract

Put cherries, juice, sugar, and tapioca together in a saucepan. Bring slowly to a boil. Remove from stove. Add lemon juice or almond extract. Let cool while preparing—

PASTRY: 2 cups flour
1 teaspoon salt
⅔ cup Crisco
3 to 4 tablespoons water

Sift flour and salt together. Cut in Crisco. When texture looks mealy, stir in water, using as little as possible. Roll out lower crust and line pie plate; let hang over edge about ½ inch. Fill with cherry mixture. Use remaining pastry for top crust, either plain or in flag design. For flag design: Cut star out of rectangle of pastry; place pastry in center of pie. Arrange narrow parallel stripes of pastry across pie; moisten underside of rectangle where it overlaps strips. Fold lower crust pastry over ends of strips and flute edge. Bake in a quick oven (425° F.) 20 to 25 minutes. All Measurements Level

CRISCO CAKES WIN 4 TO 1, TOO!

They're LIGHTER! "Sure-Mix" Crisco cakes are consistently up to 15% higher and lighter (depending on type of cake) than cakes made of any other home shortening we know of!

TRY CRISCO-FRIED FOODS. THEY'RE DIGESTIBLE!

Doctors Say: In answer to a question sent to doctors by a leading medical publication, 2 out of 3 doctors who replied called specific attention to Crisco's digestibility.

Substitutes for Gasoline to Meet War's Needs

WAR'S INCREASING demands upon the world's supply of gasoline are bringing rapidly to the fore various substitutes for this vital fluid as propellants of motor vehicles.

Navies, air fleets, motorized army equipment, and war industries draw heavily upon gasoline and oil. In countries where these petroleum products are limited war needs naturally are met first. Commercial and pleasure vehicles are placed under a fuel rationing system so restricted in many cases that vehicle users are forced to turn to substitute fuels.

Altho not as efficient as gasoline, substitute fuels perform fairly well under favorable conditions. So successful has been the experience of car users in Finland with charcoal burning devices which produce a gas substitute for gasoline that on Feb. 15 all gasoline rations were discontinued there except in the cases of physicians, ambulance owners, fire chiefs, and diplomats. The gas generated in charcoal burning machines attached to the vehicles themselves is exploded in the cylinders of the car's motor just as is gasoline.

Materials other than charcoal, such as wooden blocks, sawdust, and the like, may be used in generating this gas to drive motors.

Thruout Europe, both in countries involved in war and in those still untouched, gasoline substitutes are constantly finding wider use. This is true also in countries outside Europe where the main supplies of gasoline must be shipped in from foreign lands. A scarcity of gasoline in Japan, for example, has resulted in gasoline-propelled automobiles being converted into electric battery driven cars. In Warsaw, the shattered capital of Poland, human power even has been resorted to in order to keep wheels turning. The foot-pedaled tricycle in the Polish city now is utilized as a taxicab.

The gas derived from the burning of wood, charcoal, or similar materials consists of a mixture of carbon monoxide, hydrogen, methane, nitrogen, and carbon dioxide. Only the first three are combustible, and the ratio of the combustible to the noncombustible in the gas may vary considerably, depending upon the way the original fuel is burned. The gas, in addition to the five aforementioned ingredients, contains water, acids, dust, and minute particles of the original fuel, that must be removed before the gas is admitted to the motor.

Altho the method of producing this motor fuel gas may vary slightly with the type of generator employed, the principle is the same in all cases. Some of the generators are attached to the vehicles and thus are an actual part of them, while others are attached on behind in the form of trailers. No matter what the type, these generators represent considerable weight to be moved. Their costs vary with type, from the simplest to the most complicated.

The original fuel—charcoal, wood, etc.—is burned in a retort at about 2,600 degrees Fahrenheit. With air being admitted sparingly to the fire, combustion is incomplete and therefore the gas is generated in sufficient quantities to be put to use as a motor fuel. Complete combustion would destroy much of the gas and leave not enough to operate the motor.

The gas leaves the retort at a temperature of about 1,500 degrees Fahrenheit, entering a separator which removes part of the dust contained in it. The gas continues on thru a system of cooling coils in which water and tar acids are condensed and drawn off. From the coils the gas passes thru a final dust remover and then thru a system of filters, which leaves it in proper condition to enter the motor.

Somewhere in this generating system is a blower that corresponds to a fuel pump in a gasoline-driven car. The blower forces the gas, now at a temperature of about 100 degrees Fahrenheit, into the air mixing apparatus, where the proper mixture for ignition within the cylinder is obtained. In some instances the air mixing apparatus is nothing more than the car's carburetor, readjusted to handle the gas. In other instances the carburetor is removed and a special apparatus installed to do the work. Whichever is used, the mixture as it is admitted to the cylinders consists of about 95 per cent air and 5 per cent gas.

The mixture of gas and air explodes in the cylinder in the same manner as does a mixture of gasoline vapor and air. The operation of a motor car using wood or charcoal gas, once the fuel has reached the mixing apparatus or carburetor, is identical with the operation of a gasoline-propelled car. In most cases, in fact, the cars now operating on this gas, which is commonly termed producer gas, were constructed originally to operate on gasoline. Very little actually must be done to a gasoline engine to convert it to the use of wood or charcoal gas. Since, however, this gas is inferior to gasoline in power, speed, and flexibility of motor performance, the shortcomings may be overcome to some extent if the motor cylinder heads are reconstructed to provide greater compression.

The original object in turning from gasoline to wood or charcoal gas as a motor fuel was one concerned with economy. In countries where gasoline was expensive and heavily taxed it was found cheaper to run cars on gas of this type, 25 pounds of wood or 12 pounds of charcoal being equivalent to a gallon of gasoline, and less costly. Now, with a number of countries actually cut off from adequate gasoline supplies, it is not only a matter of economy but one of necessity to use substitutes for gasoline wherever possible, such as producer gas, electric batteries, or even, as in Poland, human power as developed thru foot-pedaled tricycles.

The United States of America, which produces more gasoline than all the rest of the world combined, apparently never will be forced to the use of wood or charcoal gas as an actual measure of necessity.

Altho the Lhasa terrier from Tibet has been bred for more than 800 years, it is a rare breed in this country. It has a heavy coat to protect it from the rigors of the Tibetan climate. These specimens are named Marco Polo (left), which is owned by Mrs. E. T. Hadley of Highland Park Ill., and Sikkim Johnny of Kathay, owned by Mrs. Robert O. Farrell, also of Highland Park. WHEN YOU open up the mail bag that brings letters from dog owners in many states you can be sure that some interesting dog problems are going to be found in the communications. The mail bag this week includes letters as follows:

We have a toy terrier, and he is learning to play the piano. Do you think it will hurt him? He is just 2½ years old.—R. M. B., St. Paul, Minn.

We doubt if a musical education will hurt your terrier, but his work on the keys may not improve the piano.

Will you please tell me if you have a record of a vest pocket or Welsh shepherd (breed)? I would like a picture of one if possible.—MRS. J. H. P., Mattawan, Mich.

We have never seen or heard of a Welsh shepherd. In fact, we're wondering what breed you are referring to. There is a Welsh terrier which is rather small but hardly vest pocket in size. And there is a Welsh herding dog known as the corgi. But that hardly can be called vest pocket in size. It weighs about 18 to 25 pounds.

Will you tell me how to break dogs from barking and chasing cars? My two dogs have just acquired this habit.—MRS. R. M., Chicago.

Space limitations won't permit our giving you complete training instructions on these problems. But we are forwarding you a mimeographed leaflet on the barking problem, with tips on how to proceed. This should be of help to you. Both excessive barking and chasing cars are training problems which develop because of lack of obedience. I suggest you obtain a good book on dog training and read it carefully, or, better yet, join a training class and learn how to train your pet. Such training will eliminate most bad habits that dogs acquire due to the fact that the owner didn't give his pet early lessons in obedience.

Will you mail me your "Dog Book," copyrighted in 1936, and also other descriptive literature on dogs if you have some? We have bought an Irish terrier puppy six months old and would like information on dog care.—MIRIAM L., Toledo, O.

"The Dog Book" published in 1936 is out of print. However, a new handbook entitled "Feeding the Dog" was published recently. It gives specific information on how to feed the Irish terrier and more than 30 other breeds commonly kept in American homes. The book also gives many tips on the general care of puppies (all breeds), including discussion of such subjects as distemper, grooming, worms, etc. "Feeding the Dog" is sold by the Chicago Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street, for 30 cents by mail.

I have just purchased a nine-month-old boxer puppy. I would like some advice on training a dog of this type, especially help on how to train a dog to guard. I would like to have this dog learn to guard a car.—L. S. H., Fort Atkinson, Wis.

Complete training for a dog to do guard work involves much more work and routine than most dog owners realize. The foundation of such work is a thoro course in obedience training. We are sending you some suggestions on training books which you should study before you start on your dog. If you have an opportunity to consult a professional dog trainer, by all means do so. He can give you some valuable advice, especially on the importance of obedience training for your young dog.

Is there any general classification under which you could put Scotties, Sealyhams, Cairns, and Skye terriers? I seem to recall that Skyes hunted animals that burrowed, as did the other breeds.—MISS MERLE L., Evanston, Ill.

All of the breeds you have mentioned are in what the American Kennel club calls "group IV., terriers." The group includes those active, quick, and in some cases aggressive breeds which had a definite place in the outdoors, for many of them were used for killing vermin. For example, the Manchester terrier used to be famous for its work as a ratter. The Sealyham originally was bred for badger hunting.

I belong to a Girl Scout troop. In passing one of my tests I must know the proper care and feeding of a pet. One of the questions I would like you to answer is, "Can one train a dog without whipping it?" Thank you for your courtesy.—T. P., Minneapolis, Minn.

It is not necessary to whip a dog when you train it. Patience, praise, and firmness without punishment when the occasion demands it make a successful combination in teaching a dog good manners and obedience.

Will you advise me how long a period should elapse before it's safe to bring a puppy into a home where there has been a case of distemper? Our dog died Nov. 16 last year. We have cleaned, scrubbed, and disinfected everything. Is it safe now to get another dog?—MRS. C. J. R., McHenry, Ill.

We doubt if there is any danger of your new dog contracting distemper from the previous infection. The distemper virus can't live very long in a clean, well aired, modern home.

s—Short-Lived Weapons

The new Blackburn Botha in flight.

They Become Obsolete Quickly

By WAYNE THOMIS

THE CURRENT battle of Europe is proving again that the airplane is the most short-lived of war weapons. Airplanes become obsolescent—in the sense that they are inferior—almost as quickly as they are produced. The ships that were the pride of England, Germany, and France at the beginning of this conflict are being relegated to out-of-the-way corners where they are not likely to meet the latest and best types of opponents. Or they are directly retired to training capacities.

Even those which remain as standard machines because of superlative initial performance are greatly modified and changed to meet the ever-increasing pace of war. In some engine power has been greatly increased; in others new armament has been added to bolster up a weak spot that enemy fighters have ferreted out and are using to advantage in aerial combat. In still others new propellers, new wings, and new engines are added to develop almost a new airplane from a type that has fallen behind.

Look, for instance, at the Spitfire, Britain's No. 1 pursuit airplane at the outbreak of war in September, 1939. The Mark II. Spitfire of that day had a Rolls-Royce motor that developed 1,030 horsepower for takeoff and repeated that maximum at 16,000 feet. With a constant-speed propeller (an American invention manufactured under license in Britain) the airplane could do 367 miles an hour at that height. That same airplane carried eight Browning .303-caliber machine guns—four in each wing.

Today the Mark II.'s are all being modified to the specifications of the Mark IV. Spitfires. Externally there is little difference. Internally there is a great difference. The Rolls-Royce engine of today develops 1,450 horsepower for takeoff with 100-octane fuel. This is the 12-cylinder V type Rolls engine but with a manifold pressure equivalent to an American measurement of about 70 inches of mercury. This is a short-time burst of power, available for one minute at takeoff or about three minutes in the air. But the power is there.

In addition to the 45 per cent power increase the newest Spitfire carries two 20-millimeter cannon in the wings and six .303-caliber machine guns. The cannon are similar to the 20-millimeter guns that Germany's fighting planes have used as standard equipment since they appeared in the Spanish war in 1937 and 1938. The cannon are belt-fed and have from 60 to 70 shells each. These shells are accurate for distances up to 500 yards (between two and three times as far as .303-caliber machine guns) and explode on contact with another aircraft.

By thus arming their best single-seater fighter the British admit that the Germans were on the right track in using this heavy armament on fighters. Hitherto they have held that the Messerschmitt 109 and 110 and Focke-Wulf fighters were underarmed with their cannon-machine gun combinations.

All these changes have made the Spitfire slightly heavier, have decreased its maneuverability somewhat (and it never was overly maneuverable), but the net result is that its speed is now approximately 400 miles an hour—for a short burst of full engine. Some of the newest Spitfires—Mark V. models—have had their wings clipped and new types of engine coolant and oil radiators installed. The clipped-wing Spitfire is said to do 425 miles an hour at 18,000 feet. The cooling, however, is far from perfect in the new fully inclosed wing radiators.

Have a look at the Bristol Blenheim depicted in the photograph reproduced here. This is a much-modified airplane. The first Blenheims had a short, stubby, fat nose. Note that this—latest in the line—has a long, slender nose, slightly off center because the left half of the nose extension has been flattened out to give the pilot good visibility at landing.

But the point we are most interested in is the funny little cupola beneath the nose. Note that it seems to be of glass or plexiglass and that a machine gun is pointing rearward underneath the airplane's belly. The addition of that gun means that German fighter pilots, flying airplanes almost 100 miles an hour faster than this 295-mile-an-hour ship, have been flying up under its hitherto unprotected belly and riddling it.

That machine gun is operated by a man who looks into a mirror. This is definitely a makeshift and probably gives poor protection at anything but point-blank ranges.

The fact that only one gun could be used also militates against it being an efficient operation, especially to face the four machine guns and two cannon of many of the German fighters. This modification, however, was believed to be important enough, even tho inefficient, to add to planes already flying.

The Blenheim has been used by the British as a twin-engined fighter. It is rugged and can be rolled, looped, and stunted like a single-motored interceptor. But it is slow in maneuver compared with a smaller plane.

About the third airplane shown here little is known. It is a newer type—the Blackburn Botha. It is a high-wing type with two Bristol Taurus two-row 14-cylinder sleeve valve air-cooled motors. These engines give 1,100 horsepower for takeoff and have a small frontal area. The airplane is used for general reconnaissance and for torpedo attacks on German channel shipping. The torpedo is carried internally with a light load of bombs.

The turret just behind the wing is one of the lighter British electric power gun emplacements. The gunner swings the turret by a feather touch on his gun controls and points his guns with the assistance of an electric motor. This is necessary on fast airplanes, where air pressures build up so greatly that they defy the physical strength of one man to swing gun muzzles against them.

Know Your Camera

The news reels offer many unique picture possibilities, such as this study of Winston Churchill.

Closeups of faces are the easiest thing to photograph on the movie screen, as the skin tones are light enough to record at 1/10 sec. Olivia De Havilland "posed" for this picture.

Experts arranged the interesting lighting effect in this portrait of Hedy Lamarr, taken at 1/10 sec. in a movie during a regular performance.

Take Your Camera to Movies

TAKE YOUR camera to the movies if you are looking for new and interesting picture subjects. Have you ever thought of personally photographing some of your favorite stars? You can do it at any time you choose, and the place to do it is in the movies.

Taking pictures at the movies is not difficult. The one thing that makes it somewhat different from picture taking under ordinary circumstances is the need for a fast lens. You may rarely get an opportunity to use an f:1.5 or f:2 lens at full opening, but when it comes to taking pictures in the movies you should use all the lens speed at your command. Unless your lens opens up to at least f:4.5 it will be hardly worth while to attempt this type of photography. The reason is that the projected image on the movie screen is less bright than it may seem to the human eye.

Open up your lens all the way and use the fastest films or many of your negatives will be underexposed. At the same time you should shoot at slow speeds, not only because there is a lack of strong light but also because of the peculiar nature of movie projection.

The best shutter speed to use, in combination with a large lens stop, is 1/10 or 1/25 sec. If you shoot faster, chances are that you will get nothing at all, because you might catch the screen during one of the split seconds when it is completely dark. Sound movies are projected at the rate of 24 frames a second, with 24 intervals during which the screen is dark. The single frames of the movie film flash on for approximately 1/48 sec., and if you shoot at fast speeds you have an even chance of catching blanks.

When you expose at 1/10 sec. more than one frame appears on the screen during the exposure. If the movie shows fast action, persons in the scene will have moved noticeably in the two or three frames that will flash on the screen during the 1/10 sec. exposure. This will give the effect of a double or triple exposure on your own film. Also the image within one single movie frame may show blur if it was taken of fast action. Therefore select scenes in which the actors stand still or move only slowly. This will help you to avoid the effect of multiple exposures.

One of your best bets is to concentrate on closeups. In these the expression very often does not change in several frames, and the illumination is usually strong, so that you have a brilliant image on the screen. Cartoons, too, are usually bright and contrasty, but the trouble with photographing them is that they are designed in such a manner that each successive frame shows a slight change, causing some "motion" in your picture.

Speaking of motion, it is essential to hold the camera steady, as you are shooting at slow shutter speeds. Whenever possible rest it on a solid support.

And this brings us to the question of where to shoot from. Get a seat in the center, directly opposite the screen, or you will be shooting a more or less distorted image, and your pictures will show it. As to the best distance from the screen, this depends on the focal length of your lens. Instead of complicated calculations, simply use your view finder or ground glass to select the best distance. It is the distance at which the image of the screen fills all of your negative. You can sit farther away, but this will force you to enlarge your picture unduly, losing sharpness.

Focus carefully on the screen. You will be shooting with the lens wide open, which allows for a very slight depth of field. Therefore you should make sure that the screen is in sharp focus.

NEW EQUIPMENT

For names of manufacturers who produce these items send stamped, self-addressed envelope to "Know Your Camera," Equipment Review Department, care Graphic Section, The Chicago Tribune. Be sure to mention serial number of item.

216 If you have trouble directing your floodlights just where you want them, try one of the new lamp sockets that can be adjusted to a full 90-degree angle and can be rotated in a complete circle when adjusted at any angle.

217 If you process your own negatives and prints you can save money by compounding your own chemicals. You will need a scale for this. The latest darkroom scale, giving weights in metric and avoirdupois markings, costs $2.75.

218 You can avoid chemical stains on your hands by using the new mittens made of a thin, waterproof, transparent material. They are so thin that you hardly feel them, yet they are said to wear long. The price is 25 cents a pair.

219 A new 4x5 view camera of advanced design, the second to appear within a month, features front and rear focusing; rising, falling, tilting, and swinging front and back. It swivels on a rail bed and has a tripod plate with built-in tilt. It lists for $49.50 without lens.

220 Users of 35-mm. cameras can have all the pictures on an entire roll printed on a single sheet of paper that is perforated for filing in a special binder. The film remains in its original roll form.

A Sensible Treatment for Corns
FOR SENSIBLE PEOPLE

A corn is a mass of dead cells (A) whose base presses on sensitive nerves (B).
Felt pad (C) helps relieve pain by removing pressure. Medication (D) acts on corn.
In a few days corn is gently loosened so it may be lifted right out.

Helps relieve throbbing pain —remove imbedded "core"

● Corns are caused by pressure and friction, become imbedded in your toe. Home paring simply removes the top of the corn—leaves the pain-producing "core."

But sensible people have found relief this easy Blue-Jay way. First the soft Blue-Jay pad helps relieve pain by lifting off pressure. Then the medication gently loosens the corn so in a few days it may be lifted out, including the pain-producing "core"! (Stubborn cases may require more than one application.)

Knit-tex British Knockabout Model*

Notice its modern lines expressing the new fashion – casual comfort

"Comfort" is the fashion in men's apparel today. Your clothes should not only feel comfortable but they should also look comfortable.

In this new Knit-tex model you hardly know you are wearing a coat. Its deeper armholes are easy to slip into or out of. It has fuller shoulders that drape comfortably over the modern broad shouldered suit.

The skirt is flared so that the front hangs straight with the fullness in the back, providing more leg and body room.

The wool in this coat is fine imported tweed wool with that crispy texture that you find in the costliest fabrics. The colors have the primitive richness always associated with imported hand-woven tweeds. Try one on in your local Knit-tex store. You will look and feel like a different man for this coat is a new experience!

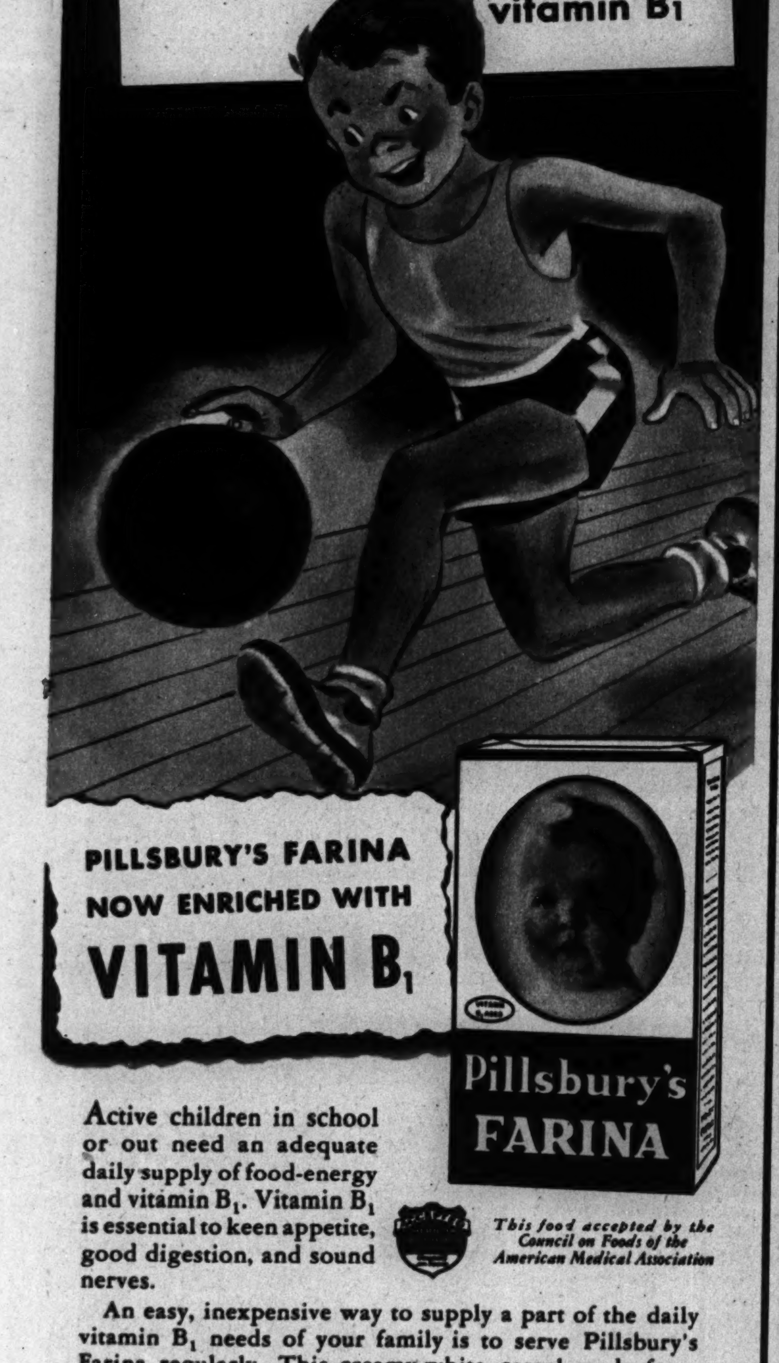
In the classroom or gym, he needs an adequate supply of vitamin B₁



PILLSBURY'S FARINA NOW ENRICHED WITH VITAMIN B₁

Active children in school or out need an adequate daily supply of food-energy and vitamin B₁. Vitamin B₁ is essential to keen appetite, good digestion, and sound nerves.

This food accepted by the Council on Foods of the American Medical Association

An easy, inexpensive way to supply a part of the daily vitamin B₁ needs of your family is to serve Pillsbury's Farina regularly. This creamy-white cereal made from fine, selected wheats costs only a fraction more than ½ cent per serving. It now contains 900 International Units of vitamin B₁ per pound or more than 40 units per serving (a serving requires only ⅛ cup dry cereal).

Give your family Pillsbury's Farina regularly. There are dozens of ways to serve it—all appetizing and thrifty.

PILLSBURY'S FARINA

MOTHERS: Send for the new FREE booklet, "How Do Your Children Grow?"—tells what to expect of an average child at certain ages, gives height and weight charts, tooth charts, what to do if child doesn't eat, etc. Write Pillsbury Flour Mills Company, Dept. 86, Minneapolis, Minnesota.

WHAT'S GOOD FOR GRANDMA, is good for grand-daughter, too. Both take Scott's Emulsion. Grandma, as a tonic and a precaution against common colds; grand-daughter, to help her system build a sturdy frame and sound teeth, and to guard against common colds. THERE IS NO TONIC QUITE LIKE SCOTT'S EMULSION.

1—Scott's Emulsion has all the values of cod liver oil and is four times more easily digested.

2—Easily Digested—The exclusive method of emulsifying the oil permits digestion to start in the stomach, whereas digestion of plain cod liver oil does not begin until the oil passes to intestines.

3—Tonic-Food Supplement—Beneficial to grown-ups as well as children, especially helpful to those recuperating from illness.

4—Easy to take and retain by children and adults. Scott's Emulsion has a pleasant taste. Supplies normal daily requirements of important Vitamins A and D.

DO THIS 30 MINUTES AFTER EATING

TO ALKALIZE EXCESS STOMACH ACIDS FAST

Quick relief from Acid Indigestion, Nausea and Headaches this remarkable Phillips' Way.

No need to be afraid to enjoy the food you like. If you expect acid indigestion after meals, follow this simple routine.

Take two teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia a half hour after you leave the table. Or, if you're not at home, take two Phillips' Tablets, which have the same neutralizing effect.

This gives you a thorough "alkalization" at the time excess stomach acids are developing . . . and does the job in a few minutes. No nausea or embarrassing "gas," none of that uncomfortable fullness, or stinging heartburn. You're surprised at how wonderful you feel.

SIGNS OF ACID INDIGESTION

Heartburn	Sour Stomach
Nausea	"Acid" Headache
No Appetite	"Logginess"
"Gas"	Tired feeling in morning

Try this way — especially if you have been using some slower or less effective way to overcome acid stomach. The Phillips' Method may be a revelation and solve your problem.

When you buy ask for and make sure you get the real Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Note the words "genuine Phillips'" on both bottle and tablets box.

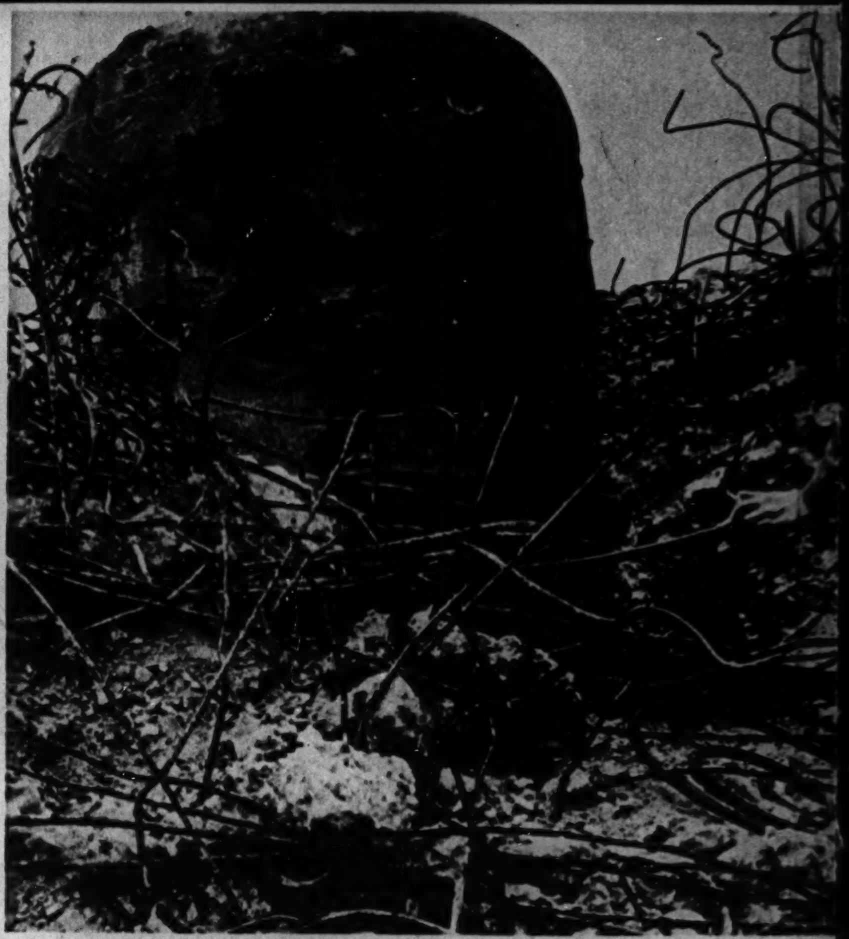
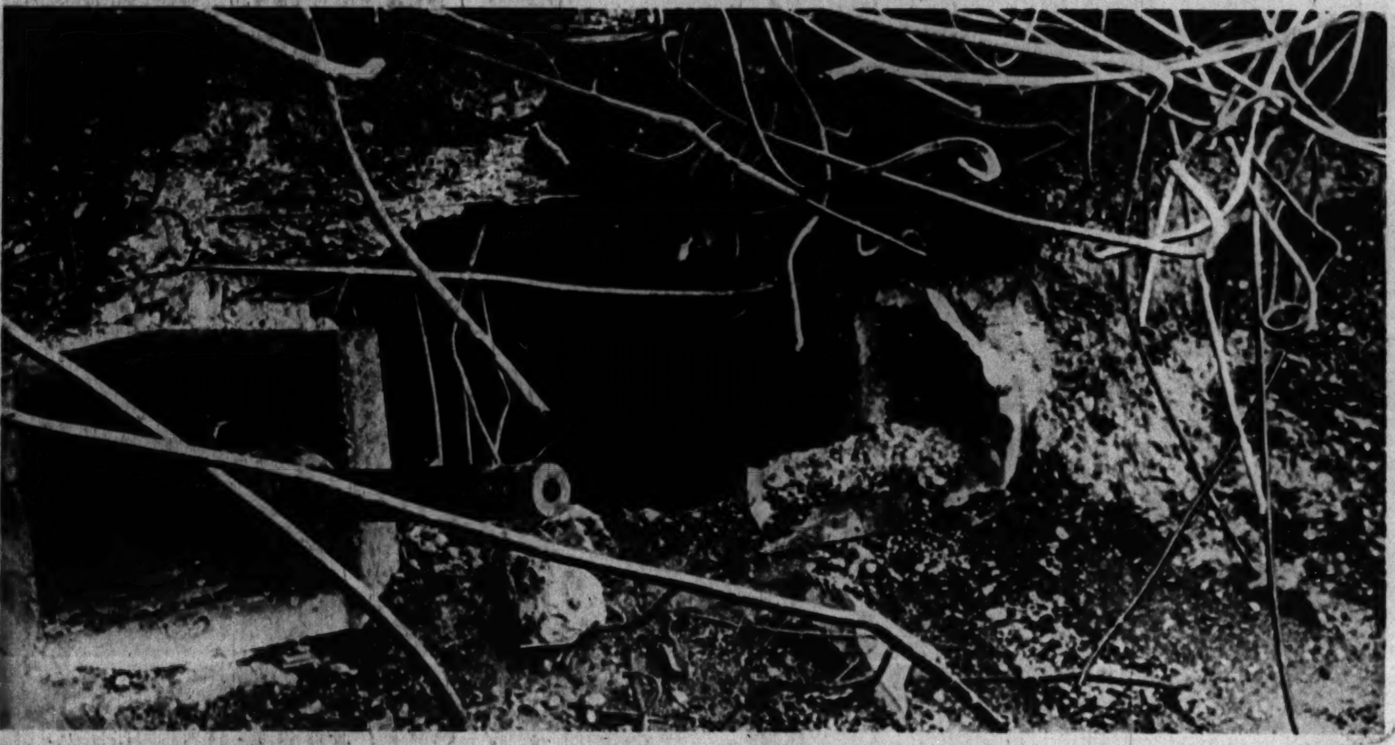
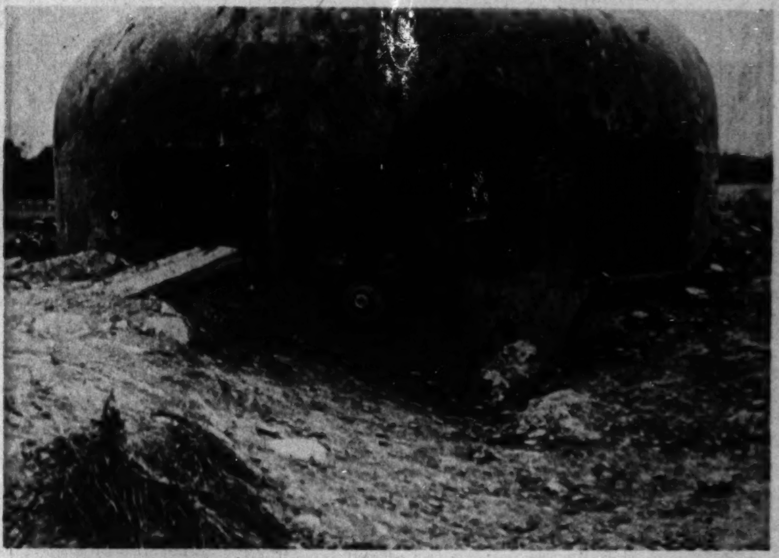
A CASEMATE OF THE MAGINOT LINE, near Breisach, smashed by German artillery fire. During his tour of the war area Mr. Noderer was told by a German staff officer that this destruction was effected by "storm artillery," firing at 200 yard range across the Rhine, in 20 minutes.



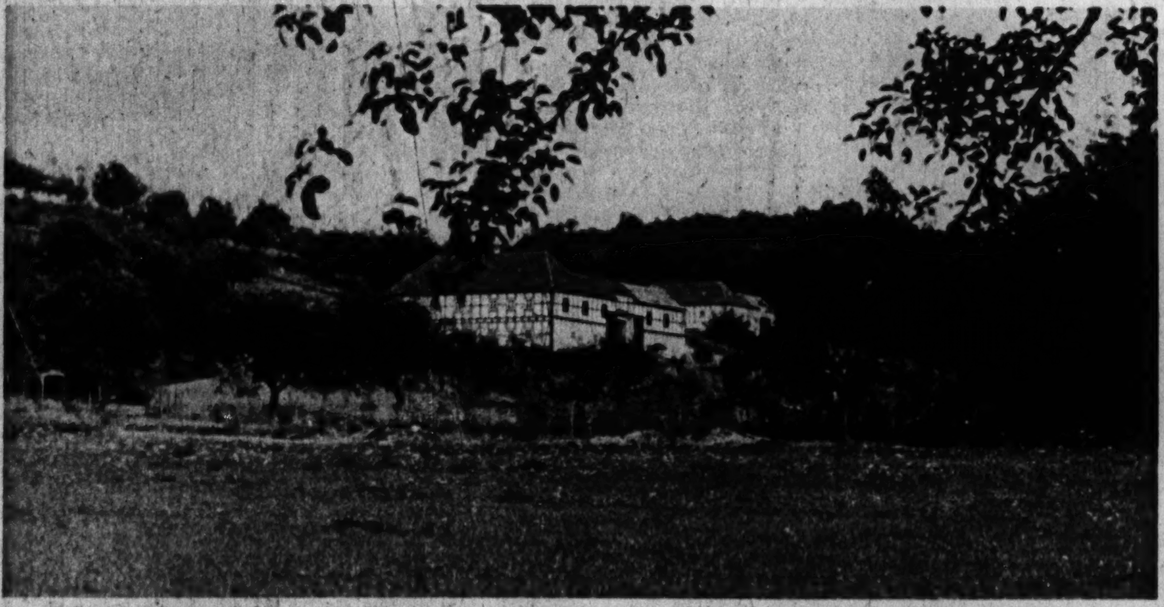
GERMAN 15 CENTIMETER GUNS (about 6 in.) destroyed the 12 foot reinforced concrete of this Maginot line casemate opposite Breisach; the holes in the 12 inch steel armor of the pillbox were made by armor piercing shells from 88 mm. (about 3.5 in.) antiaircraft guns.



INADEQUATE STEEL REINFORCING RODS stripped of cement by German guns in a Maginot line fortress north of Strasbourg. American engineers would prefer anything to these smooth, round shapes; for strongest construction the rods would be deformed, perhaps twisted, probably bearing excrescences.



88 MM. SHELLS in the 12 inch steel of a pillbox. While American battleships carry armor up to 18 inches in thickness, some of their steel plate is thinner than the sheath of this pillbox.



A HOUSE OF INNOCENT GUISE which actually was a formidable fortress in the German Siegfried line near Strasbourg. This photo and that below were smuggled out of Germany by Mr. Noderer; they are believed to be the only photos of such Siegfried line structures to have been brought to America.

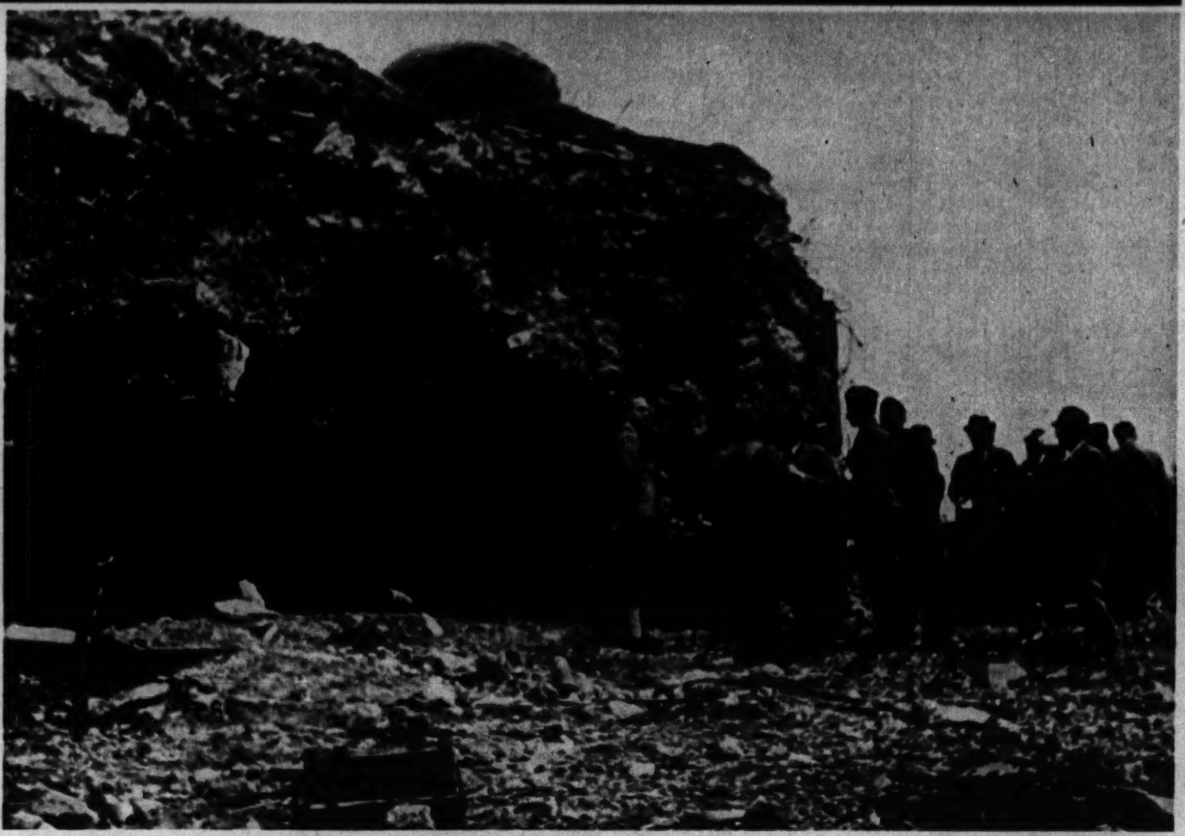
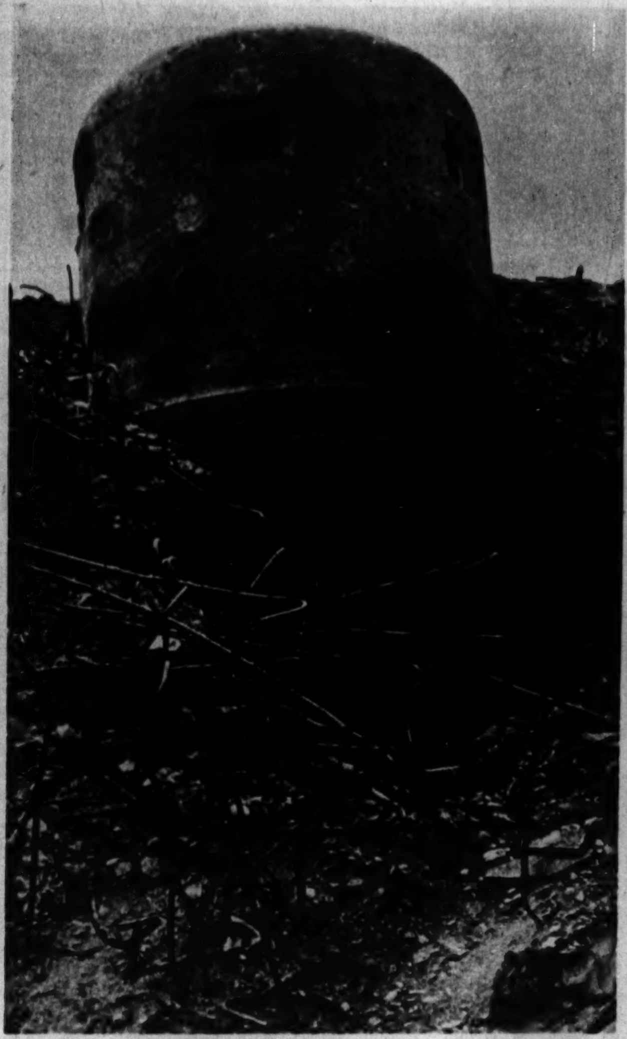
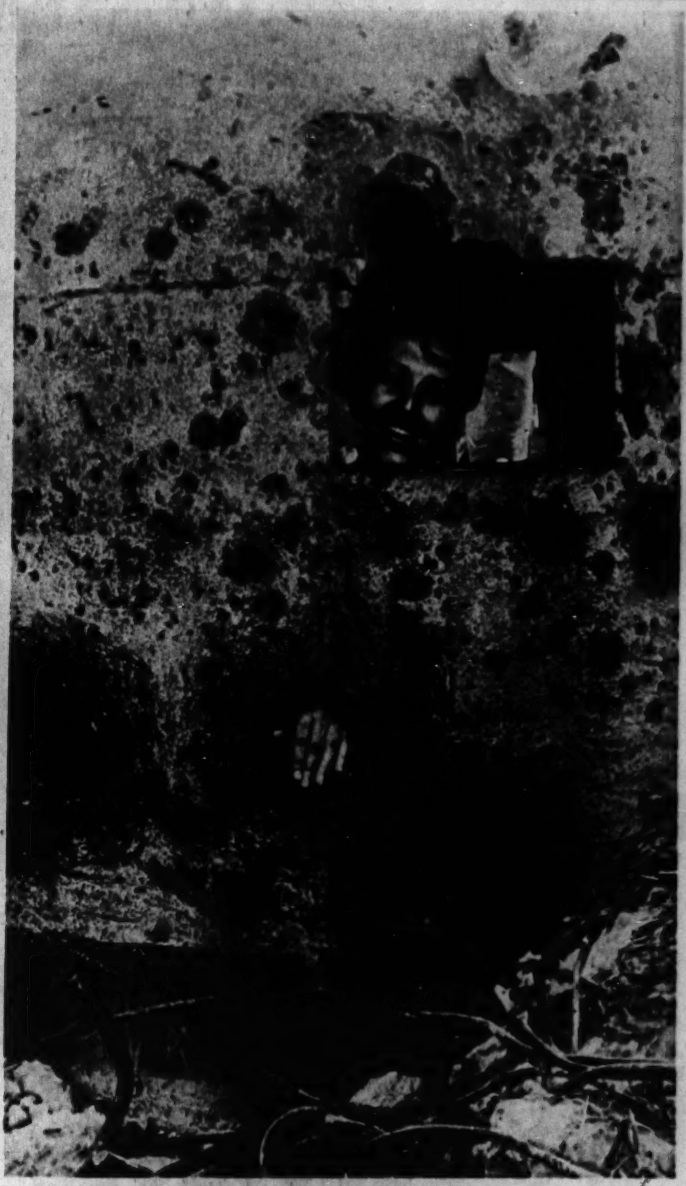
tion in Maginot Line



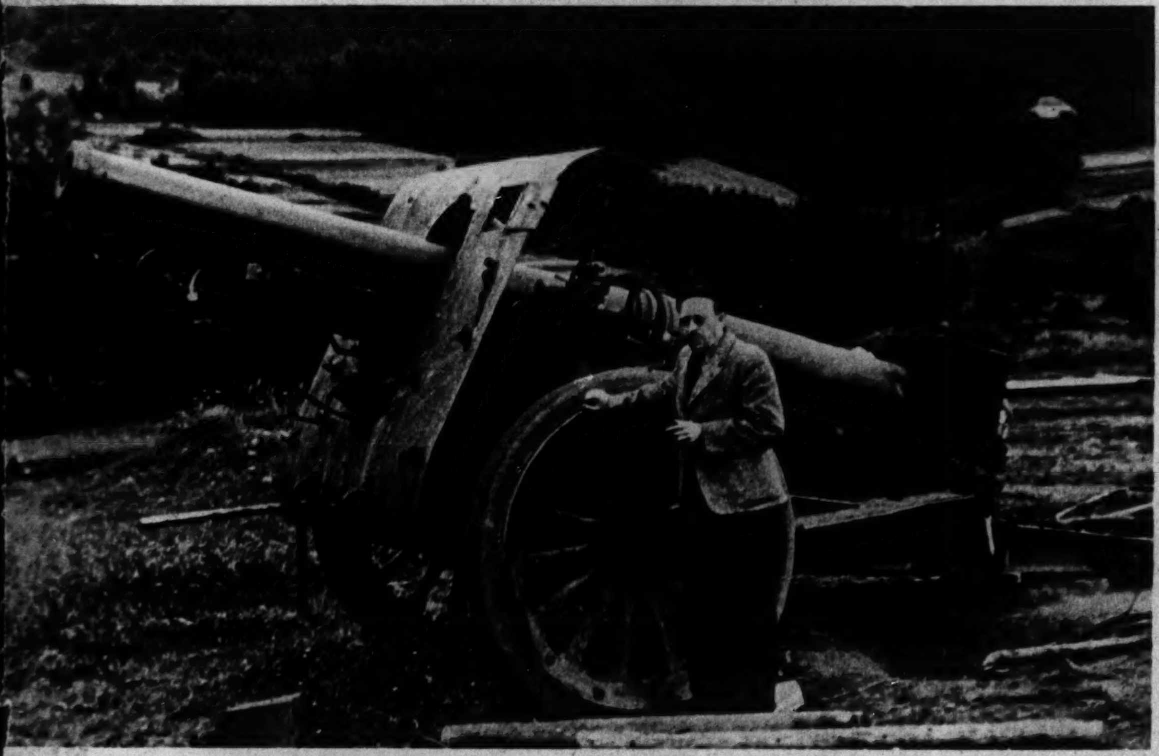
A JUNK HEAP of concrete and steel reinforcing rods in the "Ouvrage de Rohrbach" near Bitsche. German officers said this destruction was possible because French artillerymen had left their posts at the rear of these casemates on news that the invaders were turning the Maginot line to the north; thus the Nazis were able to bring heavy artillery up to point blank range.



ASSAULT TECHNIQUE learned in demolition of French built Czech fortifications, seized by the Nazis in 1939, was applied to this Maginot line strong point, according to German officers. Finding that the joint between the pillbox and the concrete of the casemate was weak, the Germans pounded at the steel with 15 cm. guns until the turret tipped, tilting its guns skyward. Then they hammered the concrete to bits.

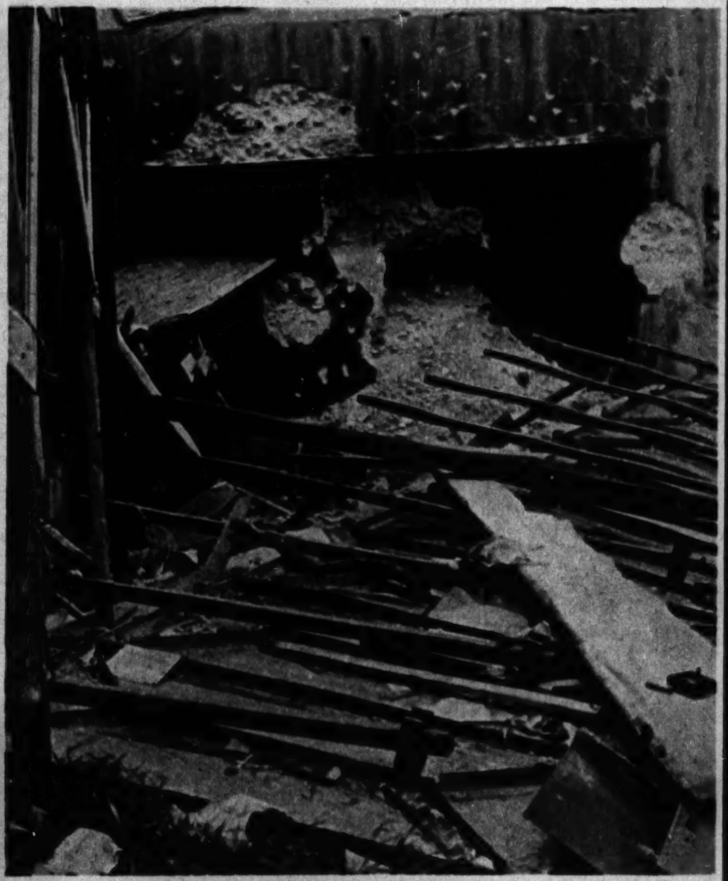


TWELVE INCHES OF PILLBOX STEEL riddled with fire from 88 mm. antiaircraft guns firing pointblank. An American newspaperman indicates one of the shell holes.



A FRENCH 155 MM. GUN OF 1917 VINTAGE that opposed the Germans. Mr. Noderer was informed that the French were forced to abandon this piece because the wooden wheels with solid rubber tires made it too cumbersome for swift removal. Mr. Noderer stands beside it.

- The remarkable photos appearing here present the most comprehensive and most graphic view of the ruin wrought by Nazi artillery in French fortifications that has been brought to American eyes. All of the photos except the two in which he appears were taken by E. R. Noderer, Chicago Tribune correspondent, who brought them to America when he returned recently from Berlin. Some of them necessarily were smuggled out past German border guards.



ANOTHER WRECKED STRONG POINT in the Maginot line. The steel plates upon the ground had concealed the gun ports from the Germans during the quiet months.

The Only Medium-Priced Car With V-8 Fleetness and Thrift!

MERCURY'S engine is about as fine a power plant as you'd ever want—rugged, powerful, thrifty, and the only V-8 in the medium-price field. That's one reason the big Mercury steps out ahead and usually stays there. But even more important—Mercury is built on aviation principles, with more power per pound than most other cars. Like a well-conditioned thoroughbred, Mercury has no superfluous weight but a reserve of power and stamina unusual in so thrifty a car. In a little more than two years, over 175,000 new owners have tried and bought Mercury. We'd like to have you try it, too. We think you'll find the extra pride and enjoyment you get out of Mercury is well worth the difference you pay over lowest-priced cars.

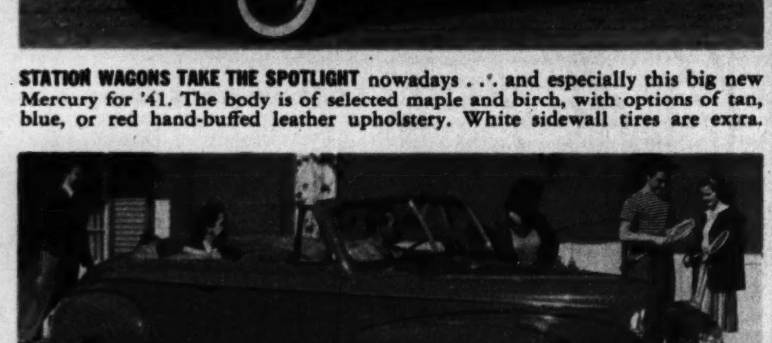
STATION WAGONS TAKE THE SPOTLIGHT nowadays . . . and especially this big new Mercury for '41. The body is of selected maple and birch, with options of tan, blue, or red hand-buffed leather upholstery. White sidewall tires are extra.



YOUNG FOLKS OF ALL AGES like everything about this spirited Mercury Convertible for five. Automatic top is electrically operated. Seat cushions and backs are of genuine hand-buffed leather in tan, blue or red. White sidewall tires are extra.

EXTRA WIDTH AND LENGTH make Mercury the year's big buy! There's plenty of head-room, leg-room and elbow-room!

WORLD'S GREATEST PARADE of FUN

DICK TRACY
by CHESTER GOULD
BUT HE DIDN'T HAVE AN ENEMY IN THE WORLD, MR TRACY. MY HUSBAND WAS A GOOD MAN!
COME, MRS. DEPOOL, WE KNOW THIS HAS BEEN A GREAT SHOCK!
DID MR. DEPOOL VISIT THE ATHLETIC CLUB REGULARLY?
YES. FOR YEARS HE HAD BEEN GOING THERE TWICE A WEEK TO TAKE THE CABINET BATHS!
DID HE HAVE ENEMIES WITHIN THE CLUB? — BUSINESS ENEMIES?
TO MY KNOWLEDGE, NOT A ONE!
THE ONLY CLEW WE HAVE, MRS. DEPOOL, IS THIS SLIP-OVER SWEATER THE MURDERER LEFT BEHIND IN THE LOCKER ROOM!
A SWEATER?
THE KILLER REMOVED HIS COAT AND THIS SWEATER IN ORDER TO RESEMBLE THE ATTENDANT. IN HIS HURRY TO LEAVE, HE FORGOT THIS!
A KNITTED SWEATER WITH THE INITIALS WOVEN RIGHT IN IT. "S.D." HM?
SD
A VERY THIN CLEW TO WORK ON, BUT THAT'S ALL WE HAVE SO FAR!
I MUST GO HOME NOW. I WANT TO REST!
AS TRACY PLACES THE SWEATER IN THE DESK DRAWER NEAR THE OLD LADY'S CHAIR, HER HAND CASUALLY DROPS TOWARD THE GARMENT • • •
KNOWING EXACTLY WHERE TO TAKE HOLD, THE OLD LADY DEFTLY SNAPS ONE OF THE THREADS OF YARN • •
SNAP
AS SHE AND THE DETECTIVE MOVE TOWARD THE DOOR, THE THREAD IS HELD TIGHTLY IN HER HAND.
I'LL DRIVE YOU HOME, MRS. DEPOOL!
NO! NO! I WANT TO GO ALONE. LEAVE ME RIGHT AT THIS DOOR. I'LL BE ALL RIGHT!
SHE'S QUITE AN UNUSUAL WOMAN, PAT, A BRAVE LITTLE THING!
YES, SHE MUST HAVE LOTS OF SPUNK, TRACY, TO TAKE A THING LIKE THIS AS WELL AS SHE DOES!
SILENTLY, BUT SWIFTLY, THE YARN EMERGES FROM THE DRAWER • •
WELL! THE "BEREAVED" WIDOW OF ANGUS DEPOOL SEEMS TO HAVE SOMETHING IN MIND, AND IT DOES NOT CONSIST OF AIDING THE POLICE IN CAPTURING HER HUSBAND'S MURDERER • • •

ATTA GIRL!
LOOKS AS IF WE'D LOST OUR JOBS, LOIS.
ANY LUCK, AVERY?
NOT A SNITCH, DOC. WE'D BETTER CHECK WITH WALT.
NOBODY'S SEEN 'EM.
WE'D BETTER START MAKIN' BIGGER CIRCLES.
ALL RIGHT, HERE WE GO FELLAS.

THERE HE GOES! HE DIDN'T STAY LONG--
JUST STOLE SOME FOOD, I S'POSE--
HE DIDN'T DO MUCH DAMAGE-
OH, GOSH! HE STOLE THE LOVING CUP I WON IN THE SKI-JUMPING CONTEST!!
BAW! PUSHFACE'S CUP IS GONE!
THERE, THERE, "ME-TOO"— DON'T CRY--I'LL BUY YOUR PAL, PUSHFACE, ANOTHER CUP--A BIGGER ONE!
BAW!
I KNOW YOU LOVE PUSHFACE VERY MUCH—BUT DON'T YOU WORRY ABOUT THAT CUP--

BUT WHY DON'T YOU SWITCH TO THAT NEW SOAP I'M USING--NEW HIGH-TEST OXYDOL?
HIGH-TEST OXYDOL? ISN'T THAT THE SOAP I HEAR DIFFERENT WASHING MACHINE MAKERS RECOMMENDING OVER THE RADIO SO OFTEN?
THAT'S RIGHT--THE EASY WASHER PEOPLE TOLD ME ABOUT IT WHEN I TRADED IN MY OLD MACHINE--IT HAS A MARVELOUS NEW INGREDIENT IN IT--GETS CLOTHES AS MUCH AS 9 TO 11 SHADES WHITER THAN SO MANY POPULAR SOAPS.
COME ON OVER. I'LL SHOW YOU.
HEAVENLY DAYS, WHAT PILES OF SUDS--3 TIMES WHAT I GET WITH THE SOAP I'VE BEEN USING!
AND WATCH HOW THEY SOAK OUT DIRT WHILE MY EASY IS RUNNING--GIVE YOU SPEEDY, DOUBLE-ACTION WASH!

EASY Spiralator SPINDRIER

For Whiter, Brighter Washes, in Easy Washers, Both Old and New!

WHEN recognized experts go out of their way to recommend a product not their own—it's really news!

That's why the endorsement of new, High-Test OXYDOL by the makers of the famous Easy Washer is attracting such widespread attention among housewives today.

Here is the official EASY Washer statement, recently broadcast over the radio, coast to coast: —"We recommend High-Test Oxydol for use in Easy Washers—to get clothes white with speed and safety."

This endorsement was released after Easy Washer officials saw positive proof of High-Test Oxydol's amazing results—as demonstrated in Procter & Gamble laboratory tests against a large number of popular bar and package soaps.

The tests show that High-Test Oxydol does these amazing things:—

(1) Gets white clothes as much as 9 to 11 shades whiter—actual Tintometer shades. (2) Cup for cup, gives up to three times the suds—and suds stand up as much as 2 to 3 times longer.

Yet is so SAFE that even cotton prints given the equivalent of a full year's washing stayed looking bright and sparkling as new!

High-Test Oxydol is a grand money-saver, too—penny for penny, goes up to 25% farther than less economical soaps. You owe it to yourself to try new High-Test OXYDOL! Get a package tomorrow. Procter & Gamble.

Attention Washing Machine Owners!

FREE AUTOMATIC WASHING GUIDE—when you see Oxydol demonstrated in an Easy Washer, at the Annual EASY Home Laundry Clinic. You'll get new answers to Spring cleaning problems. At your Easy Dealer's this week.

PUNJAB JUST THROWS HIS "MAGIC CAPE" OVER 'EM AND SAYS SOME STRANGE WORDS, AND WHEN HE TAKES TH' CAPE AWAY, THEY'RE GONE. SLICK AS A WHISTLE!
YES? AND WHERE ARE THEY GONE TO, DO YOU THINK?
WELL, PUNJAB SAYS TH' MAGII HAVE TAKEN 'EM FOR A LITTLE RIDE ON TH' MAGIC CARPET--THAT'S ALL HE'LL SAY-DON'T YOU BELIEVE HIM?
WELL, IT'S A CINCH THEY'RE GONE, ALL RIGHT! BUT HOW HE DOES IT SURE BEATS ME---HE DID IT TO THOSE TOUGH GUYS--POUFF! JUST LIKE THAT-"PUNJAB IS A VERY WISE MAN, ANNIE---AND VERY GOOD AND LOYAL TO YOUR "DADDY"- PUNJAB'S LOYAL TO "DADDY" BUT EVEN WITH PUNJAB ON TH' JOB THEY COULDN'T SAVE TH' EONITE PLANT FROM BEIN' DESTROYED-I SURE HOPE THIS TIME------
EONITE? HM-M-M-YES, ANNIE--WE DID LOSE THAT--BUT THAT WAS THROUGH NO FAULT OF PUNJAB'S--THAT WAS MY FAULT, BUT I WOULDN'T HAVE HAD IT OTHERWISE-
YUH MEAN YOU WERE WILLIN' THEY SHOULD KILL POOR OLD EON AND D'STROY THAT PLANT?
OF COURSE NOT---BUT IT WAS EITHER THAT OR KILL A LOT OF INNOCENT AND DELUDED PEOPLE---HM-M-M-FIVE YEARS AGO I FELT I ALONE WAS WISE ENOUGH TO CONTROL EONITE-
BUT IF YOU HAD HUNG ONTO IT, NO MATTER WHAT, THERE'D BE NO WAR GOIN' ON NOW-
TRUE ENOUGH- HAD WE HERE POSSESSED EONITE NO ONE ANYWHERE WOULD HAVE DARED START A WAR---BUT WHO WAS I TO TRY TO REFORM ALL MANKIND?
I SEE WHAT YOU MEAN, "DADDY"-
GEE--"DADDY" SURE HAS CHANGED IN FIVE YEARS--I STILL THINK HE KNOWS WHAT'S BEST, BETTER'N ANYBODY ELSE--BUT HE'S NOT SO SURE O' THAT ANY MORE AT ALL-
YES, LITTLE PRINCESS---IN SAHIB WARBUCKS' HANDS, EONITE WOULD HAVE BROUGHT UNIVERSAL PEACE, PROSPERITY, PLENTY---SAHIB WARBUCKS IS A WISE AND JUST MAN-
YEAH? THEN WHY DID HE LET A LOT O' STUPID PEOPLE AND CHISELERS RUIN IT ALL?
AH, BECAUSE HE IS NOT A DICTATOR-NOT EVEN ONE WHO WOULD FORCE PEACE AND PLENTY UPON OTHERS---HE BELIEVES DEEPLY IN FREEDOM---NOT ONLY FOR THE FEW LIKE HIM WHO ARE STRONG, BUT ESPECIALLY FOR THE VAST MULTITUDE WHO ARE WEAK-
BUT WOULDN'T FOLKS BE HAPPIER AND BETTER OFF IF THEY COULDN'T HAVE TERRIBLE WARS, PUNJAB?
MANKIND DESPISES EVEN THE RICHEST GIFTS THAT ARE FORCED UPON THEM-THEY PRIZE MOST THOSE BLESSINGS WHICH THEY STRUGGLE AND SUFFER MOST TO GAIN---IT WAS EVER SO-

IT'S A DAISY! IT'S A DANDY! IT BRINGS YOU NICE WHITE CLOTHES, BECAUSE

Sure, it's safe for washable colors! Sure it makes big suds! Sure it's economical! But most important, SUPER SUDS gets out the DEEP DOWN DIRT that makes clothes look half-washed!

YOU MAY THINK you have to scrub, rinse and boil like blazes to get clothes white and bright, but you don't. Because now there's a granulated soap called Super Suds that gets the deep down dirt out of everything in the family wash!

IT'S THE DEEP DOWN DIRT that makes an old woman of you on wash-day! That grime along the neckbands, in sheets, towels and pillow cases, the rock-ribbed dirt in children's play togs—those are the heart-breakers. Yes, deep down dirt is the dirt weak-sister soaps can't get.

IT'S SO SWELL to use Super Suds, one granulated soap that gets out this deep down dirt—soaks it out to give you the white, bright washes you're proud of. Why, just a few quick rubs with Super Suds on the extra soiled spots and you'll be positively thrilled!

YET SUPER SUDS IS SAFE. It's the extra rich suds-making materials that do the job. Your colorful wash cottons, the children's suits, stand washing after washing in Super Suds and colors stay bright and fresh.

IT'S THIS EXTRA RICH SUDSING that explains why Super Suds gets out the deep down dirt and still proves wonderfully easy on wash colors and hands.

ECONOMICAL YES, Super Suds, makes two or three times the suds, cup for cup, as low-powered soaps.

PLEASE, MR. GUMP! DON'T TELL THE POLICE WHERE I AM — —
I-I CAN'T HARBOR YOU— LEGALLY, YOU ARE AN ESCAPED CONVICT!
BUT UNCLE BIM—WHAT ABOUT ROSE? SHE MIGHT BE IN TROUBLE!
IF ONLY UNCLE BIM REALIZED HOW TRUE WERE CHESTER'S WORDS —FOR AT THAT VERY MOMENT—
THAT'S OUR MAN!
ALL RIGHT, BUDD! YOUR LITTLE HOLIDAY IS OVER!!
ARE YOU COMING PEACEABLY, OR MUST WE HAVE A SCENE?
WH-? WHO ARE YOU?
I'M AN INNOCENT MAN! YOU'RE MAKING A TERRIBLE MISTAKE! I'LL—I'LL SUE YOU FOR FALSE ARREST!
CLICK
YOU TALK HIGH AND MIGHTY FOR A MAN WHO ESCAPED FROM PRISON ONLY A FEW DAYS AGO, MR. ABEL BUDD!
I'M NOT ABEL BUDD! I'M HIS TWIN BROTHER, KAIN!!!
IN ALL MY 20 YEARS ON THE FORCE, I THOUGHT I'D LISTENED TO EVERY ALIBI UNDER THE SUN— BUT YOU JUST SPRUNG A NEW ONE ON ME, ABEL, OL' BOY—
WAIT! I CAN PROVE MY IDENTITY BY MY LITTLE NIECE HERE!
C'MON— YOU'VE GABBED ENOUGH
WHAT LITTLE NIECE? ARE YOU TRYING TO COP AN INSANITY PLEA, NOW?
SHE'S GONE!
GET GOING, BUDD—AND NO MORE MONKEY-SHINES!
GONE, INDEED—LIKE A FRIGHTENED DEER, ROSE SEIZED THE OPPORTUNITY TO ESCAPE FROM HER HATED UNCLE!
MEANWHILE—BACK AT UNCLE BIM'S HOUSE—
I BEG OF YOU, MR. GUMP—DON'T SEND ME—AN INNOCENT MAN—BACK TO THAT PRISON!
IT'S THE ONLY WAY, MR. BUDD! I'LL ENGAGE THE BEST LAWYERS TO RE-OPEN THE CASE
"ANOTHER EXAMPLE OF EXCELLENT POLICE WORK--ABEL BUDD, WHO ESCAPED FROM STATE PRISON A FEW DAYS AGO, WAS APPREHENDED TODAY AT THE PIER, AS HE WAS ABOUT TO BOARD A SHIP BOUND FOR A FOREIGN PORT---"
UNCLE BIM! UNCLE BIM!! LISTEN TO THIS!!
MR. GUMP! THAT'S POETIC JUSTICE! ONCE THEY MISTOOK ME FOR MY WICKED BROTHER! NOW THEY MISTAKE HIM FOR ME!
"—HIS THIN ALIBI—THAT HE IS NOT ABEL BUDD, BUT A TWIN BROTHER, FOOLED NO ONE—A LITTLE NIECE, WHO HE CLAIMED COULD IDENTIFY HIM, WAS ALSO NON-EXISTENT—"

TERRY AND THE PIRATES
by MILTON CANIFF
...BUT I DON'T GET IT, MR. KIEL! YOU MEAN YOU SENT THE CLOTHES AND GUN TO HELP ME ESCAPE FROM THE INVADER CONCENTRATION CAMP?
...IT CAUSED ME GREAT DISTRESS TO SEE AN OCCIDENTAL IN SUCH UNHAPPY CIRCUMSTANCES! YOU SAY YOUR NAME IS TERRY LEE?
YES!... I'M VERY GRATEFUL, OF COURSE... BUT....
...I JUST SUPPOSED THAT BECAUSE I KNEW...
AH, THE POOR LITTLE ONE!... HE PRESUMED THAT, SINCE MADAME LUSTRE TOOK AN INTEREST IN HIM, SHE COULD ENGINEER SUCH A CAREFUL PLAN OF ESCAPE! ONLY THE GREAT KIEL COULD DO THAT!
....WOW! ALMOST GOT MY FOOT IN MY MOUTH UP TO THE ANKLE! BURMA'S STILL PLAYING CAGY!... BETTER RIDE WITH THE TIDE UNTIL THE FOG LIFTS!
...I DON'T WANT TO BE A BURDEN ON YOU, SIR... I'LL LEAVE...
BY NO MEANS, MY BOY! IT WOULD GIVE ME PLEASURE IF YOU WOULD TAKE DINNER WITH ME!
WHY... AH... THANKS!
MADAME LUSTRE WILL LEAVE US NOW... WE HAVE THINGS TO DISCUSS THAT ARE OF NO INTEREST TO HER!
YES, KIEL!
...DO YOU UNDERSTAND THESE...?
THEY LOOK LIKE CREDENTIALS.... PROBABLY FOR PASSAGE THROUGH OCCUPIED CHINA!
EXACTLY!.. YOU ARE QUICK TO PERCEIVE! AS YOU HAVE GUESSED, I AM AN AGENT HERE FOR MY GOVERNMENT! THESE PAPERS WILL IDENTIFY YOU AS A MEMBER OF MY STAFF!
BUT, SIR, I COULDN'T DO THAT...
OH, BUT YOU COULD! YOU LOOK THE PART —AND YOU WILL BE WITH ME CONSTANTLY! ..I WILL DO ALL THE TALKING! I WILL GIVE YOU YOUR SPECIFIC TASKS WHEN THE TIME COMES!
BUT I WOULD BE WORKING FOR YOUR GOVERNMENT! I'M GRATEFUL... BUT I COULDN'T DO THAT!... NO! NO!
YOU DO NOT SEEM TO UNDERSTAND... I WILL RETAIN YOUR PAPERS! WITHOUT THEM YOU ARE HELPLESS! IF YOU FAIL TO COOPERATE, THEN YOU WILL BE RETURNED TO THE CONCENTRATION CAMP... BUT NOT JUST AS AN ESCAPED PRISONER! I WILL TELL THEM YOU ARE A BRITISH SPY!...
....AND IF BURMA CAN HEAR ME CLEARLY, SHE WILL LEARN THAT SHE WILL ALSO FACE A FIRING SQUAD — IF YOU FAIL TO OBEY MY ORDERS!

Simply fill in and mail the gift coupon below, and we will send you Volume One of the Modern Concise Encylopedia! We give it to you free—for just a few cents mailing charge—and after you examine it—you are given the privilege of accepting the rest of the big fifteen volume set almost as a gift.

FINEST CONCISE ENCYCLOPEDIA IN AMERICA!

Imagine! Through one of the most sensational offers ever made, you can own the brand new edition of the latest, finest set of concise encyclopedias in America at next to no cost! Books bigger than full library size, much larger than pictured, handsomely bound in deep green cloth stamped in red, and gilded—expensively made volumes you will be proud to own—yours at almost no expense!

14 MORE BOOKS—PRACTICALLY FREE!

When you receive your free Volume One you become entitled to an EXTRA PRIVILEGE. We reserve in your name all the rest of the fourteen volumes. And—IF YOU WISH—you are entitled to receive one every week, as they come off the presses.

But you will not be charged for these volumes at the high price they are worth—merely a PRIVILEGE PRICE that is just a fraction of their real value—a price so small that every reader will know he is receiving the volumes PRACTICALLY AS A GIFT! Remember—these are genuine encyclopedias—books that contain EVERYTHING you will ever want to know, clearly written and profusely illustrated. They are written for YOU—to find in an instant the information you seek on History, Biography, Geography, Medicine, Industry, Music, Religion, and 22,000 MORE subjects—a rich mine of information worth more than a college education.

YOUR CHOICE OF SUPERB DE LUXE EDITION

One further privilege. If you prefer, you can have your set in the superb De Luxe Edition pictured above—bound in gorgeous red art leather, stain and waterproof, embossed and gilded, with ebony stamping. These distinguished volumes are built for lifetime use, with extra heavy covers, woven head and tailbands, and many other de luxe features.

There is NO EXTRA CHARGE FOR VOLUME ONE in the De Luxe Edition. You can have Volume One FREE in your choice of either Regular or De Luxe. However, the remaining 14 volumes in De Luxe Edition, because of the great expense of the de luxe features, will cost you slightly more than the Regular Edition. Read the coupon very carefully before checking the edition you desire.

A TIME BOMB DISGUISED AS A RADIO-SET TO EXPLODE ONE MINUTE AFTER BEING TURNED ON—WAS PLANTED IN BUCKS PRIVATE DRESSING ROOM BY THE "SNAKE" WHO WAS FORCED TO HIDE BACK OF A CURTAIN WHEN BUCKS AND VAN ARTO RETURNED UNEXPECTEDLY. BUCKS, ANXIOUS TO HEAR THE NEW "RADIO" WAS ABOUT TO TURN IT ON, WHEN—
BRING! BRRRR
WAIT, BUCKS-HOLD THAT UNTIL I ANSWER THIS.
OKAY
HELLO-YES-ALL RIGHT-WE'LL HURRY RIGHT OVER!
COME ON, BUCKS-THEY'RE READY FOR US ON THE SET!
CAN'T I TRY THE RADIO FIRST?
NO-WE HAVEN'T TIME FOR THAT-LET'S GO!
OH— ALL RIGHT!
WELL, COME ON-WHAT ARE YOU STOPPING FOR?-
I'VE GOT TO GO BACK-I FORGOT MY GOGGLES!
BUCKS IS JUST IN TIME TO SEE THE "SNAKE" SLIP OUT OF HIS DRESSING ROOM.
HE DROPPED A PAPER OUT OF HIS POCKET!

HOW DID BUFFALO BILL RECEIVE HIS NICKNAME?
THE ANSWER APPEARS ON A FOLLOWING PAGE
AFTER BEING CAST UPON AN ISLAND LEW LOYAL AND BETSY TRUE SNOOP AROUND AND FIND A CAVE. IN IT THEY DISCOVER SPIES' EQUIPMENT FOR MAKING COUNTERFEIT UNITED STATES MONEY. AS LEW AND BETSY ARE INSPECTING SOME ENGRAVINGS A FIGURE APPEARS IN THE DOORWAY—
FIRST WE'LL CLOSE THIS DOOR AND TURN THE COMBINATION—IN THE EVENT OF MORE INTRUDERS —THERE!
NOW—WHO ARE YOU—WHERE DID YOU COME FROM—HOW DID YOU GET HERE AND WHAT DO YOU WANT ON THIS ISLAND?
WHY, AH—
SH-H!
WE—
HUSH UP, BETSY! DONT TELL HIM ANYTHING!
OH—SO YOU WONT TALK!—THEN I SHALL HAVE TO USE A POWER AT MY DISPOSAL TO LOOSEN YOUR YOUNG TONGUES
LOOK INTO MY EYES! THERE—YOU'RE GETTING DROWSY—VERY, VERY DROWSY—NOW JUST RELAX—RELAX—RELAX—
BETSY! WATCH OUT!! THAT GUY IS HYPNOTISING YOU!!
LEW, I FEEL AWFULLY SL- SLEE—
SPLENDID! THE LITTLE ONE RESPONDS VERY QUICKLY—COME NOW WE SHALL

I WONDER WHERE LEW AND BETSY ARE—I TOLD THEM TO BE BACK HERE WHEN THE SUN WAS OVERHEAD—IT'S NOT LIKE THEM TO—WHAT'S THAT FLASHING, JOE?
I DUNNO, MACK—IT'S COMING FROM OVER THERE
SEE! IT'S FROM THE TOP O' THAT TALLEST TREE!
WHERE? OH YES, I SEE NOW—WHAT CAN IT—WHY, IT'S SOME KIND OF A—SURE! IT'S A SIGNAL
WAIT! IT'S SPELLING OUT—U-N-C-L-E M-A—IT'S LEW! HE'S USING A REFLECTION CODE I TAUGHT HIM
BUT WHAT'S HE DOIN' WAY UP IN THAT TREE?
GREAT SCOTT!!
WHATS UP, MACK?
HE SAYS WE'RE ON A COUNTERFEITER'S ISLAND—PART OF THE SPY RING—BETSY IS CAPTURED AND A GUY IS AFTER HIM!
QUICK, JOE! ROPE THE SKIPPER UP IN THE BOAT, AND FOLLOW ME—THERE ISN'T A SECOND TO LOSE!
O.K., MACK—HURRY UP, BAGGY PANTS!

PATRIOTS' QUIZ ANSWER

WILLIAM FREDERICK CODY WAS ONE OF THE ORIGINAL RIDERS WHEN THE "PONY EXPRESS", OVERLAND MAIL SERVICE, WAS ESTABLISHED IN 1860. LATER HE BECAME A SCOUT WITH THE UNITED STATES ARMY. DURING THE CIVIL WAR HE SERVED WITH THE 7th REGIMENT OF KANSAS CAVALRY. IN 1867 HE MADE A CONTRACT WITH THE KANSAS PACIFIC RAILWAY TO FURNISH ITS EMPLOYES WITH BUFFALO MEAT WHILE THE LINE WAS BEING EXTENDED THRU THE WILDERNESS, WHENCE AROSE THE NAME 'BUFFALO BILL.'

WELL, BOB, THIS IS QUITE A CHANGE FROM THAT FANCY CASINO WHERE I HAD THE PRIZE FIGHT. THIS VEGETATION LOOKS TO BE A MILLION YEARS OUT OF DATE!
A FLYING PLANT, B'GOSH!
A GIANT TUMBLE WEED!
RUNNING TOWARD THE TUMBLE WEED IS A CAVEMAN PURSUED BY A NAMELESS MONSTER, A CREATURE OF ANOTHER AGE!
HE'S TREADING IT LIKE A TREADMILL!
PARDON ME, GENTLEMEN, BUT MIGHT I SUGGEST YOU STAND AWAY FROM THAT GAS CACTUS? SHOULD YOU STEP ON A ROOT, IT WILL THROW A DART THROUGH YOU—
THE PLANTS HERE TAKE GAS FROM THE EARTH. BY MEANS OF IT SOME CAN FLY. OTHERS THROW DARTS TWO HUNDRED FEET
